Soviets Claim Finns' Defense Line Is Broken

Report Northward Advance on Karelian Isthmus

HEAVY LOSSES

Defenders Said to be Exacting Tremendous Toll From Invaders

Moscow—(AP)—A Soviet Russian army has smashed the main Finnish defense line on the Karelian isthmus, the Leningrad command announced today, and is thrusting on northward.

The Leningrad communique said that "Soviet troops, after artillery preparation, broke through the main defense line of the Finns along the Vuoksi water system, known among Finnish white guards as the 'Maginot-Kirke' line."

The natural defenses of the Vuoksi water system, a chain of lakes and watercourses zig-zagging almost across a 65-mile wide isthmus north of Leningrad, had been augmented, it was said, by pillboxes, trenches, wire entanglements, tank traps and mines.

The Finns defended the line with artillery, machine-guns and automatic rifles.

Nature of Defenses

(The Finnish defense works referred to as the "Maginot-Kirke line" by the Russians are called by the Finns the "Mannerheim line," after the commander of Finland's armed forces, Field Marshal Baron Gustaf Mannerheim. "Maginot-Kirke" combines the name of France's famed defense works with that of General Sir Walter Kirke, who headed a British military mission to Finland in 1924 and 1925. Some of the Finnish fortifications were built on his suggestion. General Kirke later became head of the British territorial army.

(The military attache of the Finnish legation in Washington said the Russians could not have broken through the Finnish "main defense line" as claimed, judging from the distance the Russians themselves said they had marched. He asserted the fortifications were not a line but, like the French and German frontier works, a deep area. The attache said the Russians might have reached the first part of this area, which he said was only lightly fortified.

(A Swedish woman newspaper correspondent reported to Stockholm that the Finns were exacting a tremendous price for the invasion of the isthmus.

Estimates on Red Forces

(She quoted a Finnish commander, Alexander Meelblom, as saying that the Russian front line forces there, counting airmen, numbered at least 100,000 with another

DIES IN COLORADO

Colorado Springs, Colo. — (AP) — Spencer Penrose, 74, who built an elaborate playground at suburban Broadmoor after making a fortune out of mining, died at his home at 12:50 a. m. today. He had suffered from a throat ailment for six months.

In the 80's, after his graduation from Harvard, Penrose joined the Cripple Creek gold rush. He succeeded there—both financially and as a welcome member of the roistering, hard-drinking crowd that sought gold on Bull hill.

230 Finnish-Americans Ready to Fight Soviet

Helsinki—(AP)—Two hundred and thirty Finnish-Americans, some of whom never before have been in Finland, arrived today to enlist in the Finnish army to fight against Russia.

A spokesman for the group said they left New York as soon as they learned Finnish independence was threatened.

They sailed for Norway, and then journeyed by train to Helsinki.

News of the Russian invasion reached them as they were waiting in a railroad station in Sweden. When they boarded their train they offered the conductor money for every minute cut off the regular schedule, the spokesman said.

The group expects to be sent to the north central sector of the front.

More Finnish-Americans will follow as soon as possible, they said.

Torpedo Sinks Dutch Vessel in English Channel

Six Members of Crew Missing; Other Ships are Lost as War Toll Grows

London—(AP)—Torpedoing of a neutral Netherlands vessel in the English channel, with the possible loss of six lives, was the high light of the European war sea campaign today.

Her owners in Amsterdam reported the destruction of the 8,159-ton motorship Tajandoen, en route to the East Indies, a journey which had been halted by the British blockade control at an English port.

The 14 passengers and 48 of the 54 crew members were rescued.

The admiralty announced today that the British naval trawler Washington, 209 tons, was sunk by a mine yesterday in the North sea with the loss of eight lives.

Two neutral ships were destroyed within the last 24 hours. The 2,135-ton Danish steamer Ove Toft sank after striking a mine in the North sea. Six members of the crew of 21 were missing. The 2,934-ton Greek steamer Paralos, with a cargo of coal, sank from an unknown cause in the Thames estuary. Three crewmen were lost, but 22 were picked up by a British vessel.

Another ship listed as apparently lost yesterday was the 8,196-ton British steamer Huntsman, which was reported "missing." The Huntsman was Britain's fifth loss this week.

The new casualties raised the total number of vessels lost in the war to 185 with a total tonnage of 740,405. Of these, 47 ships were sunk by mines, which last month sup-

Nazi Warplanes Raid Firth of Forth Zone But are Driven Back

London—(AP)—German warplanes raided the vital Firth of Forth area shortly after noon today, but the air ministry said they were driven off by British fighting planes "and one of their aircraft was seen to be hit."

Authoritative British sources also reported air engagements over the North sea yesterday in which two big German dornier flying boats were said to have been badly damaged.

No bombing was reported in today's raid on the Firth of Forth, strategic inlet on which lie Edinburgh and the Rosyth naval base.

Berlin—(AP)—An aerial combat in which a German flier finally plunged his plane directly on to a British plane, causing both to fall into the sea off the Netherlands island of Texel, was described today by DNB, official German news agency.

DNB said the two German planes and one British plane engaged in a bitter fight, with one of the nazi ships firing successive volleys on the pursuing British airman.

After the short dog fight one of the nazi ships was flown directly into a collision with the enemy, the agency said.

102-Year-Old Woman Dies at Albion Home

Edgerton, —(AP)— Mrs. Tryphosa Goodwin Wilcox, who celebrated her 102nd birthday last Oct. 16, died today at her home in Albion, near here. She was born near Ithaca, N. Y., and attended Cornell University and later Milwaukee Female college, now known as Milwaukee Downer. She had been an invalid for ten years.

PRACTICAL OR ROMANTIC?

Some people are incurable sentimentalists, living in a fanciful world all their own and basking in a utopia of flowers, moonlight, lace valentines and poetry, with never more than a fleeting thought for such commonplace nuisances as the butcher, the baker or the candlestick maker. While others are so practical they apply all their knowledge, talents and time to some useful end without ever stopping to be theoretical about it. They are much safer with their smug practicability than the romanticists — but we'll bet they don't have as much fun! G.O.P. Decides To Send 1,000 To Convention

501 Delegates Required To Nominate Presidential Candidates

24 FROM WISCONSIN

Republican Leaders Plan Drive to Wipe Out $700,000 Deficit

Washington —(AP)— The 1940 Republican national convention will have 1,000 full delegate votes, three short of the 1936 convention, according to a tentative apportionment of delegates announced today by the Republican national committee.

Thus, the majority needed to nominate presidential and vice presidential candidates will be 501.

In 1924 the total of full delegates votes was 1,109; in 1928, 1,089; in 1932, 1,154.

The committees said the small convention vote next year was due to the fact that the number of delegates was based on a bonus system which rewards those states returning presidential majorities and congressional districts where Republican candidates for the house or presidential electors poll more than 10,000 votes at the preceding elections.

Twelve states next year will have different vote totals from those in 1936. Eight of them gain a total of nine votes, while four—Connecticut, Delaware, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania—lose three each.

Eight States Gain

The states which will gain are Arkansas, 12 against 11; Illinois, 58 against 57; Massachusetts, 34 against 33; New York, 92 against 90; Oklahoma, 22 against 21; Tennessee, 18 against 17, Texas, 26 against 25, and Virginia, 18 against 17.

All the rest of the states will have the same as in 1936—Alabama 13, Arizona 6, California 44, Colorado 12, Florida 12, Georgie 14, Idaho 8, Indiana 28, Iowa 22, Kansas 18, Kentucky 22, Louisiana 12, Maine 13, Maryland 16, Michigan 38, Minnesota 22, Mississippi 11, Missouri 30, Montana 8, Nebraska 13, Nevada 6, New Jersey 32, New Mexico 6, North Carolina 23, North Dakota 8, Ohio 52, Oregon 10, Rhode Island 8, South Carolina 10, South Dakota 8, Utah, 8, Vermont 9, Washington 16, West Virginia 16, Wisconsin 24, Wy-

Miller Again Is Ejected by Force

Thrown Out of Georgia Highway Department Office 2nd Time

Atlanta —(AP)— W. L. Miller was ejected bodily, feet first, from the chairman's office of the Georgia highway department today for the second time since Governor E. D. Rivers ordered him dismissed as road chairman.

After being evicted last Saturday night, Miller inaugurated a surprise move early today and walked into his office unopposed after a temporary injunction writ had been served on his successor, Lawson L. Patten.

Similar to Saturday night, three scuffles ensued before the slender chairman was dragged from his office with gubernatorial aid S. Marvin Griffin gripping both ankles.

In two previous morning scuffles, four capitol guards had not ejected Miller.

The ousted chairman demanded a "proper order" before he would consider leaving the office. As one of the guards left to get an order, Griffin entered.

"Let's go boys," Griffin said, addressing the guards.

Miller's brother, Representative T. E. Miller of Lanier county, and his son, W. L. Miller, Jr., piled into the fray and five men hit the floor.

In a few moments the whole struggling mass was dragged through the door of the chairman's office into an adjacent reception room and the connecting door was slammed.

Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, (right) has been designated as "fuehrer" of the German-American bund to succeed Fritz Kuhn, shown at left, as he went behind the bars to begin serving a sentence of from 2½ to 5 years for grand larceny of bund funds. Nazi Leaders Wonder If England Still Is Immune to Invasion

Berlin —(AP)— German Military observers have been raising the question whether the British Isles, after 900 years of isolation, can be invaded by a foreign army. Many believe it is possible.

Taking up the battle cry of Adolf Hitler that "there no longer are any islands" in war, they declared that since the World war Britain has become part of the continent in a military sense.

Germany's air force has been one weapon that has changed the possibilities and shape of war between Britain and Germany.

In the nazi view, air raids on the Firth of Forth and Scapa Flow proved that even the most distant tip of Britain was vulnerable to air attack. Germans say that this, in turn, has helped give Germany naval domination of the North sea because the British sea forces have been driven to cover by the aerial warfare.

Therefore, they conclude, Britain has lost her insular position.

A recent military analysis of the war in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung discussed the question of an invasion of England. Sources close to the German foreign office called attention to the article—evidence of its inspiration.

Peshtigo Man Elected To Succeed Ihde as State Grange Master

Green Lake—(AP)—Niel Peck, Peshtigo, master of the Marinette County-Pomona grange, today was elected master of the Wisconsin State Grange. He succeeds Herman Ihde, Neenah, who retired after serving as master for 20 years.

Other officers chosen at the annual meeting here today included Harold Ward, of the Fairfield Grange, reelected overseer; Mrs. William Seffern, Van Dyne, lecturer; Harold Siebold of the Dotyville grange, stewart; Frank Pischke, Elo Grange, assistant Stewart, and Mrs. Herman Ihde, chaplain.

The convention was slated to end today but because considerable business still was pending this afternoon officers believed it would continue through tomorrow.

Rare Disease Fatal To Philadelphia Girl

Philadelphia—(AP)— Seven-year-old Kathryn Felt, whose mother made a national appeal for blood donors to save her from an infection, died today of pneumonia.

For seven months she fought acute lymphatic leukemia—a blood disease in which the white corpuscles destroy the red. Medical authorities said no person had ever been known to recover from the affliction. The mother, Mrs. Harry Flet, made a public plea, however, in the hope someone might be found who had recovered.

A woman, Mrs. Joseph Root, Jr., of Westport, Conn., who said she once had been treated for the disease gave the girl blood several weeks ago.

Racial Grudge Held Possible Motive in Bludgeon Slaying of German Consulate Secretary

New York —(AP)— A vengeful person with a racial or personal grudge was sought today as the bludgeon slayer of Dr. Walter Engelberg, 42, German consulate secretary.

Deputy Medical Examiner Manuel E. Martin said Engelberg, who had been in the consular service nearly 20 years, had been struck at least three times while asleep, and that the blows, with an "ax or some other heavy weapon," were so severe the man was "practically decapitated."

No weapon was found in Engelberg's Brooklyn dwelling which neighbors called "Hitler house" and which is on a dead-end street that winds up at a Jewish burial ground.

Engelberg's battered body, clad in a bloody night shirt, was found in a second-floor bedroom yesterday. Marten said the man had been dead "about 24 hours." Walls, carpet and ceiling were splashed with blood.

District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan said he believed Engelberg, a bachelor, had been slain by a "vengeance murderer," and other authorities were inclined to support this theory.

Among several persons sought in the strange case, which may develop into a mystery of international proportions, is a "middle-sized, German - speaking, stocky man with a mustache," Deputy Chief Inspector Joseph Reynolds

Burglars Get $65 At Hilbert; Blow Open School Safe

Believe Gang May be Same That Entered Appleton High Recently

Hilbert High school and three Hilbert business places were entered last night by cracksmen who escaped with $65 in cash, a radio valued at $29 and two automobile tires.

Sheriff Gerhard Jensen of Calumet county, investigating the burglaries this morning, said he believed the thefts to be the work of experts. Nytroglycerine used to blow the high school safe, together with other indications, led the sheriff to believe the burglars might be the same gang which blew the safe of Appleton high school and other high school safes around the state recently.

Struck Small Truck

At Hilbert High school, a large office safe was blown apart with nytroglycerine after the cracksmen had forced a window to enter the building, apparently after 12 o'clock last night. Part of the proceeds of the junior class play which was presented at the school last night were taken, about $40, and a radio valued at $29. The office was damaged by the explosion.

Break Combination

The combination of a safe at the Simon Schwabenlander Elevator was knocked off but the burglars apparently did not open the door of the safe, Sheriff Jensen said. The safe will be opened today to check on its contents.

An oldtime safe at the Hingiss-Bessler garage was opened and $35 in cash was taken. A check at the garage revealed two automobile tires also were stolen. The gang worked the combination of the garage safe to open it, the sheriff said.

The Heath Lumber and Fuel company also was entered but nothing was taken. The safe at the lumber company was left open by the owners who reported nothing of value was in the safe last night.

The cracksmen entered all of the buildings by forcing windows. Sheriff Jensen is gathering evidence today.

Federal Grand Jury To Get Data on Work Of Foreign Agents

Washington —(AP)— Attorney General Murphy said today that the justice department would take its inquiry in the activities of foreign agents to a grand jury in the District of Columbia within "a couple of weeks."

He told his press conference also that a special grand jury would be called the first of the year to give its exclusive attention to suspected violations by such agents of laws covering income taxes, passports and failure to register with the state department.

After the investigation gets under way in the capital, the attorney general said, evidence probably will be produced which must be "parceled out" to various sections of the country.

In the anti-trust field, he said, the department's inquiry into the building industry already has benefited the public by lowering prices and "energizing industry."

LaGuardia Puts Ban On 'Cross-Picketing'

New York—(AP)—Mayor La Guardia declared today that he would not tolerate "cross-picketing," that is, the attempt of an A. F. of L. union to picket a business which has signed with a CIO union, or vice versa.

He made this statement when a jurisdictional dispute between rival retail clerk unions was referred to him for settlement.

The AFL Clerks' union, Local 1,125, complained that on Dec. 1, the CIO Clerks' union, also numbered 1,125, began picketing a dress house which had signed an AFL labor contract.

N. G. Remmel, Menasha, Dies After Accident

Former Mayor Suffers Crushed Chest, Punctured Lung in Crash

THREE OTHERS HURT

Cars Collide at Intersection of Highways 150 And 41 Near Neenah

Menasha—N. G. Remmel, 72, former mayor of Menasha for nine terms, died at 11:10 this morning at Theda Clark hospital of injuries received in an automobile accident about an hour earlier at the intersection of Highway 150 and Superhighway 41. Remmel suffered a crushed chest and punctured lung.

Four other persons, passengers in the Remmel car, were injured, three of them seriously. Leonard McKeever, 43, and Mrs. Leonard McKeever, 41, 924 Third street, Menasha, suffered scalp lacerations and possible skull fractures.

Miss Lorraine Terrain, 15, 924 Third street, a daughter of Mrs. McKeever, received lacerations of the scalp and a possible skull fracture.

Miss Virginia McKeever, 8, 824 Third street, received multiple abrasions of the body. Mr. and Mrs. McKeever and Miss Terrain are at Theda Clark hospital.

The attending physician said that the complete extent of injuries has not been determined.

Coming from Funeral

The accident occurred when Mr. Remmel was returning from the John Madigan funeral at St. Patrick cemetery this morning. Remmel's car and one driven by B. Frank Smyth, 330 Norris Court, Madison, collided. Remmel was driving east on Highway 150 and Smyth was driving south on the superhighway when the accident occurred. Smyth escaped injury.

Smyth told Winnebago county police he was traveling about 40 miles per hour at the time of the accident. He said the Remmel car failed to stop for the arterial sign and came directly into the path of his machine. Smyth told police he swung to the left and skidded about 80 feet on the pavement. His car went between two large trees at the edge of the highway and finally stopped about 50 feet off the highway, against a smaller tree.

Struck Small Truck

Priests Urged to Be Good Soldiers

Pope Asks Clerics Under Arms to Fulfill Obligations

Vatican City—(AP)— Pope Pius XII today called on priests and clerics who are under arms to fulfill their duties as soldiers in an exemplary manner.

The pontiff issued an apostolic exhortation in which he urged the members of the clergy who are soldiers to observe "especially strict" conduct "in the field of morals."

Prior to publication of the exhortation the pope, in receiving Dino Alfieri, new Italian ambassador to the Holy See, praised the Italian government for staying out of war.

In his 2,500-word message to priests under arms Pope Pius exhorted them to piety, telling them that they could, "even in the midst of so much ruin, draw souls to salvation."

"Let there be seen in you at all times the minister of God," the exhortation said. "This character of yours ought to make of you men of duty, models of obedience to authority, without prejudice to the law of God, and of readiness for sacrifice; but it ought not, nay, it cannot, in any way or for any reason whatsoever, let you yield to any of the frivolous, corrupt or blameworthy influences that may be found in your environment.

"In the field of morals your conduct should be especially strict, without compromise, concession or weakness, that it may be at once an exhortation and an example."

Buckmans Face Federal Court About March 1

Madison —(AP)— Judge Patrict T. Stone indicated today that officers and agents of the defunct Buckman Investment company, charged with violating the federal securities law would be tried in federal court at Superior about March 1.

President B. E. Buckman, Vice President Louis C. George and Secretary E. C. Holt of Madison, who also were convicted under the state securities act, were named in the federal indictment with eight branch managers and salesmen. The indictment listed 15 counts.

Judge Stone said he would ask another federal jurist to preside because he had much to do with bankruptcy proceedings against the Buckman company and reorganization of its affiliate, the Continental Service company.

"I do not feel that I could try this matter with an open mind," he said. "I will therefore disqualify myself and call in another judge."

State Rests in Murder Trial; Kuhn Testifies

Defendant Describes Altercation in Tavern

CITES REASON

Charges Frank Pleckham, Victim, Was Immoral In Barroom

The state this morning rested its case and Mike Kuhn, Nichols, took the witness stand in his own defense in the circuit court trial in which he is charged with second degree murder in the death of Frank Pleckham, farmhand, who died after a beating in his tavern Aug. 24.

Kuhn told the jury of the altercation in which he struck Pleckham after Kuhn said Pleckham was immoral in the tavern.

The tavernkeeper, who is 30 years old, married and has four children, said he played cribbage and schafskopf for beer in his tavern early in the afternoon when Pleckham came into the place and had a nickel beer. Pleckham left after having the beer and Kuhn said he remarked to a customer that the man was "a kinda queer duck."

A short time later Kuhn said he went with Chester Martin, Waupaca county, to the Tackmann Lumber yard where they had a bottle of beer and talked for a short time. They then went to the Reinke tavern, and it was about 4 o'clock, he said.

"Miss Grace Reinke was in the tavern as we came in," Kuhn testified. "She was very nervous, her face was pale, her lower lip trembled and there were tears in her eyes. I asked her what the trouble was after she said she was glad we came in. Pleckham was in the tavern, sitting at the bar, and he left as we came in."

Girl Was Worried

Kuhn said the girl didn't tell him what the trouble was, but that she did say she would have broken the window to attract their attenion if they hadn't come into the tavern. Kuhn said he then phoned his wife and described Pleckham and told her to call him if the man came to the tavern. His wife told him, he said that Pleckham was already there.

Kuhn said he and Martin then returned to the tavern and that Pleckham was there.

"I had a couple of barrels of rubbish to haul away, and I went outside and picked up a rope to tie them to the back bumper of my car," Kuhn said. "I put the rope in my hip pocket and then asked Martin if he would like to go for a ride in my car.

Kuhn said they left the tavern and went to the Reinke tavern, later returning to the Kuhn tavern.

Talked About Pleckham

Clarence Severson, Gordon Dorrow and Pleckham were in the tavern when he got there, Kuhn testified. Dorrow called him outside, he continued, and told him about Pleckham standing in the toilet and of how Dorrow suddenly opened the door on him. Dorrow told him, Kuhn said, that Pleckham quickly turned his back and then came out.

"I went back into the tavern and got a pencil and paper. I went outside and began taking the license of Pleckham's car. As I was doing so, Dorrow called me to the window and told me to look what Pleckham was doing."

Kuhn then went into the tavern to stop Pleckham, offering him a drink.

Describes Fight

"He was looking wildly at me, and I motioned to him again to have a drink. I thought then that I would have to use some other way to stop him. He stood up and made a grab at me. I sidestepped as he grabbed my hand and I hit him on the bridge of his nose and near an eye. He fell to the floor and I straddled him.

"The rope I had hanging in my pocket was in front of me and I tried to tie Pleckham's hands. The rope went under one shoulder and around his neck. I did not pull the rope tight. Dorrow and Severson then pulled me off."

Kuhn said he had heard about attacks on women at Navarino and Black Creek and that he thought Pleckman was the man. He said he told his wife to call the constable. When he saw Pleckham move a leg, he straddled him again and once more was pulled off by Dorrow and Severson. Kuhn said he didn't want to get up and swung his arms as they attempted to pull him off. He said he shook Pleckham by the shoulders.

When Vernon Ness came into the tavern he said he warned Ness that Pleckham was dangerous and that he shouldn't turn his back to the man who still was on the floor.

Tells Constable

When Constable Carl Krull came into the tavern, Kuhn said he told him that Pleckham was the man who was attacking women.

"I saw Pleckham's leg move and I tried to straddle him again, but I was prevented from doing so," Kuhn said.

He said that when the man was placed in a car outside, he warned Krull not to drive to the jail alone with Pleckham. He saw Pleckham move in the back seat, he said, and rolled down the back window and

FATALLY INJURED

N. G. Remmel, 72, a former mayor of Menasha for nine terms, died at 11:10 this morning of a crushed chest and punctured lung suffered in an automobile crash at 10:15 at the intersection of Highways 150 and 41 near Neenah. Cars driven by Remmel and B. Frank Smyth, Madison, collided at the intersection while Remmel and his party were returning from a funeral. Three others were injured seriously in the crash. Council Votes to Study Insurance Program for City

Aldermen Will Make Informal Investigation Of Policies

Out of a discussion of insurance and a bond for the city treasurer at last night's council meeting grew an agreement among Appleton aldermen to meet soon in an informal session and study insurance carried on city-owned property with a view to possible reductions in cost.

Alderman VanderHeyden, chairman of the insurance committee brought up the subject when he informed the council that through efforts of his committee, the insurance on equipment in city hall, originally placed at $25,000 had been reduced to $15,000 while still maintaining the same low rate. The building is insured for $75,000.

Alderman Keller suggested the meeting to discuss insurance stating "we are dealing with taxpayers' money and we should attempt to reduce the cost of insurance as much as we can."

VanderHeyden Objects

Assuming that Alderman Keller was talking about the state insurance plan, which reputedly would reduce the cost of insurance in the city about 50 per cent, Alderman VanderHeyden objected. He said he thought selling insurance a legitimate work and the men selling it ought to be entitled to make a living.

"If you're going into state insurance why not put it all in. All you do is build up state funds and what's happened to them. I'm in the insurance business but I welcome

Klink Testifies In Extortion Case

Declares Former Sheriff Promised to 'Pay All The Damages'

Juneau —(AP)— Eugene Klink, attendant at the Dodge county asylum, testified today that former Sheriff Henry Lehmann promised to "pay all the damages" resulting from an anonymous letter written by Mrs. Lehmann concerning conditions at the county institution.

Klink and Dr. F. L. O'Neil are on trial in circuit court on charges of extortion which Judge Henry Detling refused yesterday to dismiss after the prosecution rested.

Lehmann previously had testified that he paid Klink $1,400 in 1938 following threats that Mrs. Lehmann would be prosecuted on criminal slander charges.

Klink denied that he ever made any threats of criminal prosecution against Mrs. Lehmann. He said the only reference to Taycheedah (site of the state prison for women) in any conference was made by Mrs. Lehmann.

Klink testified that numerous conferences were held concerning the letter and that Lehmann stated twice he would pay for damages.

Government Asks Rehearing on Oil Anti-Trust Case

Wants Tribunal to Act Again After New Justice Has Been Named

Washington — (AP)—The government asked the supreme court yesterday to rehear the Madison, Wis., oil anti-trust case after a new justice is appointed to the seat of the late Pierce Butler.

On Nov. 22 the high tribunal upheld by an equally divided court the action of Federal District Judge Patrick Stone in dismissing indictments against 11 defendants six months after they had been convicted by a jury.

Justice Butler died before the high court's decision and had not participated in the case. It was his absence which made possible the equally divided court. In the case of a tie vote the lower court's action stands.

The government had challenged the right of the district judge to dismiss the defendants after the jury had found them guilty.

In dismissing the indictments, Judge Stone acted on motions for directed verdicts made by counsel for the defendants before the case went to the jury.

Stone's Argument

Counsel for Judge Stone said he had postponed a decision in order to have time to study the voluminous record. The government argued that at one stage of the proceedings Judge Stone had denied the motions for directed verdict and was powerless to act later on.

The dismissed defendants were among a large number charged with conspiracy to fix the prices of gasoline in 10 midwestern states.

Yesterday's petition said the high court's determination was a "matter of wide concern to federal district judges, to government prosecutors, and to defendants in criminal cases in the federal court.

Affirmation by an equally divided court, the petition added, "leaves this question in the highest degree of uncertainty."

"Until this uncertainty is dispelled," it continued, "federal district judges will hesitate to follow the procedure approved by the decision of the court below and defendants in criminal prosecutions will be in doubt as to their rights respecting one of the more common procedural steps, a motion for a directed verdict. The desirability of certainty in the rules governing criminal practice and procedure is beyond question.

Hear 5 Witnesses In Momsen Trial

Milwaukeean Accused of Fraud, Conspiracy In Job 'Racket'

Milwaukee —(AP)— Five out-of-state witnesses testified yesterday concerning their dealings with Associated Adjusters, Inc., whose former president, Jennings B. Momsen is being tried in federal court here on 39 counts charging conspiracy and using the mails to defraud.

The government accuses Momsen, 40-year-old Milwaukeean, with inducing 60,000 persons to become "associates" and pay $5 fees with the expectation of securing employment as insurance adjusters.

After Judge F. Ryan Duffy overruled defense objections one of the witnesses offered "expert" testimony on the qualifications and training necessary for insurance adjusters.

The witness, Hugh E. Combs, vice president in charge of adjustments for the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, of Baltimore, said his firm did not accept anyone as adjusters except attorneys.

He and George Hoff, local representative of the firm, said they had bonded Milton Burmeister, listed on the Associated Adjuster's letterhead as an attorney, for $1,000 but subsequently had cancelled the bond.

Others who testified were Harry Culbertson, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; S. H. Bertsten, of De Kalb, Ill.; Walter S. Cornell, of Clare, Mich., and Eugene Duggan, of Chicago.

Wisconsin Cheese Urged as an Ideal Gift for Christmas

Urging Wisconsin cheese as an ideal Christmas gift, an intensive advertising campaign designed to move at least 250,000 pounds of natural Wisconsin cheese during the holiday season has been undertaken cooperatively by the Wisconsin Cheesemakers association, the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and the Blatz Brewing Co. of Milwaukee.

After a start last year, the cheesemakers association named a Christmas gift package committee which has worked out the details of supplying grocers with attractively wrapped Wisconsin cheese and the publicity to promote its sale. Two kinds of cheese, best Wisconsin American cheddar and Wisconsin cured Swiss, will be offered. The cheese has been selected from choice factories and is packaged and wrapped under the supervision of state inspectors.

Trade associations, chambers of commerce, luncheon clubs and other civic organizations are assisting in the promotion, it is said.

this meeting. There are other ways to reduce the cost of insurance," he said.

Alderman Keller explained he didn't mean taking out state insurance but wanted the meeting just to study the city's insurance program and to seek methods of reducing where possible.

Alderman VanderHeyden then suggested that about $150 could be saved if the treasurer's bond were cut to about $50,000 instead of $100,000, the amount now placed on the office. He said such a large amount is not necessary the year around.

Want Committee Study

The council agreed but on Alderman Keller's suggestion wanted the problem referred to the finance committee before any action was taken.

Alderman VanderHeyden said: "Why can't the insurance committee do it?"

Alderman Keller came back with: "Why don't you then? You're the one that's asking for information."

In the end, the problem was referred to the finance committee which will make a recommendation to the council at its next meeting.

Mayor Goodland presented a simplified summary of the city budget and tax levy, adopted by aldermen last week for "some of the members of the council who didn't understand when the action was taken.

"I have heard some very nasty insinuations about how the mayor got up this budget and tax levy," the mayor said. "I can assure you it wasn't made out any differently this year than in the past. I've tabulated the amounts so it will be very easy to understand and if any of you don't understand, I wish you'd come to the mayor and get an explanation."

Safety Guard Rail

Accidents on Memorial drive bridge this week, one that might have been serious, prompted the council to talk about some kind of safety guard rail for the protection of motorists and pedestrians crossing the bridge.

Mayor Goodland said he has had several calls from persons asking the city to provide a guard rail and referred the matter to the street and bridge committee.

Alderman Knuijt said he also has had calls and said it's about time the council did something about it. He said he knows of a feasible guard that could be installed on the bridge for about $800.

"Why wait for fatalities?" he asked. "That car the other day could have plunged into the river or a pedestrian walking along the sidewalk might have been injured or killed. This problem should have prompt action."

Alderman Grignon said motorists drive too fast coming into the city from the country, Alderman Keller suggested signs cautioning drivers of a dangerous bridge ahead.

Protect Children

Alderman Brautigam said: "We'll have to do something before a couple of kids are killed. Our first consideration is protection of kids crossing the bridge. We know these things happen and will continue to happen."

Alderman Bogan said a guard rail will only be "temptation for children to walk on it and cause more accidents. A careful driver wouldn't go over the curb on the bridge or be anywhere near it. Accidents on the bridge, about 90 per cent of them, are caused by speeding or reckless driving."

Alderman Falatick said: "There's a traffic hazard on the bridge. The kids might walk the rail but some action ought to be taken to properly guard the bridge.

Elimination of costs charged against motorists when they are fined for overtime parking again was before the council when Alderman McGillan asked what had become of a resolution he submitted about a year ago.

Parking Fines

Mayor Goodland said he had a note to remind the council about it and maintained something ought to be done to cut the cost of parking fines.

"Neenah charges $1.75, Madison $1 and Green Bay $1 while Appleton gets $3.95," he said. "I think it's a holdup for a car at the curb can't hurt anyone while a speeder or light jumper can."

"Why if you park your car for 10 minutes overtime, you're taken to court and have to plead guilty like some drunk or like you do for stealing," the mayor complained. "We've had this up with Judge Ryan but he said he won't remit the costs but is willing if the county board will authorize him to do so. The board meets again in February, so let's get going."

The council referred the matter to the traffic committee which will frame a resolution to present to the county board at its February meeting.

Bus Licenses

Alderman VanderHeyden, chairman of the license committee, reported his committee will hold a meeting to which bus company operators in Appleton will be invited before anything is done about licenses on buses for 1940. The committee will study the new law permitting cities to license busses.

An ordinance permitting property owners to pay their real estate taxes in two installments again this year was referred to the ordinance committee and will be presented at the next meeting of the council.

A 1939 truck for the street department was purchased from the Gibson company for $415. A 1929 truck was traded on the new machine. The council also purchased a truck tire and tube from the Firestone company for $85 and three truck tires from the Appleton Tire shop for $56.38 each.

Will Fill Alley

Aldermen voted to fill the alley south of College avenue from Superior street to a half block east of Walnut street. The alleys will be filled about 2½ feet.

The Neenah Foundry company, Neenah, was given the contract to furnish the city with 150 catchbasin frames at $12 each and 300 manhole steps at 35 cents each. The American Casting Service, Chicago, received the contract to furnish 40 manhole frames at $11.80 each.

Construction of a 15-inch storm sewer on Roosevelt street from Alvin street to Clark street under the WPA program was approved by the council.

Aldermen voted to place benches for skaters in all of the city's ice rinks this winter and voted to install a street light at the new ring on Badger avenue across from the senior high school.

A new street light at the intersection of Carpenter and Maple streets also was approved.

BRITAIN DOESN'T EXPECT U. S. HELP

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, returning home for the Christmas season, was greeted by his wife when he arrived in New York on the Dixie Clipper. They are shown at the airport. He said the British government had no expectation that this country would enter the war.

Heil Hasn't Made Up His Mind About Running in 1940, He Says

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Governor Julius Heil, replying to a direct question on his plans for 1940, yesterday said that "a fellow can't do what he wants to in two years. Lots of people have asked me to run for reelection."

It was the first time the governor had allowed himself to be quoted on inquiries relating to his future. Earlier he had smilingly waved aside a question inspired by Republican party reports that he might be a candidate for the United States senate against Robert M. LaFollette Jr.

"To be frank," the chief executive replied to the question, "I haven't thought about it. I haven't yet made up my mind."

Pointing to the illness of Mrs. Heil, who has been confined to a Milwaukee hospital in recent weeks, he said that he could not outline definite plans for the new year before she recovers.

Earlier Heil had been reported as telling the Republican legislative caucus, during a debate over a proposed revenue bill, that he was confident of reelection, arguing that a vote for new taxes should not concern Republican lawmakers anxious to be reelected.

"The thing is," the governor remarked Wednesday, "a fellow can't do what he wants in two years."

"If only the citizenship would cooperate with a fellow. If only everyone would pull together," he observed feelingly.

British Aid to Finland May Prompt Russia to Join Arms With Germany Against Allies

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—It will be both highly interesting and illuminating to get Russia's reaction to the announcement that British firms are to supply Finland with a score of fighting planes and "a considerable quantity" of other war materials.

This constitutes a very blunt rebuke to the Soviet union by England for the Muscovites' invasion of Finland, since such exportation of war materials must have government sanction.

And it undoubtedly is more than a rebuke, being intended as a warning against further adventures of this kind in other fields.

Any doubt as to its significance is removed by the fact that a few hours prior to the disclosure the British governments had expressed sympathy for the Finns. And Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax had characterized the Russian invasion as "an inexcusable act of aggression."

Inspires Speculation

Without suggesting for a moment that this development might provide a casus belli between England and Russia, it does inspire speculation as to what it would mean if Russia should join arms with Germany against the Anglo-French fraternity, as some observers think might happen.

This question cropped up in interesting form the other night over at New Haven where I went to make a talk on Europe's spot of bother before the Yale Press club. Several of us were chatting and somebody asked what the honest-to-goodness strength is of Russia's vast fighting machine which has been so widely discussed for years.

That's easy to answer. So far as I am aware nobody knows either inside Russia or outside it. I heard this all-important subject discussed in every capital of eastern Europe and the Balkans when I was there a year ago, and without exception the conclusion of the experts was:

The Russian army is numerically the biggest body of troops on earth. There are maybe 18,000,000 or more men quickly available for service, if they could be armed. But the efficacy of this fighting machine and its equipment is a wholly unknown quantity, because it never has been tried out.

Would Prolong War

Not even Moscow will know its own strength until Russia gets into a major war and gives its new army a tryout on a big scale. The fighting in Finland hasn't given a conclusive test thus far and probably won't.

We can say without much doubt that Russia's entry into the war on Germany's side would prolong the conflict.

However, I think we must gauge the matter from the standpoint of supplies of foodstuffs and war materials, rather than from that of soldiers and bayonets. This is true because the land defenses on both sides in the western theater are so nearly impregnable as to make it seem probable that the outcome of the war would be determined by the British blockade and the German counter measures.

That this idea may be in German minds is indicated in a dispatch from Berlin, quoting an article by Emil Helferrich, one of Germany's leading economists, in Field Marshal Goering's periodical "The Four Year Plan." Helferrich says at one point:

"We must face the facts. They are the same as in 1914-18. England's power has brought German overseas trade to a complete standstill."

That's bad, because even in normal times Germany is dependent upon the outside world for 20 per cent of her supplies. She is scurrying about trying to get them from the Balkans and Scandinavia, but there is still a big shortage and some of the missing supplies are indispensable for war.

Grand Champion Steer Is Sold for $1.35 Per Pound

Chicago—(AP)—Lucky Boy, grand champion steer of the International Livestock exposition, today sold at auction for $1.35 a pound.

The price paid for the handsome Hereford steer, raised in Texas, was only a dime above the depression low of $1.25 which was paid in 1932. The 16 months old steer weighed 1,220 pounds and brought $1,647 to its owner, Mayfield Kothmann, 18, a 4-H club boy from Mason county, Texas.

The steer was purchased by Pfaelzer brothers, a commission firm at the Chicago Union Stock Yards, for "the good of the industry."

Lucky Boy's sale price was $2 a pound below that paid for Irene Brown's handsome Aberdeen-Angus steer last year which brought $3.35 a pound and later was eaten at a rubber company executives dinner in New York after a nationwide tour.

The all-time high price for grand championship steer auctions was reached in 1929 when Lucky Strike, an Iowa product, sold for $8.25 a pound.

The Texas steer was the product of a pure blooded sire and an ordinary range cow.

Roy Johnston, the auctioneer, from Belton, Mo., had trouble getting the price paid past what he called the "depression low."

Kothmann led the animal into the ring and smoothed it nervously as the auctioneer sought bids.

Lucky Boy already had brought his owner $775 in prize money and the sale price brought his total "take" to $2,422.

The reserve champion steer of the show, also a Texas Hereford, sold at 50 cents a pound and was purchased for the Chez Paree, a Chicago night club. Last year's reserve champion sold for 75 cents a pound.

Champion Carload

The grand champion carload of steers—they were Aberdeen-Angus—sold at 23 cents a pound, exactly the same price as last year. The 15 steers in the carload averaged 1,054 pounds and were sold to Isbell's, a Chicago restaurant.

The grand champion steer carcass was exhibited by Neal Streeter, New Windsor, Ill., another 4-H club boy, who also won this honor two years ago. Streeter's carcass came from an Aberdeen-Angus steer weighing between 1,000 and 1,400 pounds alive. The steer failed to win a prize alive.

The reserve grand champion carcass, also an Aberdeen-Angus, was exhibited by Ethel Domer, Stanwood, Iowa, also a 4-H club member.

The champion carcasses will be sold tomorrow.

The grand champion red polled bull, Perfect Model, was owned by H. P. Olson, Altona, Ill. It was the sixth consecutive year that Perfect Model had been declared champion.

The champion sheep carcass was exhibited by Henning brothers, Hicksville, Ohio, on a Southdown lamb. The reserve champion was exhibited by Helms Brothers, Belleville, Ill., also on a Southdown lamb.

Society to Mark 50th Anniversary

Children's Aid Organization Will Hold Dinner Tonight

Appleton and Outagamie county will be represented at the annual dinner meeting of the Children's Aid Society of Wisconsin tonight at the Pfister hotel in Milwaukee, at which the society will celebrate its 50th year.

Dr. Weston A. Price of Cleveland, O., will discuss the influence of physical heredity in child development. Mrs. F. G. Harwood of Appleton, who is secretary of the Outagamie county advisory board, said yesterday she planned to attend and that several other members of the board probably would be present.

During the year the Children's Aid Society sponsored the welfare of 1,458 dependent children. Of this number, 560 were cared for in foster homes. The society is the only privately supported, non-sectarian agency which operates throughout the entire state. It is licensed to receive and place children in adoptive homes and to issue permits to foster homes. In all, it has found adoptive homes for nearly 5,000 children.

In counties throughout the state support is received from local fund organizations, county board appropriations, individual donations and bequests.

U. S. Offers Supplies To Cleveland, Toledo

Cleveland —(AP)— With the federal government doubling shipments of surplus commodities and $1,200,000 forthcoming through the sale of tax delinquency bonds, Cleveland breathed easier today over its immediate relief crisis as officials here and in Toledo, the staff's two hardest hit cities, pressed their hunt for the possible added revenues to carry on until Jan. 1.

Mayor Harold H. Burton said the $1,200,000 would not restore normal relief rations, but added:

"The bonds mean that we can keep conditions from getting worse. No one is starving and no one will starve before Jan. 1."

Dewey Talk Hits At Weak Spot in New Deal Record

Campaign Speech Attacks Failure to Bring About Reemployment

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington— A refreshing point of view—perhaps the courage of youth itself—emerges from the first campaign speech of Thomas E. Dewey in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

Lawrence

It is a different kind of speech from those which have been delivered on the stump in the last few years. It is an address that aims to inspire ambition and incentive and to stimulate producers and enterprisers to create jobs.

For several weeks, the candidacy of the New York district attorney has been drifting along in a sort of semi-obscurity. It had been intended that several speeches be made before this, but the war crisis put the country out of mood so far as politics was concerned. Now, however, with both political parties agreeing that America must be kept out of war, the emphasis has shifted again to domestic issues.

Mr. Dewey's address is a penetrating attack on the most vulnerable spot in the New Deal record—the fact that it has failed to bring reemployment for those previously idle and for those who have come of working age. The reason given by the Republican spokesman at Minneapolis is that the New Deal has crushed the spirit and the initiative out of American industry and that it has left the whole economic system in a mood of despair and defeatism.

Agree With Thesis

To a large extent, American business men will agree with the thesis which Mr. Dewey has chosen. They have been saying for several years that they would not mind government regulation so much if it were specific and concrete and not merely the whim of bureaus, commissions and boards or the vindictive attitude of economic partisans. Mr. Dewey puts his finger on the weakness in the American economic machine—the lack of energy and enthusiasm on the part of the builders of jobs. What keeps them back? What impediments have been imposed on the economic system which the administration after seven years stubbornly refuses to correct?

Mr. Dewey did not mention particular measures, but delivered his first broadside on the general position of the New Deal toward the system of private initiative. His doctrine can be summed up in a sentence:

"We can cure abuses in business without creating abuses in government."

Just the opposite formula, he feels has been tried in Washington in the last seven years—a formula that considers business to be built to capacity and ready for government dissection or government competition.

Program Of Expansion

What the New York candidate announces is that he believes in a program of expansion which will enable America to pay her debts and fulfill her social obligations to the sick and the needy, the old and the young. But it is jobs that Mr. Dewey emphasizes, and he calls attention to the "idle men and idle machines" which have characterized the business situation until the war brought on the recent spurt.

Mr. Dewey's first speech revealed an interesting style of campaigning. He does not condemn the New Deal 100 per cent. He gives it credit for sincere intentions and sincere effort to fulfill its pledges. But he condemns it as incompetent and inadequate and points out that, while the administration has worthwhile objectives, it does not know how to fulfill them.

This strategy is the kind that will appeal to fair-minded and progressive citizens in both the Republican and Democratic parties, and separates Mr. Dewey at the very outset from those in the Republican party who believe that everything the New Deal did or tried was wrong and that the way to restore employment and prosperity is to clean out the whole thing.

Mr. Dewey will come to be known as the progressive candidate, as distinguished from the conservatives who are going to be competing with him for the nomination. He will make a colorful race. He has an excellent radio voice and all the vigor of youth plus an enthusiasm for the battle which resembles that of Theodore Roosevelt, the last truly progressive Republican to sit in the White House. Incidentally, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is one of a dozen advisers who consult with Mr. Dewey daily on campaign strategy.

Hopes to Enlist Poles From U. S. and Canada

Somewhere-in-France —(AP)—General Wladyslaw Sikorski, premier of the Polish government in exile and commander of the Polish legion in training to fight Germany, hopes to recruit 200,000 more soldiers from the United States and Canada.

Without counting the thousands it hopes to enlist from Polish colonies in America, the Polish command expects to have a fighting force in France of 75,000 when three more divisions are added to the two already formed. The Polish division numbers 15,000 men.

The Poles in the present two divisions are mostly miners from northern France and Belgium.

Their comrades-in-arms include remnants of the shattered Polish forces who fought Germans and Russians in September and lived to escape to France through neutral countries.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Cigaret Tax Has Brought Million Dollars to State

Liquor Revenues are Bright Spot in Wisconsin Financial Picture

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—One of the brighter spots in the Heil administration's financial picture, officials pointed out today, is the consistently heavy return this year from liquor and beer taxes, and a realization of the administration's optimistic forecasts on the yield of the new cigaret tax.

John W. Roach, head of the beverage tax division, said today he was confident that the cigaret tax of 2 cents a package, effective since Sept. 20, will raise the $6,000,000 which administration financial advisors estimated it would produce when it was enacted by the 1939 legislature. When that estimate originally was made, critics claimed that it was too high.

Since September, the cigaret tax has raised almost a million dollars, beverage tax division reports disclosed today, while revenues from beer and liquor are far ahead of 1938.

Total Receipts

Through November of this year, the liquor tax receipts totalled $1,863,527, compared with only $1,441,406 for the same period last year.

Through the same date the total beer tax collections, less refunds, was $1,012,020, compared with only $876,183 last year during the same period.

That the beverage taxes have constituted a financial bonanza for the state government since the repeal of the prohibition laws is shown in the fact that since April, 1935, the state has realized about $34,000,000 from those sources, more than enough to operate the entire state government for a whole year.

TAPPI Section Will Hear Two Talks at Meeting in Madison

Preceding the meeting, those attending will make an inspection trip through the Forest Products laboratory.

24 Youths Appear at Bicycle Safety School

Twenty-four bicyclists appeared at the bicycle safety school during November for failing to observe rules of safe driving, according to Sergeant Carl Radtke, head of the police traffic division. Four cyclists had their driving privileges suspended for limited periods for repeated infractions of the safe riding regulations.

Causes for appearances were riding more than one on a bicycle 5, parking on sidewalk 1, failure to obey traffic signals 4, riding without lights 15 and riding on sidewalk 4.

Attack on Finland May Benefit Pulp Industry in State

European Situation Should Curb Import Competition

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The misfortunes of Finland, now under attack from Russia, may be the means of giving Wisconsin's declining pulpwood industry new life, according to Wisconsin public service commission experts.

The commission pointed out today that a recent hearing on pulpwood freight rates, representatives of pulp manufacturers testified that Wisconsin pulpwood was being driven from the market as the result of imports from Canada and the Scandinavian countries.

The war between England and France and Germany had little effect on shipments from Scandinavia to the United States because Russia was cooperating with the Scandinavian nations in directing cargoes through the Baltic, it was said.

But with Russia's fleet engaged in war with Finland, shipments of pulpwood may not be able to pass through the blockades, it was believed here.

Protest New Rates

The pulpwood freight case came before the commission when the Wisconsin Paper and Pulp Manufacturers association charged that new freight rates filed by the railroads are unreasonable and unlawful.

Wisconsin railroads had filed rates on pulpwood 10 per cent higher than those which had been in effect.

After public hearing, Phil Porter, commission transportation chief, submitted a report to the rate body recommending that the increase be limited to 5 per cent. Railroads protested this report and asked a chance to argue the questions before the full commission at a public hearing. That hearing has been scheduled for Dec. 19 in the capitol.

Roosevelt Convention Delay Is No Break for Republicans

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Republicans composing the party's national executive committee meet here this week considerably upset by President Roosevelt's attempt to delay the national nominating conventions. They wanted to hold their convention after the Democratic convention instead of before as has been the custom. But they think Mr. Roosevelt is proposing too much of a good thing.

Clapper

For many months, Republican national chairman John Hamilton has had in mind holding his convention last. True, the Democrats, no matter who their administration. That inevitably becomes the general candidate is, must run on the record of the Roosevelt target of the Republican campaign. So far as that aspect is concerned, Republicans could meet either before or after the Democrats, without having their own platform affected.

But another consideration enters. It is not alone the much-discussed uncertainty regarding a third-term race by Mr. Roosevelt. If the Republicans meet first, they lose an opportunity to cultivate dissident Democrats. If the Democrats meet first, any candidate who is nominated will be viewed with coolness by some important groups of Democrats. These hesitant Democrats may be disposed to wait and see who the Republican candidate is before deciding whether to stay with the Democratic ticket.

In such a situation Republicans would have opportunity to cultivate such rebellious Democrats and play upon the divisions with the Democratic ranks. But if the Republican candidate already were selected, such opportunity would be lost.

An important part of Republican strategy next year will be to divide the Democrats. To make the most of that plan of campaign, Republicans must hold back until the Democrats have named their own candidate.

Too Much Delay Can Hamper Organization

There are limits to the delay that either party can accept without serious damage to campaign organization. Mr. Roosevelt suggests waiting until September to nominate the candidates. Practical politicians point out that while the speaking campaigns never begin until September, the months of July and August are devoted to the most important organization work of the campaign. That is when the new national committee is setting up its campaign organization — and that must be built around the new candidate. The new campaign organization must be founded upon men of his personal choice. That is when the money is raised, and big campaign contributors do not sign checks until they know who the candidate is—they're funny that way. Radio and motion-picture arrangements must be made weeks in advance. State and county committees often need to be reorganized. The new national chairman must get about and make his contracts. All of this intense activity, of which the public sees little, is most important in preparing the way for the candidate's speaking later, and this work must be done before the active campaign opens.

Republicans Troubled By Debt of $700,000

These are some of the worries that will be talked over among the Republican party leaders meeting here this week.

Also they are trying to find $700,000 with which to wipe out the debts of the 1936 campaign. Chairman Hamilton has paid off $500,000 of the 1936 debt and has managed to pay current expenses of party headquarters, which are the most elaborate ever maintained between elections. But the Republicans, who expect to make much of the budget-balancing issue, rightly feel that they cannot denounce the Roosevelt administration for going into debt when they themselves still owe a 4-year-old party debt of $700,000.

Furthermore, this money is owed mostly to radio broadcasters, printers, and the like, who are not going to be in any frame of mind to extend new credit to the Republicans when large debts are left unpaid from 1936.

Meantime work is being done on advance campaign plans for next year. These are to be submitted to all major Republican presidential aspirants, so that no matter who is nominated he will have ready for immediate use the results of a vast amount of detail work undertaken with his prior knowledge and approval. So far as headquarters organization work is concerned, the next Republican candidate will begin his fight with a more complete assortment of tools than is usually the case. Most candidates walk into complete chaos.

New Commissioner of Insurance Was One of Outstanding Members of State Legislature

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles on new high state officials under the Heil state administration. Others will appear from time to time.)

BY JOHN A. WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — When the average state capitol politician, and particularly a legislator, chats with a friend or colleague it is likely to be over a highball at the bar. When Morvin Duel, recently of the Wisconsin state senate and now commissioner of insurance, wants a social talk he takes the friend to a drug store for a limeade.

That is only one of the characteristics which make Commissioner Duel stand out from the crowd in state politics and in the legislature. But together with his sobriety, he has a reputation for calm reflection and scholarship which made him easily one of the outstanding members of the state legislature during the last two sessions.

Most of Duel's life was spent in a rural community as a farm boy and as a rural school teacher. But he has the academic appearance of a college professor, a man who toils with books and ideas. Smartly groomed, fluent of speech, altogether the gentleman, he is the antithesis of the forward insurance salesman and leading member of the intensely partisan, rough and tumble arena which is the state senate. But he is, or was, both.

Violate Pledge

Duel's appointment to the position of insurance commissioner — a $5,000, 6-year post — violated without qualification one of the most publicized pledges of the Republican party in 1938, the one opposing appointment of state legislators to state office.

It is noteworthy, therefore, that the criticism which the appointment aroused was inspired by the inconsistency of the action with the Fond du Lac convention pledge of last year; it was not against the appointee. Duel's appointment was generally approved, although there were some arched brows at Heil's shattering of the platform. A deep tribute was paid to the man when the Catlin resolution calling attention to the platform was howled down in the state senate without a record vote.

During two sessions of the legislature—he was elected in 1936 — Senator Duel exercised a potent influence on the course of legislative affairs which was not always apparent except to the closest observers. He spoke infrequently, but when he did his colleagues listened respectfully and attentively. He spoke calmly and clearly, without the excited eloquence of more prominent orators whose remarks crashed the headlines. More important was his work in counseling with administration men on legislation. His influence was not in oratory, but in the caucus, in the cloak room conferences, in the hotel room bull sessions.

Knew the Score

Week after week during the long months of the session he left his Fond du Lac home a day and often more ahead of the rest of the members of both houses in order to be in his senate seat to read the proposals of other members. Perhaps it was because he was kept so busy following the legislation introduced by 132 others that he found time to introduce only one bill himself during his two terms in the upper house. However, it never could be said—as it is said of some members—that he didn't know what he was voting for or against.

A little man and inobtrusive, Duel's favorite perch was a chair in the lobby of a Madison hotel during the legislative session. While his more prominent seat-mates held forth in the bar next door, Duel talked with his friends in the lobby.

Born on a farm in Fond du Lac county 51 years ago, Duel graduated from Oshkosh Teachers' college. He taught in a rural school, and was principal of the high school at Withee in Clark county. There he started to study law in his spare time, and formed a friendship with a young county prosecutor who 25 years later was to be a political opponent on the senate floor, Walter J. Rush, veteran Progressive legislator.

Gives Up Law Studies

Later, he became county superintendent of schools in Fond du Lac county, and during his incumbency in that office he gave up the ambition to become a lawyer, an act which he says he has always regretted. (He is now one of the few Wisconsin insurance commissioners who was not a lawyer). Eighteen years ago he retired from his school office and entered the insurance business.

While Duel was in the senate, partly because of his reputation in the Republican party but also because he was able to be elected by a handsome majority in 1936 when other G. O. P. candidates found the going exceedingly rough, observers have speculated on his possible future. When Frank Keefe, sixth district congressman, began to be talked about as a possible candidate for the United States senate, his name was included in the list of men who were considered potential congressional timber.

But when Governor Heil named him insurance commissioner several months ago, pages in the senate were instructed to clear his desk and his files of the store of political ammunition which had accumulated there during the preceding months. That stock was consigned to the waste-basket. Thus it may be concluded that he has no plans for the next few years at least to venture into elective competition.

RESPECTED IN STATE CIRCLES

Though most of his life was spent in a rural community as a farm boy and as a rural school teacher, Morvin Duel, new commissioner of insurance, has the academic appearance of a college professor. Smartly groomed and fluent of speech, he is respected highly in state political circles.

OUR RELATIONS WITH MOSCOW

If the Roosevelt Administration were consistent our Ambassador would be immediately withdrawn from Russia on account of the dastardly criminal attack upon Finland.

But somewhere in his career our noble President read that "Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds," and not realizing that the quotation was created to justify little minds in following little specks, permitted himself to be too much controlled by a mistaken conception.

That does not mean that we believe diplomatic relations should be broken off with Russia. We do not. But if it were right and proper to act toward Berlin as we acted at the time Hitler loosened his insensate fury upon the helpless Jews, we would.

A fair understanding of nations and of international relations should prohibit the breaking or benumbing of relations between countries excepting as the same is made absolutely necessary by armed conflict itself.

Nevertheless our six years of direct communication with the Soviet that Mr. Roosevelt established by an agreement with Litvinov has been one long headache for America. Every material promise that Russia made has been violated, and the violation has been with a contemptuous disregard of world opinion or of the thing called decency.

For instance, Russia agreed to open negotiations with us for the settlement of the one hundred eighty-seven million dollars that nation owed Americans who bought its bonds prior to World War No. 1. and other claims that grew out of the confiscation of the property of American concerns in Russia. The negotiations were started but the Soviet government refused all American offers and finally refused to recognize any liability whatever.

Our treaty of 6 years ago also contained a clause to the effect that no Soviet activities would be extended to American soil. In face of that written agreement the Communist International convened in Moscow, welcomed American delegates, participated in setting up counterfeit establishments to make American money and issue American passports to its spies, and otherwise recommended sabotage in the United States.

The protest made by our State Department was answered curtly by Moscow with a jewel of wisdom to the effect that it had nothing to do with the Communist International.

Furthermore the Roosevelt-Litvinov treaty provided protection and good treatment for Americans arrested in Russia with the provision that within 3 days after the arrest of an American in any large Russian city, and 7 days elsewhere, our embassy would be notified and our diplomats permitted to interview those arrested.

Not even the slightest good faith has attended this paragraph. The American embassy usually learned that Americans were imprisoned when they had lost communication with their homes for so long a time that their relatives complained to Washington. Instead of permitting free communication between prisoners and representatives of this country, interviews were permitted only in the presence and hearing of OGPU agents who stopped the conversations whenever they seemed to tread upon subjects the agents did not want discussed.

While the time has long since come when we should take stock of the petty and vicious methods of the Moscow government and call that government on the carpet in no uncertain manner that does not mean that we should terminate our relations entirely. It means, we think, that the question should be examined thoroughly to see whether or not there are present in it conditions that might be acted upon to make Moscow realize that it cannot with impunity so mistreat its written obligations to this country. In other words, we could punish Moscow with the cat-o'-nine-tails of economic action. The mere threat of withdrawing from Russia every American, particularly architects and engineers, who have been attempting to beat into the dull and stolid Mongol head some of the fine points of civilization, and incidentally of industrial supremacy, would probably have done more than a mere flourish of rhetoric.

But regimes come and go whereas nations, or most of them, last forever, and the relations between them should not be broken off, however strained they may become, except as war compels them to be rent asunder.

And still if Mr. Roosevelt's withcalling of our ambassador from Berlin were proper procedure, how can he possibly leave our ambassador at Moscow under the circumstances?

A BAD TASTE

One of the incidents which the men who had the responsibility of leadership and the pleasures of power in the last session of the legislature will probably live to regret popped up again the other day when the attorney general of the state was asked for an opinion on the legality of an appropriation.

Early in the 1939 session it was brought out that a number of legislators' cronies were put on the legislative payroll without benefit of the civil service law. Although the legislature has been overstaffed for years, having normally about one payroller to serve each member, the exigencies of policies demanded that the staff be made even bigger, despite the critical condition of the state treasury.

So legislative officers worked out a plan by which those employes who were regularly hired were to contribute to a "kitty" to be used to pay those employed illegally. The scheme worked well enough until some of the former complained about a system which deprived them of a portion of their earnings. The matter got to the district attorney, who held an investigation, and legislative officers decided their device wasn't so cute after all. An easy way out seemed to be to pass a law That's what the legislature was there for, to pass laws. And pass a law they did, a law which validated a violation of the law, and gave the officials responsible for it complete immunity.

Later the lawmakers appropriated about $4,000 to pay back salaries to those of their friends who were put out of jobs by the publicity surrounding the investigation, and who were unable to collect from the legitimately employed help. This week the attorney general ruled that the appropriation was legal, as it probably was. But legal or not, the whole business has an odor offensive to sensitive noses, and one which will undoubtedly be wafted across the commonwealth again when the opposition gets on the stump next autumn.

A BILLION FISH

The state conservation department, in a bulletin sent to all newspapers a few days ago, reported that it had planted more than a billion fish in Wisconsin lakes and streams this year. It added that the total was equal to more than 1,500 fish for every fisherman who drops a hook or casts a bait in Wisconsin. That's an extraordinary number of fish, certainly.

Many newspapers published the story from the department, but we wonder how many of the editors wished that the department had added some assurance or proof that any considerable number of that huge quantity of fish will live to encounter a hook some day.

We can all agree that the propagation and planting by artificial methods of more than a billion fish in a single year is a proud record. We may also agree that if present methods are practical, there is no need for expansion of that program.

No state conservation official has ever been able to offer even reasonably absolute proof of the survival rate of artificially planted fish. It must be obvious, however, that if only a small proportion of the 1500 per fisherman which were planted this year and last year live, we ought to have excellent fishing all over the state pretty soon.

In order that the sportsman-taxpayer who pays the freight may have some evidence of the degree of success of the artificial stocking program, it would be a good idea for the conservation department to rest upon its record for a while and devote some extra pains and funds to research on that problem. It will be some time before any other state reaches the billion a year mark. In the meantime the department can do the public a service by showing us just what results can be expected through consistently heavy stocking. Until such proof is established, any claims made will be guesses.

IN THE GALLANT SOUTH

A young lady in Texas took two guns and started out on the street after a young lawyer who had trifled with her heart. She began shooting from behind him, which is a pretty safe position to take. She ended his life in just two jerks of a lamb's tail.

The grand jury has declined to indict her, for she is a winsome lass. But those of the gentler sex who feel inclined to grab up two guns some day and work out their own vengeance would do well to look at their ankles and their complexions. The Texas girl has slim ankles and a clear complexion.

The father of the young lady thought it advisable to hire an attorney because she had been placed in jail by the officers. This attorney, undisturbed by the corpse of his brother lawyer sprawled upon the street, accepted the retainer, but pled he must have a little time because his hands were chock full of cases. It seems his partner had been shot only a week before, and he had to take over the business on his partner's death. An Associated Press correspondent dryly remarked that the slain partner had also been casting his eyes at forbidden feminine territory.

The South is certainly gallant about its women. But if one were fat and forty she might conclude otherwise.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Manhattan Marquee:
Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, wanderers from Broadway since 1932, are back with a refreshing and youthful musical comedy entitled (for no reason at all) "Very Warm For May." It is one of their lesser efforts, remembering "Show Boat," "Sunny" and "Sweet Adeline," but one is always reminded that Kern at his worst is still contemporaneous music at its best.

"Very Warm For May" is sheer musical comedy — singing, dancing, a specialty or two, brilliant costumes and settings, and not much of a plot. Mr. Kern has been unselfish with his tunes, the best being "Heaven in My Arms," "All the Things You Are," "That Lucky Fellow," and "All in Fun." I suspect the music he has provided for the "Schottische," a comedy ballet, will turn out to be mighty fine music when performed away from the distraction of the dance.

For us with long memories there is Donald Brian playing a brief role, that of an elderly retired vaudevillean—a far cry from his matinee idol days when he starred in such memorable musicals as "The Merry Widow," "The Dollar Princess," "The Chocolate Soldier" and "Sybil." Theatregoers who were fascinated by the brother-and-sister dance team of the McDonalds in "Babes in Arms" a few seasons ago will be delighted to see Grace McDonald, barely 20, nobly fulfilling her earlier promise as the play's lovely ingenue. Eve Arden, a refugee from Hollywood, is funny as a nit-wit matron, but Hiram Sherman is wasted in an unsympathetic role.

To anyone interested in what is worthy on Broadway and vice versa, it is enough to know that "Very Warm For May" is competent Kern backed by an unsinting Max Gordon production.

Dream Houses:
In the International Building of Rockefeller Center is a display of homes. One section is devoted to the "dream houses" of six well know New Yorkers—"dream houses," that is, as far as exteriors are concerned.

In this exhibit of "The House of Outside Color" as it is called, are represented the "dream" exteriors these six people would prefer: the socially prominent Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt; Anita Colby, one of the best known of New York's models; Mary Margaret McBride (the Martha Deane of radio); Jack Dempsey; "Mike" Phipps, the socialite polo player; and Count Theo Rossi, the vermouth king who is equally renowned as the world's most eligible bachelor.

And these are their dreams as shown in the models made to their specifications:

Mrs. Roosevelt: a small two-story house with a roof of dark blue-green asphalt shingles, light stone-grey walls, a bright green door and tobacco brown shutters. (Actually Mrs. Roosevelt lives in a large town house on Madison Avenue filled with curios and objects d'arts from all parts of the world.)

Mary Margaret McBride: a rich Van Dyke-brown roof, yellow-orange walls, a cocoabrown door, and green shutters. (A far cry from her actual residence—a penthouse apartment overlooking the East River.)

Miss Colby: roof of red-orange, flesh-pink clapboard walls, dubonnet shutters, and a big red-orange door. (Miss Colby lives in an apartment.)

The men's dream houses:

Jack Dempsey: blue-black roof, chalk white walls, warm gray shutters, and a bright red door. (Dempsey with his wife, the former Hannah Williams, and their two daughters lives in a 17-room apartment on Central Park West.)

Mike Phipps: a modest frame house with a bright red roof, pale yellow walls, white trim around the windows, and a front door done in grapefruit-yellow. (Mike lives in a large country house near the Meadowbrook polo field.)

Count Rossi: (a traveler whose home is the world) chose vermouth-brown for the roof, shell pink for the sidewalls, white for the shutters, and terra cotta for the front door.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Dec. 10, 1914

A Berlin dispatch said the kaiser had been attacked by severe coughing spells and was very weak. Unconfirmed reports said the allies had occupied Dixmunde.

The city that morning accepted a warranty deed for a tract of land from Nick Schaefer on Lawrence street west of Mason street. The land was needed to extend Lawrence street.

According to an article which appeared a short time previous in a New York newspaper, Miss Edna Ferber's series of stories, "Roast Beef Medium," was to be dramatized.

10 YEARS AGO
Thursday, Dec. 5, 1929

Over $5,000 was spent on books for the Appleton Public library from Jan. 1, 1929, according to the annual budget report of Miss Florence Day, librarian.

In an effort to find a working substitute for the state music tournaments, which were becoming a problem, a cooperative rather than competitive system of exchange high school musical talent among Green Bay, Appleton and Oshkosh High schools was worked out Wednesday at a meeting of officials from the three high schools at Hotel Northern. A Music Festival association made up of the three schools was organized with H. H. Helble, principal of Appleton High school, as general manager and treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Slattery, 518 N. Lawe street, entertained at the first of a series of dinner and bridge parties at their home Wednesday evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. George McKenny, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Ehr.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

POST-FAILURE

It's done now! Let it go!
No brooding over woe!
No use extending pain!
Let's take our lives again
And with great patience mend
Each hurt and write "The end!"

It's finished! Let's forget
The worriment; the fret
Of joy unrealized;
The summit that we prized!
Let's take our failure now
With an uplifted brow!

It's over now! No tears!
We have uncharted years
To conquer. We will face
The future with good grace.
Uncertain of our goals,
But sure of our valiant souls!

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Out of a contemplated national budget of nine billion dollars (count 'em), it seems as if Congress ought to be able to chisle off a couple of billion at least. But when you begin looking at the budget — item by item — you can't escape the conclusion that there will not be much trimming.

Grover

The congressional heart is probably as hard as any other heart—in the mass. But the congressional heart is never confronted by the budget in the mass. It is confronted by it peacemeal. And the congressional heart, section by section, melts. The longer odds are that, in the coming session of Congress, the mass heart will melt again, piecemeal, and there will be no cutting down of appropriations.

Congress can always make a show and demonstrate that it cut the budget—but that claim is always a publicity cheat. The budget is what the various departments ask for. As a matter of well-established practice they always ask more than they expect to get, although they will defend every dollar as essential to the continued national existence.

The President gets first chance at cutting the budget. He too is a past master at doing it the skillful way. More than one congressman will tell you that the President does his heavy trimming in items which he expects Congress will put back. The idea is that it leaves him a margin so he may be lenient with those portions of the budget for which he has shown special favor in recent years—notably the Navy and Army.

As an example, he trimmed a slug off farm benefits a couple of years ago and suggested that Congress could put it back only if it was willing to raise the extra money by taxation. The congressmen didn't raise the money but did put back the appropriation—and the President has been punishing them verbally ever since.

Take individual appropriations, then the point is clearer. For the old-time services of the Department of Agriculture, such as extension work, inspection, experiment stations, and the like, about $391,000,000 is needed. But the Department of Agriculture appropriation last year was $1,289,000,000. Where did it all go to, and why can't some be cut off?

Well, $654,560,000—two-thirds of a billion—went out as soil conservation and benefit of parity payments to cotton growers, tobacco growers, corn and wheat growers, and farmers in general. In an election year do you expect Mid-western senators and house members, or those from the cotton and tobacco belt, or the trans-Mississippi wheat states, to vote for cutting that figure? If you think so, you have never seen a congressman in the flesh.

Congress cut the emergency relief appropriation last session, but even then it reached the somewhat staggering sum of $1,755,000,000 That is barely half what it has been at times. Congress is more likely to increase that sum even for this year than to cut it.

Take the next item, the veterans' administration appropriation of $561,093,000. That sum, too, will increase, not decrease. Have you heard any one arguing for a reduction of the CCC? That cost $295,000,000 this year.

How about the Army? It got $531,940,000 in 1939, and the sum was jacked up to $742,058,000 for the current 1940 fiscal year. The President has already asked another $118,000,000 to pay for increasing the Army immediately. Moreover, only a small amount of the total cost of the new air program has been covered by appropriations. Unless the program is stopped in mid-air (nice pun suh), more cash must come.

The Navy got $625,066,000 in 1939 and $778,188,000 in 1940. To pay for ships already started more must come next year. The President has lumped additional Army and Navy needs into a flat half billion. That will mean an even two billion for defense. Want to cut it?

You can't make a dent in such figures by firing a few dozen secretaries. If you can put your finger on a single one of those appropriations likely to be cut by the coming Congress, we will be glad to send you a picture of the President laughing up his sleeve.

1 Out of 75 Persons Wrote Play Last Year

Miami, Fla. — (AP) — Prof. Fred Koch, jr., of the University of Miami is convinced playwrights are either a dizzy tribe or else are the world's most incurable optimists.

"One out of every seven persons in the United States bought a car last year," reported Koch, professor of playwrighting and dramatics. "One out of every 10 purchased a radio. One out of 36 financed a refrigerator—and one out of 75 wrote a play."

Out of 1,000,000 theatrical brainchildren only 40,000 even reached dramatic agents or producers, and "only one found fame and fortune," Koch declared.

Most of the plays, he said are written for the 1,000 or more nonprofessional theaters that range from redecorated country barns to school auditoriums and magnificent civic halls.

"Fortunately," said Koch, "at least 95 per cent of the authors have no intention of making a living writing plays. The other 5 per cent think they are good enough for Broadway."

SWEET MONEY

Paris—(AP)—A farmer from Plepscop sold two chickens for three pieces of chocolate — wrapped in tin foil to look like 10-franc pieces.

When the farmer returned from the market place he knocked together the "coins." They didn't clink. He unwrapped them, called the police, and ate the chocolate.

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FELLOW-TRAVELER

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—If the support and talk of his friends in the capital is any help to him, Justice John D. Wickhem ought to have a good chance to land the seat on the United States supreme court made vacant by the death of Justice Pierce Butler.

Wyngaard

The Wisconsin justice's name is constantly brought up in these parts as the most logical man whom President Roosevelt could appoint. He is comparatively young, 51, is a Catholic—there is no member of that church on the high court—a middlewesterner, and an able jurist, his friends argue.

Wickhem, appointed by Governor Kohler to succeed the late Charles H. Crownhart, is now completing his first decade of service on the bench, although his elective term will not expire for four years. Lawyers, it is said, generally regard him as one of the spokesmen for the liberals in the Wisconsin tribunal.

MORE JUDICIARY

One of the youngest judges in the state—perhaps the youngest, 30 year old Joseph McCarthy of Shawano,—is preparing to assume his new duties in January. Elected to serve in the Outagamie-Shawano-Langlade county circuit to succeed the veteran and well-known Judge E. V. Werner, McCarthy will be introduced to the bench when he arrives in the capital city next month to relieve Judge Alvin C. Reis of the Dane county circuit.

McCarthy has not yet disclosed whether he plans to replace the circuit court officers in his circuit, but it is said that Urban P. Van Sustern, young Little Chute and Appleton lawyer, will become divorce counsel in Outagamie county.

Retirement of Judge Werner from the bench will not mean his retirement from public life, those who know him say. Werner appeared at the recent Manitowoc convention of Eighth district Republicans, and he is reported to have told friends there that he will resume active participation in politics. Some say that he may become a candidate for congress next year.

CONSERVATION INQUIRY

That the conservation department is due for another grilling has been substantiated by August Frey, chief of the governor's research bureau, to whom was turned over the voluminous record of the inconclusive investigation conducted by a state assembly committee several months ago.

The department survived the mud-slinging match which was the first investigation without harm, evidently, but when it undergoes the scrutiny of the research bureau staff there will be a change of emphasis and objective.

While the assemblymen pried only into those activities and policies about which complaints were received, and spent much time developing personal grudges between officials and ex-employes, Frey's men will concentrate on the administrative efficiency of the department, with the theory that the huge payroll there can be reduced.

VANDENBERG CAMPAIGN

The Vandenberg for president campaign is moving along satisfactorily, reports M. G. Eberlein of Shawano, one of the leaders in the state Vandenberg organization. Eberlein was nominated at a recent conference as one of the four delegates at large for the 1940 Republican convention, and he was instrumental in calling a Seventh district meeting for Stevens Point Saturday at which district delegates will be nominated. Among those who are likely to be candidates are Assemblyman Spearbreaker of Waupaca and Gruszka of Mosinee.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

COMMON AILMENT

When the food is practically devoid of vitamin C (now chemically identified as cevitamic acid) well marked scurvy develops in two weeks in guinea pigs in two or three months in man.

"Before we left the shore floe," writes that excellent observer Vilhjalmur Stefansson in The Friendly Arctic (Macmillan, 1925) "Charlie had complained of illness. On getting up suddenly he felt dizzy and sometimes collapsed. In general he was disinclined to all exertion, depressed with all sorts of gloomy forebodings, and his strength was noticeably less. These were the symptoms of scurvy and I asked to see his teeth and gums. The gums were swollen and purple and the teeth were slightly loose. There was a dull ache in the arch of the teeth and the gums bled freely. . ."

Stefansson could not understand why scurvy developed, for he believed Charlie had been eating some fresh meat right along, and in his experience fresh meat (ovibos) had always proved sufficient to prevent scurvy. Later he discovered that Charlie had for some time eaten only groceries and a little dried ovibos meat, and when they were lucky enough to kill some caribou and get fresh meat, Charlie recovered in three or four days sufficiently to resume travel over the ice.

The scurvy which menaced sailors in the old days of sailing ships was prevented or cured, they knew from experience, by lime juice (what they called limes were probably what we now call lemons), by potato, onion, any fresh fruit or vegetable not too long preserved or too much dried.

Today in the rare circumstance that one may be unable to procure any kind of fresh food, a few ounces of tomato juice from a can will prevent scurvy. Tomato juice, fresh or commercially canned, is now widely used as a source of vitamin C, practically equivalent to orange juice, in infant feeding. Tomato or tomato juice home canned is less valuable for this purpose, because vitamin C is destroyed by heating or cooking unless air (oxygen) is excluded as it is in the vacuum process employed in commercial canning.

Moderate scurvy is far more common than is generally recognized. If the diet is poor in vitamin C, as many diets are in the northern part of the country in the winter season, the mild scurvy that may develop in the course of the winter is thus described by Plimmer, English nutrition authority: "Before definite symptoms of scurvy appear there is a period of ill-health, characterized by certain symptoms which may also be looked for in those who habitually take too little vitamin C, though they get enough to prevent acute scurvy. These symptoms are a sallow, muddy complexion, loss of energy, fleeting pains in joints and limbs, especially in the legs, usually mistaken for rheumatism. So-called rheumatism in infants and young children has often been proved to be due to insufficient vitamin C, and is really scurvy . . ."

In young infants the chief signs of slight scurvy are failure to gain weight and peevishness, irritability, restlessness.

Apples are a pretty good source of vitamin C, Baldwins being about 6 times richer in C than Delicious, but on storage in a cellar apples steadily lose their C content so that in the course of eight or nine months they are nearly devoid of the vitamin; in cold storage they lose vitamin C potency less rapidly—about one-fourth in six months.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Distilled Water, Sterile Water

Please tell me if sterile water means distilled water. How or where can one get distilled water? Is it better to drink distilled water or sterile water? (Miss M. W.)

Answer—Sterile means germ-free. To sterilize any water you merely boil it for fifteen minutes on each of three successive days. Distilled water is any water that has been converted into steam, and condensed again to liquid—distillation purifies the water of mineral matter held in solution. Ordinarily neither is advisable for drinking—plain tap water is healthful drinking water, unless your local health department advises boiling it to make it safe to drink.

Lost - Art

Saw in your column a sulfur-salicylic pomade for falling hair and dandruff. Tried to purchase this at four large drugstores, and none of them had it. One clerk said several people had been asking for it, but he guesed you were just old-fashioned and behind the times. (Mrs. W. A., Jr.)

Answer—No doubt I am. Yet there are still pharmacists who can prepare the pomade if you ask for it—precipitated sulful one dram, salicylic acid 20 grains, ointment of rose water to make one ounce. Rub a little into scalp by parting hair here and there, each evening, shampoo one night weekly, and continue for three or four weeks, to correct or control dandruff.

Vaccination

Can't understand how you can take the position you do in reference to compulsory vaccination yet advise people that they had better have the "protection" of vaccination. Surely you must know that if it were not for the fee in it, intelligent doctors would stop this vicious practice. (H. T. A.)

Answer—The fee scarcely pays for the material used, if the doctor looks after the vaccination wound as he should. I do advise one to have such protection against smallpox Having it myself I don't mind at all if you prefer to take your chances without it. Believing in the efficacy of vaccination against smallpox I recommend it ito every one who asks for or cares about my advance. I can see no reason why I should force vaccination on any sane or responsible individual who doesn't want it.

What To Get For Goitre

Please tell me what to get for goitre or gland trouble and what to eat. (H. B.)

Answer—Get a doctor and eat the food he advises.

HOW ABOUT NIGHTSTICK?

Oklahoma City, Okla. —(AP)— It's going to take a police chief's convention to get Police Chief Frank S Smith into a uniform.

A former department of justice agent, Chief Smith has been Oklahoma City's police chief now for several months without a sign of a brass button in his wardrobe. "A uniform," he says, "doesn't add to a police chief's efficiency and I won't get one until I have to."

Need Card Sense for First Lead

BY ELY CULBERTSON

From time immemorial we have heard about the "sixth sense" of some players in card games. When dissected, this sixth sense, commonly called card sense, proves to be nothing but the ability to apply shrewd reasoning and sound psychology to a given situation. These qualities are especially valuable in the selection of an opening lead. Note West's sensational opening in the following hand:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	1 spade	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West, a ranking expert, followed the proper procedure in selecting his opening lead, which is to say that he did not turn all his attention to his own holding. Rather, he weighed the opposing bidding for all its implications.

North had bid two diamonds over the one spade without the slightest hesitation and South, when this bid reached him, had not "huddled" for a second in producing his two no trump rebid. Finally, when the two no trump reached North, the latter had gone to three with no more thought than had been given his previous bid. These facts convinced West that both opponents felt entirely secure insofar as the spade suit was concerned, and West would have made a small wager that, between them, North and South held the three top honors. If that were true, there was certainly nothing to be hoped for from a spade opening. A diamond lead was out of the question. Since West had a singleton, even if East were well heeled in diamonds, one lead thru North's bid suit scarcely could be effective. A club lead was not much more attractive. West did have length, but his spot cards under the ace were entirely too low. The process of elimination then left hearts as the only suit from which a ray of hope could be taken. Neither opponent had bid hearts, which he presumably would have done if possible; hence there was a strong assumption that East had length, if not strength, in the suit. But it was equally obvious that East had few, if any, entries. Hence, if he were ever to get on lead with his supposed heart suit West would have to put him on lead.

All this reasoning took only a few seconds and West then produced the one card that had the slightest chance to defeat the contract.

He led the heart queen!

It will be obvious that declarer could have fulfilled the contract by holding up his heart king, but the fact is that he did not. He was afraid that, if he held up the king, West might shift to clubs and that East might have the ace. Then a heart return would trap the king if, as appeared likely, West had started with something like the A-Q-J-x of hearts. Besides, declarer had every reason to feel that, by accepted the heart king on the spot, he would be able to run off five diamonds and three spades and fulfill his contract. He could hardly know that East had the diamond suit stopped. Well, at any rate, declarer took the heart king and it was all over for him. Three rounds of diamonds disclosed the bad news and he then had to attack the club suit. West dashed up with the club ace and laid down the ace and four of hearts. East then ran the suit and the contract was down one.

My Neighbor Says—

Water chrysanthemums growing in pots once a week with liquid manure. This will make better and more abundant bloom.

Leftover fish can be made into a dozen good dishes, so it is more economical to buy a good-sized whole fish and to make it last for two days, rather than to buy a small fish that is just enough.

When you have egg whites left over after cooking, place them on a plate and let dry. Scrape off the crystals which have formed and store them in jars. A tablespoon of egg whites dissolved in two tablespoons of cold water will equal one egg white and will heat up perfectly.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Here is a rather common problem encountered by psychologists, but it has a definite cause. Wives like Saul's, should realize the influence upon men of attractive women who are "slender, silken and strange." Saul's behavior is also an indictment of his wife, for she is not furnishing him the emotional satisfaction which he craves. His religious training has prevented his going beyond his present stage of illicit experiences.

CASE P-122: Saul B., aged 38, is the father of two children.

"I wish you could help me about him," his wife tearfully pleaded.

"We have been married for 15 years and have been happy. Our children are both in grammer school.

"My husband is a good provider and has been kind to me. He is a good man and has been raised in the church from his boyhood.

"But something terrible must be wrong, Dr. Crane for the neighbors are reporting that he is a Peeping Tom. I never suspected it, though there is evidence that he has been doing this for more than a year.

"He usually goes out for a walk in the evening while I get the children to bed, and he comes back around 10 o'clock or earlier.

"Dr. Crane, what is wrong with my husband, and how can I help him overcome this terrible thing?"

DIAGNOSIS Previously I have warned you readers against showing such undue emotional reactions to situations which pertain to sex.

The word "terrible" shows this woman's distorted emotional outlook. Her husband is doing wrong, but in judging people we should take a detached judicial attitude.

Our court judges, for example, don't tear their hair in rage or scream in denunciation or grow emotional or prudish when hearing a criminal case. Morality is simply the science of good conduct. It is comparable to mathematics or medicine in its precise operation.

Psychology has long shown that for every behavior effect there must be a cause. This holds true in Saul's case, too. Why should an apparently happily married man become a Peeping Tom?

How Psychology Operates

Perhaps I should ask you why thousands of other married men attend burlesque shows, or the Follies, or were enamoured of Sally Rand's dancing?

Why, moreover, does a hungry man take a great interest in barbecued pigs or roasted chickens? Because he has a gastric hunger that makes pigs and chickens enticing.

Similarly, human beings have a sex hunger which is second only to the stomach hunger among our human drives or instincts. This hunger causes men to find attractive women desirable, and makes women grow romantic about Prince Charmings.

Saul's previous moral training has built up habits of restraint, however, so that he doesn't openly violate his marriage vows, or patronize the burlesque shows in his city. But he compromises by secretly trying to peep into windows. His behavior is really an indictment of his wife.

How Peeping Toms Develop

There are two periods when men are likely to become burlesque show addicts or Peeping Toms. The first is during adolescence when they are trying to obtain some sex information which their prudish parents or teachers may have withheld from them.

If you starve your children for meat and potatoes, why grow emotionally distraught if they go elsewhere to eat some food? If you starve their minds regarding sane sexual facts and knowledge, how can you expect them to avoid seeking other sources of information on the subject?

When men approach 40, their sexual vigor is less ardent. They don't feel the pulse-pounding emotions when they kiss their wives, which they felt during courtship. So they they think they are growing old.

Then they may furtively do some experimenting to see if they are really old or if some other factor is to blame. Alluring women, slender, silken and strange, excite their emotions. They feel young again. Wives should take a lesson from these simple facts.

NOT VERY OLD

Dear Mrs. Post: I'm almost fifteen, but my mother thinks I am too young to accept an invitation from a boy I met last summer when he was visiting relatives who liver near relatives of mine whom I was visiting. This boy's mother has even written inviting me, but my mother thinks it is improper for me to go when she doesn't know the boy or his mother. Also mother thinks it is too far for me to go on the train sixty miles to his home. She says, however, that she would have no objection if she could go with me, but that she can't very well do this without an invitation. Will you please tell mother and me what you think about this.

Answer: I agree with your mother. It would be quite different if the boy's family and your own were old friends, or if your mother had been invited to go with you. Or even if a party were being given at this boy's house and you had been invited to go with other girls, you might then all go together without a chaperon. As it is, I'm sorry, but the answer is that "you are not allowed."

"Madam" For All Women?

Dear Mrs. Post: What should a waiter or waitress, or even a salesperson in a store call a lady whose name is unknown? Some one has told me that Madam is used in smartest stores and restaurants, but Madam hardly distinguishes between a married and an unmarried woman.

Answer: You don't distinguish between them. You should call all women customers or patrons "Madam."

Sending A Wedding Present To Groom

Dear Mrs. Post: I'm a friend of the groom in this case, but suppose that I really should send the wedding present to the bride? The invitation arrived without a sufficient address for mailing, and there is no return address on the envelope. Shall I send the present to the groom, who happens to live in a different town from that where the bride lives and where the wedding is taking place? Time is short.

Answer: When you don't know the bride, it is customary to send something for the house that both can use. In a situation such as you describe, it is not improper to have the package addressed to him, and to write best wishes to both on your enclosed card.

A Woman Dining With Several Men

Dear Mrs. Post: When a woman goes to a restaurant with her husband and, let's say, two other men, is she supposed to follow the headwaiter alone with the three men tagging after?

Answer: Yes. Or if there is plenty of space, one of the men (not her husband) probably walks beside her. But since it is usually necessary that they weave their way in between table, she of course goes ahead.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Behavior in Public." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

Mother Not Required to Name Child After Its Grandparents

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I dearly love my mother and my mother-in-law, and I would hate to do anything that would hurt their feelings, but I simply can't bring myself to name my little girl baby after either one of them because both of them have perfectly hideous names. Do you think it is my duty to call my child a name that sets my teeth on edge every time I hear it just to please one of them?

A YOUNG MOTHER.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:

Indeed, I don't. I consider it an unforgivable crime to afflict any poor helpless little babe with an ugly name just to flatter a vain old woman.

Furthermore, consider that if you do so you are just adding another link to the chain of ear-rasping names that future generations will have to carry on, for if your little Mahitable, or whatever she is called, has to be named for her grandmother, Mahitable's children will have to be named for her, and so ad infinitum. So break the chain and emancipate future generations. There is no more sense in perpetuating an ugly family name than there would be in carrying on any other family affliction if you could eradicate it. You wouldn't wish the family gout or the family dyspepsia of the family rheumatism on a child if you could help it. Why, then, handicap it with the blight of an ugly family name?

Especially should girls get a kind deal in christening, because a girl's name makes a lot of difference to her. She has to be called by it as long as she lives, so give your baby a moniker that will come trippingly to the tongue and sound pleasing to the hearer, and she will arise and bless you in after years.

Probably there is no other one subject that is more filled with controversial angles than naming the baby, nor is there anything that has started more family feuds, or that has more amply proved that a large number of parents should not be intrusted with slapping a lifetime brand on a defenseless infant, but that it should be given a number to be known by until it is old enough to pick out a name for itself. To begin with, most grandparents fight over the new baby like dogs over a bone and the winner gets to name it. Nobody considers the poor mother's and father's taste in names, nor how bitterly they are writhing under the names their own grandparents fastened on them, nor how they dread thinking that the poor little mite in the cradle has got to carry on the hideous name of somebody who came over in the Mayflower or fought in the Revolutionary war. Then, if there happens to be a rich old maid aunt or a wealthy bachelor uncle, it is a cinch that Babykins is called after him or her, and goes stumbling along through life handicapped by a name he or she attempts in vain to hide under a nickname. And then gets left out of the will.

Somehow fathers never seem to have much say in naming the baby, but when Mother is given a free hand she simply lets herself loose and all of her repressed yearnings after the romantic and the "whatness of the ain't" come to the surface. Hence we have the poor little girls afflicted with the names of flowers and stars and the Muses and Graces, and the double-barreled names, and as if to make a bad matter worse, the unfortunate victims of their mothers' fancies never grow up to look the part. The Violets are always strapping hoodlums, and the Brunhildes anemic little girls who toe in.

Then there is the school of thought that causes bookish mothers to name their children after the heroes and heroines of popular novels, which would be all right except that it dates a girl, and there is no use in pretending that she is still 25 when she is named after a best seller of thirty years ago. Father makes a still worse break when he names his son after a famous scholar or politician and institutes a comparison that lasts as long as he lives between little Thomas Jefferson Jones who can never make his grades and the great original T. J.

And, crime of crimes, is when parents give children a first name without any reference to their last name that makes them a target for all the low wits they ever encounter and a laughing stock for everybody who has a funnybone. So it is no wonder when we hear of a new baby we ask: What are they going to name it? There is no telling what crazy things parents are liable to do.

Men Should Pick Their Wives

Dear Miss Dix—Should I let my mother pick out my wife for me? She says that no man knows anything about women and that any girl can fool a man, whereas women are wise to the tricks of other women and are better judges of them than any man can be. My mother says that in Continental Europe, where she came from and where mothers pick out their sons' wives, that there is far less divorce than there is in this country. Is she right? When I marry should I let her select my wife for me? THOMAS J.

Answer:

I think not. I think that the one time in life when every man is entitled to use his own taste and judgment is when he picks out the woman with whom he is proposing to spend the remainder of his life. For happiness in marriage doesn't depend nearly so much upon what sort of a wife a woman is as it does upon her being the sort of a wife a man wants.

And that is something that no mother can possibly decide for her son. It will be the personal appeal the girl has for her husband that will make him want her and be happy with her, and this Mother cannot understand, because no woman reacts to another woman's attractions as a man does. A woman's woman is seldom popular with men, and it is nearly always a mystery to every mother what her son saw in the girl he married that made him fall for her.

Your mother's selection of a wife for you will be the nice, domestic girl around the corner who is such a good cook and so kind to her old grandfather, and who will have a tidy little fortune of her own some day. Your choice, like as not, is a bobbed-haired flapper who knows more about the rhumba than she does about keeping house; but if that is what you want, it is what you want, and you will no more be satisfied with the domestic girl than you would be with a dish of corned beef and cabbage while you are craving ice cream.

Of course, Mother has reason on her side, but you will have inclination, and your chance for happiness will be better if you follow your own desire instead of Mother's counsel.

Helpless Children May Need Medical Aid, Home Support

BY ANGELO PATRI

Everybody has met the little boy who cannot hold his own among the others on the playground. It seems that there is always one in every group. His presence is discovered by the other boys about the end of the first recess, and from then on his life is miserable.

The other boys pick on him relentlessly. They call him names and taunt him to see whether he will come back at them. He doesn't. He backs off, threatening them, in tears, and they howl with unholy joy and chase him into his own door yard.

In vain his mother says, "Why don't you pitch into them? Why don't you give it back to them? Why do you run away? Of course they won't like you if you are a cry baby and a coward. Stand up to them. That's all they want."

One might as well advise a sparrow to swim out of reach of the cat. This child is not able to fight back and he cannot help himself in the least. He feels within himself an empty place where the fight ought to be and he cannot express that feeling save in tears. Don't worry him about what he can't help, and don't force him into a fight. He hasn't got the power that a fight takes and will only come to grief compounded.

Have the child examined by a children's specialist, preferably by one who is associated with a children's hospital. Ask for the one who understands about the glands of little boys, and see what he can do. And have the child's eyes tested. Go over his body carefully in an effort to learn what he lacks to make him equal to the others.

There are some boys who are quite all right in these respects; glands function; sense organs are perfect; nutrition is normal, no disease, no unusual condition, but gifted with a temperament that does not allow for aggression. These boys are usually quite indifferent to the taunts of the others and go their way cheerfully. They have interests that are unusual in boys. Some of them like to design ladies gresses; some enjoy study, or collecting, and are quite self-contained. Their mother and father are worried by the lad's indifference to standard boy life, but the boy goes his way. He is not helpless and he rarely needs any attention beyond the usual oversight. But the other sort, the helpless ones who cannot fight, who cannot play alone, and who are not accepted by the rest, are in great need of medical and educational help. And home support.

It is not wise, nor kind, to force a frightened child to go to school alone when he fears a foe behind every post and tree, and especially when his fears are so likely to be justified. Escort him to and from school. Or get some older boy to befriend him and take his part until such time as he is either ignored by the gang or proof against their abuse.

Such children suffer keenly. Their fear robs them of what power they might have in school work. Their health suffers from the strain. Soon they lose their appetites, and broken sleep brings them scant relief. Telling them how cowardly they are adds to their burden without strengthening them any. Take them, promptly to the specialist and try to follow his directions. It is hard to be the odd chick in any hatch.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

There is a glamorous new style in fresh flower arrangements that is bound to double your romantic allure at very special parties!

Flowers in the hair, of course, have been a recipe for allure since the day of Cleopatra, but the trick is to pick the flower and its arrangement to suit your specfiic beauty type. It doesn't make a bit of difference whether you wear a bustle hairdo pompadour curls, or a long Hollywood bob, you can find a floral headdress for evening which dramatizes the effect for which you strive.

Even if your beau is far away and rushes to you only on weekends, he can wire you one of these lovely headdresses just as simply as he can wire you a corsage. So the next time he wires, "What flowers, my love?" you be on your toes and wire back, "Headdress of gardenias," or whicheven flower you prefer! And if you haven't a best beau to send you flowers, buy a halo of them for yourself and double your chances of catching a devoted swain at the party!

How to Wear Them

Flowers pinned very high, or worn in a pixie-peak on the forehead will slim a round face becomingly. A bowknot of fresh flowers as an exotic way to emphasize the beauty of curls that are worn in the topknot style that's so becoming to full faces. Lillies-of-the-valley and sweetheart roses are easy to arrange in this manner.

If your face is triangular shape, you might try a rounded halo of fragrant blossoms to soften your face contours. You know, across your head from ear to ear.

A snood of fresh flowers is a charming new fashion which is actually a beau-catching device practiced by our grandmothers! If you wish you may pin fresh, small blossoms on a silver or gold snood, scattered becomingly.

Grecian arrangements of flower petals and leaves are effective if your favorite party coiffure is a Grecian roll.

Round faces, and very young ones, win the hearts of the stag line with a topknot bonnet of gardenias or lilies, which ties coquetishly under your chin. But you wouldn't wear one if you were entering a swing contest! Such a bonnet is for the demure.

If yours is a swirled hairdo, you'll qualify as a reigning belle if you flaunt one of the new headdresses of orchids with back streamers of flower petals! (This is if orchids are your type.)

For sub-debs there is a Juliet cap of fragrant sweetpeas for the first formal party, and to add more fascination wear a ring of the same blossoms!

Advice to Beaux

If you do live away from the adored one and want her to ignore local competition play safe and wire the lady a headdress of gardenias with streamers of silvered leaves. Carnations or roses also lend themselves nicely to this type of coiffeur corsage!

The Creeping Man

by Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: Devoe tells Michael, Tuck and Bunny that Murchison has disappeared, warns them of Miss Lissey's scandal-mongering, and clumsily tries to throw suspicion on Duncan.

Chapter 22

Walk In The Woods

Michael, coming home after a harrowing day at the office decided to leave Christabel at the garage nearest the campus and walk across to the Horseshoe. As he explained to Tuck later, Christabel's congenital defect had cropped up again. Her congenital defect was a certain tendency toward collecting, in some mysterious and wholly puzzling manner, rust in her gas tank. No one, not even the blackest and most greasy mechanic could explain it. When it happened, when sufficient of the rusty particles had climbed warily into her bronchial tubes, Christable coughed and choked and spluttered like an old lady with the asthma and finally refused to go until some ministering spirit had blown down her throat.

Michael passed through the pine grove and turned to the right on the path that led directly to the back gate of the Murchison house. As he did so he saw before him on the path the flutter of a light skirt and thought instantly that it was Tuck, come to meet him. But before he could make out the identity of the skirt's owner she had left the path and turned off among the trees along the river bank.

So Michael turned off the path too, into the trees at the left, and dodged quickly from tree to tree trying to keep Tuck—as he thought—in sight and not letting her see him. Apparently she was out for an afternoon constitutional. From where she had left the path it was nearly a quarter of a mile to the edge of the river, but she traversed it quickly—now and then he caught the gleam of the sun on her dress as he followed warily. At last she reached the edge of the wood and was walking out in the open; and Michael halted as he came to the edge of the shelter, and stood there behind a big pine watching her, for he had realized at his first clear glimpse of her that this was not Tuck, but an older woman with whitening hair—Alix Lissey. He was about to turn and slip silently off to the path again, having no desire to talk with her or be seen by her; then he saw what she was doing.

Miss Lissey was making her way through the undergrowth and over the rocks very slowly; bent double as if she had lost something and was looking earnestly for it. But the strange part of her searching was that she was doing it with one of those large reading glasses to be found on most elderly desks.

"Sermons in stones and good in everything," Michael muttered.

Once in a while she got right down on her knees and surveyed the rocks with extreme care; and again she would stand and stare ahead of her for several moments before progressing a step.

"Now what in the devil," Michael asked himself, rubbing his chin, "is she looking for?"

He moved silently along the wood as Miss Lissey moved. It was slow going. Eventually she had reached the end of the stretch of ground in which she seemed to be interested. Here a larger gully came down into the river, its banks thickly wooded, and she did not descend into it. Rather she dropped the glass into her pocket and went out to the very edge of the river cliff, which here was sheer and stark, gray rock dropping straight into the river. She shaded her eyes and looked upstream, along the bank. She looked down-stream. Then she peered earnestly across the river, deep and swift here, and widening after the rapids above. Her pose was one of complete absorption, of tense interest.

Michael moved restlessly and stepped on a twig.

'Spying On Me'

It cracked like the sound of a shot through the still afternoon and Alix Lissey swung round from her contemplation of the landscape. Her hand was pressed to her breast; her face was chalk white. There was utter horror in her eyes.

She saw him. Afterward he realized that she could not possibly have recognized him in that moment; what she saw was a man, a blur of white face and dark clothes, lurking there among the trees spying on her. The sight unnerved her completely. She put a shaking hand over her mouth, but she made no attempt to run; rather she stood there as the rabbit might have stood, confronted with a snake. Michael remembered that, too, afterward.

He stepped out from under the trees.

"Sorry if I frightened you, Miss Lissey," he said apologetically.

She stared at him.

"I thought you were my wife, out for a walk, and I followed you," he explained, as she still seemed unable to talk.

She dropped her hand. The rouge on her cheeks stood out in two brilliant hectic spots.

"It's a beautiful day, isn' it?" Michael continued, stepping out beside her. She drew a deep breath and straightened her shoulders.

"I thought you were a—a bear," she said angrily.

"Bear? Are there bears in these woods?"

"Why not? Why did you come sneaking along there in the dark? You must have seen I wasn't your wife, the first time you looked at me," she said with a trace of bitterness. "Spying on me. Following me around. Spying. That's what you were doing."

"More spied upon than spying," Michael paraphrased to himself in a murmur. She had the grace to flush.

"What I am doing is my own affair," she said with acerbity.

"Certainly," Michael agreed politely.

"If I choose to come out for a quiet walk in the woods by myself, I see no reason why I should be accused of ... of anything underhanded!"

"Of course not, Miss Lissey." His eyes, perhaps unconsciously, strayed to the handle of the reading glass which protruded from the pocket of her jacket. She put her hand over it hastily, and turned defiantly away from him.

Michael gazed out across the river. "It's rather a beautiful view, isn't it?" he inquired courteously.

Across the river the low hills rose smoothly, crested with dark pines and groves of poplars. Far to the right the smoke of the city rose slowly into the summer air; on the hills straight across were innumerable white sheep dotting the green grass. One white curl of smoke rose hazily from the chimney of the old stone house on the promontory, set in a deep grove of dark green; the only other sign of human habitation was the low compact group of farm buildings on the hills at the left.

Miss Lissey snorted.

Michael turned to her suddenly. "Did you send that letter?" he asked.

"What letter?"

"The one about the diamonds?"

"Diamonds?"

Michael did not elucidate. He reguarded the sheep gloomily.

"I don't know what you are talking about," she broke out at him. "I never in all my life met such an objectionable young man. Diamonds, indeed! Why should I write a letter about diamonds? To whom? What diamonds?"

'Lady's Maid'

"Professor Murchison's diamonds," Michael said gently, and looked at her.

There was not a trace of confusion on her face. "I don't know he had any," she said.

"His wife's then?"

"His wife's? She hasn't got any diamonds, that little upstart! Where would a lady's maid get diamonds? Diamonds, indeed!"

Michael raised his brows. "Lady's maid? Oh, come now, Miss Lissey!"

She pressed her lips together. "You're clever, aren't you? Very clever." Her eyes went over him swiftly, over his thick black hair, his keen gray eyes, his firm mouth; over his broad shoulders and his slim height. She sighed. "Very clever, Michael Forrester," she said a little wearily.

There were a thousand wrinkles under her eyes and around her mouth. Michael was suddenly sorry for her.

"Supposing you tell me all about it, Miss Lissey," he said gently. "This isn't a woman's business. Tell me what you know, and then ... go away and take a holiday. Forget it."

She turned on him angrily again. "I am not going," she said.

There was a certain astonishment in his glance, at her fierceness.

"You needn't pretend you don't understand me. You used to fool me with that mealy-mouthed look when you didn't know your Latin. I am not going. I am going to stay right here and see it through. Although ..." she softened surprisingly, "I'm glad you came. You and those two other children ... I was afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

"Oh ... afraid somebody might get away with something."

"And you don't think that will happen now?"

"No."

Michael made a last appeal to contradictory femininity. "Miss Lissey," he said hopefully, "don't you think we'd better join forces? That you'd better tell me what you know?"

She shook her head. "I can't," she said unhappily. "I daren't. It's all right if you ... find it out for yourself.... I can't." She looked at him sharply. "Jared Devoe," she said, "what did he want of you this morning?"

"Nothing."

She compressed her lips. "Very well," she said, "That's only fair."

She pulled the bramble off her dress, and started back toward the path, walking very quickly. Michael followed in silence. She did not speak to him until they were almost at his gate. Then she turned suddenly, as if she had made her mind up, and said, "What do you think of Duncan Murchison?"

"He seems to be a very nice boy."

"Yes. He does. Well ..." she turned off toward her own house, and then came back. "There's one thing I will tell you. If you happen to be interested in hats ... there's a stray one over at McBain's. It was left there on the night Dr. Murchison left. You might get somewhere if you started following that up instead of fiddling around spying on lonely old maids."

NOVEL YOKE

BY ANNE ADAMS

There's a light-hearted peasant-girl look about this little housefrock, Pattern 4324. It's designed by Anne Adams for easy wearing and making. Don't you love the charming shape of the neck, that's encored in the yoke? A delightful effect that you may play up either by using ric-rac at the yoke, pointed sleeve bands and high, double-peaked waistline, or by making the yoke and sleeve bands in vivid contrast. The slim waist and hips are emphasized by unusual softness through the bodice and full skirt lines. Make comfortably flared sleeves if you prefer, and choose a gayly flowered print-fabric for this young charmer.

Pattern 4324 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3¾ yards 35 inch fabric and 2 yards ric-rac.

Send your order to Appleton Post-Crescent Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Solution of Jewish Problem Lies in Palestine, National Officer Tells Hadassah Unit

THE SOLUTION of the Jewish problem lies in Palestine, declared Mrs. Oscar Bender, Philadelphia, member of the National board of Hadassah, women's Zionist organization in America, at an open meeting of Appleton chapter of Hadassah Wednesday night at the Conway hotel. The settlement of the Jews in Palestine is the only way in which they can cease to be wanderers in this world, she said.

"If any good can come out of anything as terrible as this war," she told her large audience, "it has come in Palestine, where the picture has been a little bit brighter since the war began. England's 'white paper' seems to be dead. At least England has shut her eyes to the fact that many refugees have been coming in."

The Nazi propagandists who incited the Arabs against the Jews have now been imprisoned by England, another fortunate outgrowth of the war, Mrs. Bender said.

Most of Mrs. Bender's address was devoted to her experiences at the World Zionist congress at Geneva Switzerland, last summer, at which she was one of the American delegates.

She was surprised, she said, to find German delegates there, but she learned later that they were really there as hostages, under the watchful eye of a member of the Nazi secret police. The speakers were told that if they made any disparaging remark about the German government or Hitler, the young German delegates to the congress would be sent to concentration camps.

Although these German Jews as well as those from other countries where they were persecuted were given by the congress a chance to go to Palestine, they chose instead to return to the dangers of their native lands to work for Zionism there.

All Expressed Hope

"We have today Jewish men and women willing to lay down their lives for their people," she continued. "They know how to bear their tragedy with dignity. None of those who came from Germany or Poland walked with heads bowed down. All were sad, but all expressed hope."

The Palestine Jews had more dignity than any other delegates, Mrs. Bender went on, because they came from the only community on the face of the earth where the Jew has no inferiority complex.

Mrs. Bender spoke highly, however, of the privileges and blessings of the Jew in America. All the Zionist movement asks of the American Jew in his comfort and security, she said, is the surplus of his time, energy and money.

Touching on the defated question of the right of unrestricted numbers of Jews to enter Palestine, Mrs. Bender said no Jewish immigration there was illegal, as Jews had been given the right to enter Palestine by the Balfour declaration, a right later guaranteed by 52 civilized nations. Thousands of European Jewish refugee children are being taken to Palestine so that they will not have to endure what their parents did.

Mrs. Bender was introduced by Mrs. Stanley Hamilton, program chairman. Mrs. D. L. Jacobson, president of the Appleton chapter of Hadassah, gave the welcome.

Chanukko Lights

Lighting of the Chanukko lights and the singing of a prayer by George Pollack, Chicago, Lawrence college student, opened the program. A prayer by Rabbi Ralph De Koven followed. The program also included piano solos by David Bliss and vocal solos, including the traditional Hebrew melody, "Eli, Eli," by Harold Weinstein, Two Rivers, accompanied by Mr. Bliss.

On the reception committee for the evening were Mrs. William Chudacoff, Mrs. George Block, Mrs. L. Blinder, Mrs. Adolph Hamilton and Mrs. E. Fielkow.

Prior to the meeting a dinner in honor of Mrs. Bender was given at the Conway hotel. Twenty-four persons were present.

The next meeting will be a Christmas luncheon Dec. 20 at the Conway hotel.

Cast Selected for Original Play by High School Youth

"Christmas in the Heart," an original play by John Hammer, will be produced by Curtain Call, dramatic society of Appleton High school, for the high school assembly Thursday afternoon, Dec. 21. This is the first time an original script by a high school student will be presented.

Hammer has selected Christmas eve in a New York tenement as the setting for his 1-act drama. The emphasis in the play is on the portrayal of characters who discover, as the title suggests, that the spirit of Christmas must be in the heart.

Cele Speel has the part of Aunt Emma Mueller, a woman of about 48 years. Henric Mueller will be portrayed by Tom Nolan, while William Mullen has the part of Italian Tony. Edna Mueller, a girl of 22, will be characterized by Ardyse Peters and David Bliss has the role of a doctor. Miss Ruth McKennan, head of the speech department, is coaching the play with the assistance of two student coaches, Jeanne Ruhling and Hammer. Miss Kathryn Fralish, speech instructor, has charge of the backstage work and Jack Burroughs, art instructor will supervise the lighting effects.

Movieland Its People and Products

Gale Page was born Sally Perkins Rutter in Spokane, Washington. She completed her formal education at a fashionable school for girls at Piedmont, California, then began her dramatic career with the Maylon Players. Two years later she went to Chicago and for four years was heard over the air in "Today's Children." A Warner talent scout discovered her. She made her screen debut with Humphrey Bogart in "Crime School." Among her pictures are "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," "Four Daughters," "You Can't Get Away with Murder," "Naughty But Nice," "A Child Is Born," "Daughters Courageous" and "Four Wives."

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — I doubt if many Hollywoodites even know of its existence, but the Hollywood Motion Picture Institute, founded two years ago by J. Farrell MacDonald, veteran actor, director and writer, is perhaps the most worthwhile development in years. It is an accredited, non-profit university devoted to practical instruction in every branch of motion picture work.

Fidler

Some 300 students, averaging about 19 years of age, are enrolled at present. Tuition is kept at rock-bottom. Besides studying theory, they learn by actually doing every kind of work involved in picture-making. They write stories, operate regulation sound cameras, build and operate sound recording equipment, play roles, direct, do laboratory work, build and dress sets, plumb the secrets of make-up, cut and edit the finished pictures. Full-time students complete the course in two years; half time students, most of whom attend night classes only, require four years to earn degrees. Some of Hollywood's best-known actors, directors and technicians are faculty members, many of them donating their time without pay.

There's been crying need for such a school for years. Undoubtedly many of its graduates will crash the studio gates — though the Hollywood Motion Picture Institute is not a job-finding agency. Others will find jobs teaching in the many state and privately-endowed schools which are now establishing motion picture courses. One grand result is certain — keener appreciation and shrewder criticism of pictures will come with such education.

Director W. S. Van Dyke, once a firm believer in science, is now a sceptic. Seems that Mrs. VD, prior to their recent visitation by the stork, was tested by Southern California's most eminent obstetricians, all of whom solemnly assured "Woody" that he would be the father of a little girl. So confident was he of that result that he named the imminent arrival "Gretchen" and had $350 worth of Xmas cards printed, bearing "her" name. The other day "Gretchen" arrived — a BOY! — and now Mr. Van Dyke is frantically trying to replace those cards. A movie director of his experience should know better than to trust tests.

Take a tip from Eddie Norris' discomfiture and refrain from climbing your family tree. Eddie, having mentioned his descent from the famous and war-like tribe of Norrises in Wales, was confounded by a studio research worker who advanced the info that one of his ancestors, 310 years ago, borrowed 10,000 pounds for Charles I, at 2 per cent compound interest. The Cromwellian revolution having upset the family applecart, nothing was ever paid on the debt — and Eddie, as the family's present-day heir, owes the English government something like $6,400,000!

Methodist Choir Is Entertained at Dinner

Forty-two members of First Methodist church choir were guests at a dinner given by the music committee of the official board Wednesday night at the church. Hillis Culver, who is visiting here, were guests also.

Cyrus Daniel, organist and director of the choir, acted as toastmaster, Dr. Culver spoke on behalf of the congregation, Mr. Gallaher for the music committee and Mr. Rosebush for the official board.

Kuypers Heads 1940 Census in Eighth District

Examinations for Supervisors Being Held at Green Bay

Harold M. Kuypers, De Pere, will be in charge of the 1940 census for the Eighth congressional district, which includes Outagamie county, according to Thomas Conner, area manager stationed at Green Bay.

Winnebago county is in the sixth census district with headquarters at Milwaukee. Manager of the district is William M. Stiefel, Milwaukee. Headquarters for the seventh district, which includes Waupaca county, will be at Wausau with Grover Meisner, Wausau, as manager.

The district of which Outagamie county is a part also includes the counties of Brown, Marinette, Manitowoc, Oconto, Kewaunee, Door, Florence and Forest with headquarters at Green Bay.

Hold Examinations

Conner said that 14 or 16 persons started examinations Wednesday for the supervisor and assistant supervisor posts in six district offices which are to be established in this area. The training school will last about five days, he said.

The district offices will be opened toward the close of the year in preparation for the business and manufacturing census which will start Jan. 2, Connor announced. The population, agriculture and housing censuses are not scheduled to begin until April. Connor said that only about 25 enumerators will be required for the business and manufacturing census in the Green Bay district.

Employ 2,900 in State

According to the census bureau at Washington approximately 300 will be employed as enumerators in the Green Bay district, 285 in the Wausau office and 250 in Superior. Most of the enumerators will be chosen in April and out of the 130,000 required for the entire 1940 census, only about 10,000 will be needed in January. The bureau estimated that approximately 2,900 persons will be employed in Wisconsin.

Enumerators will be paid at the rate of four cents a name for each person questioned. Area managers and district supervisors will average $2,500 for their terms of office. Enumerators will work from two weeks to a month and other supervisory and office jobs will range from six to eight months.

Roosevelt 'Mentally' In War, Thill Charges

Milwaukee—(AP)—Rep. Lewis D. Thill, Republican of Wisconsin's fifth district, charged in an address last night that President Roosevelt already was in the European war "mentally."

"I have made a canvass in the house of representatives and practically to a man the members will vote against war," he said. "Many fought in France. They don't want to go again nor see their sons go. However, there is a big but—

"The man in the White House is in my estimation already in the war mentally. He has said he is for peace, but we heard that from Woodrow Wilson. In his position as commander-in-chief of the army and navy he could create situations that honorably would demand a declaration of war."

14 Killed When Three Italian Bombers Fall

Rome —(AP)— Officials said today the crash of three Italian bombers in which 14 persons were killed was due to a violent storm and to ice on the wings of the planes.

Thirteen fliers and one farmer hit by a crashing plane lost their lives in the accident yesterday. Five airmen escaped by means of parachutes. The planes belonged to a group flying from a northern Italian air base to Sicily.

English Children May be Brought to U. S. to Escape War

Milwaukee—(AP)—Dr. James Rowland Angell, former Yale University president, said last night that the American branch of the English-speaking union had completed plans for the transfer of English children to the United States if the present war makes such a move necessary.

Dr. Angell, president of the union, told a Milwaukee unit:

"The practical problem of bringing over English children and putting them in American homes is very serious and difficult. We have already prepared a good deal of machinery, so if such a step is ever necessary we can go ahead with the plan."

He added:

"I can't conceive of any reason why German children shouldn't be taken, too. Whoever else is at fault in the present war, it isn't the children."

Terror Pep Club Organized to Maintain Effective Cheering

The Terror Pep club of Appleton High school will meet Friday afternoon in the small gymnasium for its second period of training in songs and yells. The meeting is in preparation for the basketball game with Fond du Lac Friday evening.

The group was organized at the beginning of the basketball season to maintain a more effective cheering section at the games and to provide a definite medium for expressing school spirit. Country's Wrong, Not Education

Practical Vocational Training Attacked by Dr. R. M. Hutchins

Milwaukee—(AP)—Strictly practical vocational education is apt to make the graduate unfit "to meet the new and unforeseen problems raised by technology and social change," Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, University of Chicago president, declared here last night.

Discussing the American educational system, he asserted that what at first glance appeared to be defects in the system were in reality defects in American society.

"There is never anything wrong with the educational system of a country," Dr. Hutchins said. "What is wrong is the country."

"Money is the symbol of the things we honor. We talk a good deal about freedom. It seems on analysis to be the freedom to make money. We talk about equality. Under scrutiny it often turns out to be equality of opportunity to make money."

"So the tendency is more and more to drive out of the course of study everything which is not immediately and obviously concerned with making a living," he said, adding:

"Yet there is little evidence that vocational education of a strictly practical kind is useful in enabling the graduate to fit into the vocation. As a matter of fact, it is apt to unfit him to meet the new and unforseen problems raised by technology and social change."

He addressed a joint meeting sponsored by the City club and the Business and Professional Women's club.

CLEOPATRA'S PALACE

Rome —(AP)— Italian archeologists believe they have found the site of the sumptuous palace occupied by Cleopatra during her two-year residence in Rome from 48 to 46 B.C. Excavations along the bank of the Tiber six miles from Rome have uncovered ruins of several buildings, with frescoes, mosaic floorings and fragments of statuary where the glamorous queen is supposed to have entertained Marc Anthony.

Student Curators at School Taking Inventory of Museum

Student curators of Appleton High school's museum are taking inventory of their collections and expect to have listed well over 3,000 specimens when their task is completed, according to Carl Salentine, who heads the corp workers. Salentine is assisted by Elden Harvey and a committee consisting of Rita Schweitzer, Pearl Noffke, Nancy Errington, Delores Van Dinter and Roger Langdok.

The museum has been growing steadily since it was started last fall under the tutelage of Harvey Gygi, biology instructor. Gifts of curios and specimens from friends of the high school increased its scope as well as the continued work of students. One of the most recent gifts was by Ray Thomas, a 1939 graduate. Thomas donated to the museum his 30 Riker mounts of butterflies. Although most of the specimens come from or near Wisconsin, Salentine proudly displays the tusk of a wild boar which came all the way from the southeastern part of Asia. It is the gift of E. W. Cook. Mounted deer heads, sea urchins, owls, arrow heads, gulls, butterflies, old canes... these are but a few of the items which suggest the variety of specimens in the museum.

Open to Visitors

Each Wednesday afternoon the tower room is open to visitors who are invited to come and browse around. In addition, the museum is used frequently for class room work and specimens either are taken down to the class rooms or the students move up for some first hand information about an animal they might be studying.

While the curators are upstairs spraying the specimens to keep the moths away, other members of the Nature Study club are busy in the biology laboratory taking care of the live animals. The newest arrivals are two albino guinea pigs which were born on Thanksgiving day. These will be used later in the semester, according to Gygi, when a study of food is begun. Students will feed the guinea pigs various types of food and note reactions on skin, bone structure and behavior.

Two ground hogs now safely encased in a screen shade, apparently did not enjoy the school room atmosphere for they attempted to literally bore their way out through a pine wood case an inch thick. A diet of carrots and potatoes, however, seems to have satisfied them temporarily. They will be kept long enough for students to study their habits, Gygi stated. Two permanent pets of the laboratory are a rabbit and a white rat who receive daily care from members of the club.

A special project which the group has undertaken again this year is to make wreaths for the door of every instructor in school.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold promptly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

He went to Africa as joint representative of the American Missionary association and the American Board to the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the West Central Africa Mission of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and afterwards traveled across Africa visiting all the principal stations on that continent. He will be remembered for his visit to Appleton about a year ago.

They were two of nine Wisconsin proposals he authorized subject to final approval of the state WPA administrator and to the availability of funds and relief labor.

Sentence Suspended In Securities Case

Barron—(AP)—Circuit Judge W. R. Foley imposed a suspended one-year state prison sentence yesterday on Reed Bartlett of Cameron, Wis., after Bartlett pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the state securities law.

The defendant, inventor of a compressed air machine, was placed in the custody of the state parole board.

Judge Foley ordered Bartlett to stop selling stock in his firm, the Bartlett Manufacturing company, and turn over books and records to his attorney until Bartlett had complied with all rules of the state public service commission.

Man Jumps From 18th Floor of Y

Chicago Chauffeur Pens Holiday Greetings And Leaps

Chicago—(AP)—The telephone operator in the Lawson Y. M. C. A. answered a call from an 18th floor room early today and was horrified to hear a man say:

"My door is open and I'm going to jump out of the window!"

The operator, Mrs. Ellen Scholl, hardly had time to call the night manager when there came a crash outside the fifth floor switchboard room.

The man had jumped from the 18th floor to his death, his body landing on a fifth floor setback.

Police said he carried a chauffeur's badge in the name of Ben Tucker, 33, of Chicago, and that they found a note in his room indicating he planned to take his life because of some family trouble.

Later investigators disclosed contents of four notes found in the room.

One read: "What a man thinks about when about to die. Just left a 6 o'clock call. When I go I'm going to leave the receiver off the hook. I've been here for hours. To my brother: All I can say is I'm sorry. To my sister: Forgive me."

Another closed with "a happy New Year and a Merry Christmas to all" and across its margin was written: "Boy o boy, that's an awful drop out there. B. T."

Pegler Says Mrs. Roosevelt Failed to Show Up Committee

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Pegler

New York—There is an impression that Mrs. Roosevelt showed up the Dies committee by her conduct and her writings sympathetic to members of the American Youth Congress in Washington last week. That she tried to show up the Dies committee can be conceded without a struggle, but that she succeeded in doing so I don't agree. It is my belief that the committee showed up Mrs. Roosevelt instead, or, more correctly, that the committee created a situation in which she tipped her own hand. The question whether she is sympathetic with the Communists is a clumsy one and is not capable of absolute proof either way. Each person finds himself in the position of a jury-man on that one, invited to reach his own verdict on the evidence, and, in any case, the evidence is convincing.

I think this whole administration has been sympathetic with the Communists, and that Mrs. Roosevelt, holding neither appointive nor elective position, is influential in the opinions and policies of the administration. That is all right, too. Mrs. Roosevelt is her own woman and this is their own administration.

My most convincing authority on the history and character of the youth congress is J. B. Matthews, the backslid bolo, who was a fellow traveler for years and who is now an examiner and research man for the Dies committee.

I wouldn't trust Matthews as far as I could sling an anvil by the horn, because any man who admits, as he does, that he saw the Ukraine famine with his own eyes but refused to believe what he saw, and admits that long afterward he denounced as false, without even reading them, a series of articles by another witness, describing those horrors, is a liar by the clock, even though he calls his lies self-deception, as Matthews does.

But the sequence, the substance and the citations in Matthews' account of the history of the youth congress are such as to relieve me of any need for trusting his word. Matthews gives convincing evidence that the Communists did take over the youth congress, and, referring back to last summer, when this Trojan horse bucked, whinnied and squealed in wild alarm over a resolution to denounce communism along with fascism and compromised by denouncing dictatorships instead, I am confident of my conviction. The bolos don't admit that the Stalin dictatorship is a dictatorship, so, technically, the red punks did not repudiate Stalin in permitting that resolution to pass under great pressure.

Objection To Treatment Of Witnesses Comes Late

Mrs. Roosevelt's perturbation about the injustice that is inflicted on witnesses appearing before congressional committees comes very late and not much better late than if it never had been expressed at all. It is a fact that citizens hailed before the inquisitors are not allowed counsel and that some examiners give them the old district attorney's treatment, but surely that isn't news to Mrs. Roosevelt after all this time and it would have seemed better if she had taken occasion to object to such conduct toward simple citizens much earlier in the game.

Her protest, raised only now and in these particular circumstances, suggests that it wasn't so much the treatment itself as the identity and character of the victims that aroused the gracious lady's sense of justice.

She couldn't have thought of rushing to the defense of J. P. Morgan or of Mr. Hearst's telegrams, could she? True, it may be that these are bad Americans, but the civil liberties fans and bolos themselves are always urging, on behalf of saboteurs and provocateurs, that the worst cases make the best cement to repair the structure of American rights.

Youth Has Little To Say About 'Movements'

This youth outfit may not now be as Communistic as it was, but Mrs. Roosevelt was for it before the fall of Warsaw and the attack on Finland when it was at its worst. Communism hasn't changed at all in the meanwhile.

The Stalin dictatorship is no worse now than it was then and in these new atrocities is just running true to form and to the character ascribed to it all along by those who examined communism and nazism and found them alike. The fact that some American bolos have quit communism since the Stalin-Hitler pact means only that they were embarrassed and double-crossed by Stalin.

Anyway, this youth movement, like all the others, is a phony, because not one of them is a genuine youth movement. They are all organized, directed and hopped up by leaders of middle years who want to direct youth into some service, political, military or religious. The punks just think they are running their own shows. If not, then what is Mrs. Roosevelt doing in a youth movement?

Wednesday's High 50 Degrees; Drop Forecast Tonight

Fair Tomorrow, Bureau Predicts; Mercury at 45 This Afetrnoon

Comment on the mild December weather was heard in Appleton again today as the thermometer climbed into unseasonable heights. The 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning produced startling figures. The highest mark during that period was 50 degrees, recorded at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the lowest was 36, at 9 o'clock today.

Fair tonight and tomorrow, with colder temperatures this evening, is the forecast for Wisconsin issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

When people of Appleton and vicinity awakened this morning, they heard a heavy wind rattling windowpanes and saw dark clouds streaking across a background of blue sky. It appeared that a drop in temperature and a snowstorm were scheduled, but as the day proceeded the wind lessened and the skies cleared.

Despite the fact that the first week of December is nearly over, the coldest reading in the nation, reported from Williston, N. D., was only 10 degrees below freezing, 22. Abilene, Tex., had the high mark, 83.

At 1:45 this afternoon the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent registered 45 degrees. There were no remains of the snow which fell on the city earlier this week.

Mayor Asks Drivers, Pedestrians to Join In Safety Campaign

To bring attention to the National Safety council's campaign against December accidents, Mayor John Goodland, Jr., today issued a proclamation asking drivers and pedestrians to cooperate in the drive.

Following is the mayor's proclamation:

"Whereas, the National safety council, supported by 30 other national organizations, is conducting a nationwide campaign to cut down the heavy December traffic toll; and

"Whereas, the needless slaughter of human lives on America's streets and highways usually reaches a peak in December, when bad weather and more hours of darkness combine with the rush and geniality of the holiday season to transform Christmas joy into tragedy and suffering;

"Therefore, I, as mayor, knowing that every resident of this city is not only willing but eager to join a campaign to save human life, call upon every man, woman and child to join this drive and through added caution in driving and walking to make this Christmas truly a happy one."

Magnus reported that 125 discussion leaders met in Appleton last night. There were two earlier meetings this week for the leaders, one at Seymour Tuesday afternoon and the second at Shiocton Wednesday afternoon. Each of these gatherings drew about 800 men.

was turned around by the force of the collision and skidded about 40 feet to the east side of the intersection. The Remmel car was badly smashed by the collision while the front and the right side of the Smyth car were damaged.

Dr. G. A. Steele, Winnebago county coroner, Lewis C. Magnusen, district attorney, and Sheriff Paul Neubauer launched an investigation of the accident this morning and were expected to draw an inquest jury to visit the scene of the accident this afternoon.

Red Cross Board To Hear Reports On 1939 Campaign

Final reports in the annual roll call of the Outagamie county chapter of the American Red Cross will be heard at a meeting of the board of directors at 6:15 tonight at the Appleton Y. M. C. A.

The Rev. G. H. Blum, co-chairman of the drive with George F. Werner, will speak at the meeting. E. A. Spees, field representative for the National chapter in Wisconsin, will be at the meeting.

The board will discuss the budget for the new year and development of projects. Several of the branch chapters are expected to be represented at the meeting.

It Is Said--

That letters requesting information concerning Appleton's bicycle bureau and registration system still are being received by the police department from various parts of the country. One of the most recent requests is from the chief of police at Greenwood, Miss. The request letter stated that the Appleton bicycle safety regulations have been highly recommended.

That jury members in the second degree murder trial being held in circuit court are seeing a lot of each other these days. The jury members are not allowed to go home until the trial is completed and must spend their nights at a local hotel. It is the first time that this has been necessary here in a number of years.

When the Wisconsin Michigan Power company brought 700 special delivery letters for Appleton residents to the Appleton post office at 5:30 Tuesday afternoon, the carriers set out on about as busy an evening as they ever expect to experience.

As late at 11 o'clock Tuesday night, letters were being delivered to residents, some of whom had already retired. Postmaster Stephen Balliet reported that the most special deliveries the post office has had in a single day, during the Christmas season, was 550.

That Frederick and Charles Hervey, ages 17 and 15, repsectively, are looking forward with a great deal of excitement to seeing their first white Christmas. Although they have lived in Appleton for 14 years, they never saw snow at Christmas time because their family always spent the holiday season with relatives at New Orleans or Memphis, Tenn. Last month their grandfather, last of the family in the south, died at Memphis, so there will be no reason for the Hervey family to journey southward this Christmas. The boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hervey, 1128 N. Lemiwah street.

Because of this custom of spending Christmas in the south, the Herveys have received what is probably the first Christmas box delivered in Appleton this year. It was sent by a brother of Mrs. Hervey's from Glens Falls, N. Y. Unaware that the family would stay in Appleton this Christmas, he sent the package early so that they would get it before they left.

Principals and spectators in the Mike Kuhn trial are unaware that the circuit court chambers at the courthouse have balcony seats. The balcony is not visible from the chambers, but it's being used just the same.

As a Post-Crescent reporter walked along the hallway on the third floor of the courthouse this morning, he had to sidestep several chairs placed against the wall. Onlookers were standing on the chairs and peeking over the transoms at the proceedings. Just like the press box at a football game.

1,000 Republican Delegates Will be Sent to Conclave

oming 6, Alaska 3, District of Columbia 3, Hawaii 3, Puerto Rico 2, and Philippine Islands 2.

Twenty Republican leaders, anxious to start the 1940 campaign with a well-filled war chest, gathered here today to discuss a three-month drive to wipe out a $700,000 deficit left over from the unsuccessful 1936 presidential race.

"We are going to try to get this deficit out of the way before the next campaign starts," said Representative Martin of Masschusetts, the house minority leader.

Some others attending said fund-raising for 1940 was going to be rather difficult for both major parties.

In any event, they added, the total sought by the Republicans would fall short of the $9,892,971 spent in 1936.

Meet Early Next Year

The group called to the one-day closed session comprised the executive committee of the Republican national committee.

Selection of a time and place for the next national convention to choose presidential and vice presidential candidates is the function of the full national committee, which will meet around Feb. 1. Cities thus far to show an interest in obtaining the convention were said to be New York, Chicago, Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

John Hamilton, national committee chairman, said the party organization was in "better shape today that it has been in several years, both nationally and locally."

Expect to Win

"Our people are sincerely convinced that they can win next year —and they are going out to win," he added.

"Most of the conferees did not comment at once about the speech at Minneapolis last night of Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, in which the New York district attorney criticized the Roosevelt administration on "defeatist" and spending grounds.

One party leader, speaking anonymously, said he thought Dewey had disappointed many of his would-be supporters by "generalizing."

"A Vandenberg or a McNary, whose records are already known, could afford to speak that way," this leader said, "but Dewey is an unknown and if he doesn't state his hand on national problems he will remain unknown and the boat might pass him by."

DEWEY'S SPEECH

Minneapolis — (AP) — Thomas E. Dewey probed to the roots of the farm problem today, seeking facts and suggestions to use in his drive for the Republican presidential nomination.

He opened his campaign last night with a blast at New Deal "defeatism," and continued it today with a conference with a dozen of the state's top ranking farmers and farm organization leaders.

His inquiry into the farm question coincided with spotlighting of the problem by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont.), who came here to address a Farmers' union convention in St. Paul tonight.

Dewey and his advisers awaited reaction to his speech last night, when he declared that "government hostility, repressive taxation and economic quackery" have stifled American enterprise.

He quoted President Roosevelt as having said "our industrial plant is built. The problem just now is whether under existing conditions it is not overbuilt."

Lashes at New Deal

"Here," Dewey said, "is the whole outlook of the New Deal: The established plants are all right. But the new plants, the new adventures, the new industries, are unnecessary and even possibly undesirable. There is nothing left to do. All that remains is to divide up what we got from the Indians."

"With this philosophy I totally and absolutely disagree," he continued.

Dewey announced that "tonight I am not going to attempt to state solutions of those specific problems" of agriculture, labor, unemployment, business and finance. "Our difficulties," he said, "must be dealt with as a whole.

"First of all, we must make up our minds whether we believe in the continued growth of this country or whether we believe we have reached our economic limit.

"Crisis of Faith"

"It is true that we have a crisis here in America. But ours is a crisis of faith—faith in ourselves, in our system, and in our own traditions. On the solution of that crisis everything depends. If here we can rout defeatism, if here we can regain courage and unbounded activity, if here we can unite industry and agriculture and labor for an invincible America, then, and then only, can we contribute to the peace of all the world's people.

"It is a duty of national government to perform its social obligations. I believe this administration has sincerely attempted to fulfill those obligations. But that is only half the job. The other half is to maintain, to encourage the economic system which supports the government and makes performance of social obligations possible. . . ."

Three New Members Admitted to Masque, Book Club at School

Three new members were admitted to Masque and Book club of Appleton High school Wednesday afternoon following tryouts. They are John Leonard, Edgar Thomas and Bud Houfek.

Mary Kay O'Keefe directed the group in their first experiment in puppeteering which they plan to make an extended project. Miss O'Keefe prepared some papier machie, out of which the group molded a puppet head.

Miss Alice Petersen, English instructor and adviser to the club, explained the technic of staging a puppet show to the group. She told the students that their plays must have no more than four characters and that scripts should have considerable action and no very long speeches.

Five volunteer groups were organized to continue the work on the puppets. Heads will be molded by Bertha Smyrneos, Margaret Lally, Jeanne Ruhling and Elizabeth Wood.

After the heads are molded faces will be painted on them by Lisbeth Atcherson, Ann Smith, Billie Kolb and Miss O'Keefe. Barbara Rosebush, Connie Vaughn, Barbara Ehr, Jane Gee, Carol Schuh and Arlen Greb will sew costumes.

The script will be prepared by Mary Bob Knapp, Jean Watson, Margaret Puth, Merrie Ebert and June Weisberger.

Bob Sager, Pat Connelly, Ethel Rademacher, John Boon, Barbara Welch, Naomi Neugebauer, Robert Dettman, Ben Rohan, Alice Zuehlke and Elizabeth Haug will construct the stage. Reports on the progress made by each group will be called for at the next meeting.

State Rests Case; Kuhn Tells Story Of Tavern Fight

pushed the man back onto the seat. Severson then went from the front to the back seat of the car, Kuhn said.

Later, he said he went to the county jail and talked to the doctor who was attending Pleckham. The doctor claimed there was "nothing to worry" about, Kuhn said. He added that the doctor said there might be a slight concussion and that Pleckham would be all right after sleeping.

Doctor Testifies

Dr. Milton J. Donkle, Oshkosh pathologist, testified as to the cause of Pleckham's death. He said a brain injury, caused by some outside force, was responsible.

Dr. F. J. Huberty, who was called to the jail the morning after the altercation and ordered Pleckham taken to the hospital, also testified that in his opinion the brain injury was the cause of death.

First witnesses called by the defense were Mr. and Mrs. John Laux, route 2, Shiocton, neighbors of Pleckham. They testified that Pleckham and his wife arrived at their home around noon on Aug. 24 and that Pleckham said he was going to see a doctor. Mrs. Pleckham remained at the Laux home, they said.

Went for Ride

Testimony that Kuhn had had "about eight glasses of beer and perhaps a couple of drinks of whiskey" during the afternoon of Aug. 24 was given by Chester Martin, Waupaca county, yesterday afternoon. Martin said that he played cards for beers at the Kuhn tavern with the operator early in the afternoon and that they went for a ride first in Martin's truck and later in a car that Kuhn had bought.

They stopped at the Louis Tackman Lumber company office where they had a bottle of beer, Martin said. He admitted scuffling with Kuhn but said it was of a friendly nature. Later he and Kuhn went to the Reinke tavern where a girl was tending bar, Martin said. Pleckham was in the tavern and when Kuhn asked the girl if she was glad to see them come in she answered in the affirmativev, the witness said. Kuhn called his wife from the tavern, and Pleckham left as they went into the place, the jury was told. The two men, Martin said, then went to the Zuleger tavern but left immediately without having any drinks because Martin had forgotten his change at the Reinke tavern. From the Reinke tavern they returned to the Kuhn tavern and Martin then went home, he said.

Richard Schoepke, Waupaca county, and Ed Conrad, town of Bovina, former employers of Pleckham testified that the man was of good character and a good worker. He was not a drinking man, they said.

Called To Tavern

Constable Carl Krull, who was called to the tavern when the altercation occurred, said that when he entered, Kuhn drew him to one side, asked if he had heard about a man attacking women and then pointed to Pleckham saying, "There [illegible] is." Kuhn attempted to go after the man, but bystanders prevented him from doing so, Krull said.

The constable told of taking Pleckham to the car and of Kuhn's reaching through the window and hitting the unconscious man in the face. He said Kuhn warned him not to drive away alone with the man as he might "pick up something and hit you with it."

Krull said that Kuhn remarked "If you don't get him out of here, I'll kill him." The constable said he replied, "You already did."

Kuhn approached Krull the next day, Krull said, and asked him to change his story that the tavernkeeper was drunk. The constable said he told Kuhn that he could not do so.

Doctor Testifies

Dr. C. A. Pardee, who treated Pleckham when he was brought to the county jail after the altercation, testified as to his examination and also as to the cause of death as determined at the autopsy.

The man was bruised about the face, head and chest, Dr. Pardee said, but the injuries did not seem of a fatal nature. There was no skull fracture, he said, and the man appeared to have been severely beaten and drunk. This condition could have been caused by a brain injury, he stated.

The autopsy showed two injuries to the brain, one towards the front and the other near the back, and Dr. Pardee said that in his opinion they were the cause of death. The injuries were caused by some outside force or violence, but there was no skull fracture, he told the jury.

Vernon Ness, Nichols, who arrived during the altercation told of helping to pull Kuhn off Pleckham. He said Kuhn warned him not to turn his back to Pleckham as the man might attack him. Ness said he and Mrs. Kuhn tried to reason with Kuhn and calm him down.

Students Quiz Leader of Tabernacle Youth Revivals

College students, those perennial seekers after the truth, are interested in everything from swing to Freudian theories. And that includes evangelism.

Last week a group of Lawrence students and their professor of Bible and religion, Dr. Thomas S. Kepler, attended some of the youth revival meetings being conducted at the Gospel temple by Evangelist Paul Hild.

Curious about the type of religion preached there and various aspects of the service, they invited the Rev. C. D. Goudie, pastor of the temple, and Mr. Hild to meet with them Wednesday afternoon at Hamar union so that they could ask the questions they could not ask at the public services.

Dr. Kepler and about 30 students were present at the meeting yesterday afternoon. Although the number was small, the interest was keen, and the two evangelists found themselves showered with questions.

"Will the savage who had no chance to learn of Christ be damned? Can only those persons who experience rebirth have salvation? On what do you base the validity of the Bible? Isn't your religion emotional rather than reasoning? Can you accept evolution?" were some of the questions the students wanted answered.

Explains Principle

As a basis for the discussion the Rev. Mr. Goudie explained that the Gospel temple was conducted on the principle that "receiving Jesus as your personal Savior is life."

"It's one thing to know of Christ with your mind, lifting Him up as a wonderful character," Goudie said. "It's another thing to know Him as your personal savior and the Son of God. That is essential. There is salvation in none other than Jesus Christ."

Asked by one of the students whether such other religious sects as the Mohammedans were therefore condemned, Mr. Goudie replied, "There is no salvation in their religion."

"Is it possible to save ourselves?" a coed inquired.

"No. That's why Christ died," Goudie answered. "The wages of sin is death, whether you accept it or not. You can't move up to God, so Jesus Christ became the mediator."

When one of the students asked if he would not receive salvation if he lived his life as well as he could, Goudie said though a man might be living in accordance with the highest standards of men, those standards might still be short of the standards of God.

Preaches "Against Sins"

Evangelist Hild had, it seems, made some disparaging remarks about Stalin, in one of his revival meetings, and a student asked him if that was not contrary to the Christian philosophy to "love your enemies."

Hild explained that it was not against the man but against his sins that he preached, and that Stalin's killing of Christians and saints might be called an unpardonable sin.

On the question of the validity of the Bible, Goudie said that men believed it was inspired because it inspired them. History also proves its validity, as does the fulfillment of its prophesies, he declared. He said he could not accept evolution because according to the Bible God made all creatures.

Dr. Kepler said he considered the Bible a story of man's growth religiously, and that if the Bible was considered also as scientific fact, the things students were learning in their science classes would be wrong.

"I accept my Bible as a revelation of religious ideas," he said, "but you get in trouble if you accept it as a revenue of scientific ideas."

Goudie replied that between true religion or true Scriptures and true science there was no conflict.

planted submarines and warships as the greatest threat to maritime traffic.

FREIGHTER LOST

Halifax, N. S.—(AP)—Loss of the 5,989-ton British freighter Manchester Regiment with an unannounced number of her crew and of the 4,607-ton British freighter Chancellor in collisions at sea was disclosed today with arrival here of survivors.

Both collisions occurred in "pea soup" fogs.

The Manchester Regiment was rammed Monday by the 14,118-ton British passenger liner Oropesa, crew members said as they reached here aboard the Oropesa.

The Oropesa also brought 42 members of the Chancellor's crew. The Chancellor went down Saturday after being rammed by the British tanker Athelchief, and her crew were aboard the Oropesa when the Manchester Regiment was struck.

The Manchester Regiment had to be abandoned and was believed to be still afloat as a derelict. Halifax officials of Furness Withy, Ltd., agents for the Manchester Regiment, would not disclose how many of her crew was lost or how the casualties occurred. They said only that all were British and that the nearest relatives had been notified.

The Oropesa was not badly damaged. She was inward bound, the Manchester Regiment outward bound. Both the Chancellor and the Athelchief were going out when they collided.

John G. Canavan Succumbs at 84

Stephensville Man Was Resident of County Over 83 Years

A resident of Outagamie county for more than 83 years, John G. Canavan, 84, Stephensville, died at his home at 9:30 last evening after a short illness. He was born in Boston, Mass., May 9, 1855, and his family moved to the town of Ellington 3 months later. Mr. Canavan lived on the farm in the town of Ellington until 1922 when he moved to Stephensville.

He was a brother of Dr. James V. Canavan, former mayor of Appleton who died in 1914. His wife, Jane Heidemann, whom he married in 1899, died in 1924.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. H. J. Van Straten, Stephensville, and a son, Patrick J. Canavan, Appleton.

Funeral services will be conducted at 9:30 Saturday morning at St. Patrick church, Stephensville, and burial will be in the parish cemetery. The body can be viewed at the residence.

Racial Grudge Held Possible Motive in Bludgeon Slaying of German Consulate Secretary

said. This man had shared Engelberg's home for a time.

Reynolds said robbery was not the motive because Engelberg's valuables had not been disturbed.

Neighbors had regarded "Hitler house" as a place of mystery. They said Engelberg had "entertained" men until late hours; that only men were seen to enter, and that men had been hired to do the house work.

Engelberg was seen last at his consulate office Monday afternoon. He did not appear Tuesday, and when half of yesterday passed without word from him, Frederick Doell, consulate employe, was sent to find out the trouble. Doell discovered the body.

Engelberg, who held a doctor of laws degree from the University of Berlin, came to the United States about a year ago following a transfer from Athens, Greece.

Although the neighbors said one of their number had requested the federal bureau of investigation to check up on Engelberg's "suspicious actions," P. E. Foxworth, agent in charge of F.B.I. here, said, "examination of the files of this office shows that we never received a request for such an investigation."

Consulate officials did not indicate whether the embassy in Washington would take any action, but it was pointed out that under ordinary circumstances, an embassy would not invoke diplomatic action in such a case until after the usual police and court procedure.

Reds Claim Finn Line Is Shattered

100,000 in reserve. Helsinki military experts have estimated that about 200,000 Russians were engaged in the campaign on all fronts.

("While companies advancing in line were mowed down by Finnish artillery and infantry in thousands," the correspondent wrote. "Many Russians had no leggings, only overshoes, which were filled with straw and bound with cord.")

Russian advices said the isthmus line lies about 16 miles from the border at its nearest point and that, aside from the break-through, red forces advanced all along the narrow neck of Finland north of Leningrad.

Reds operating against the Finns' western flank in the isthmus reported capturing Ino and Mesterjarvi, in the Fort Ino area on the Finnish gulf, and Perkjarvi, 22 miles from the border on the Leningrad-Viipuri railway.

Cut Railway Line

Slogging through snowy forests north of Lake Ladoga, on the middle eastern front, reds were said to have cut a railway line running from that large body of water across Finland to the Swedish border.

In the Petsamo region, northernmost Finland, the Russians reported no new advances.

(Finnish reports to Helsinki asserted all attacks of the red army had been repulsed yesterday and that eight tanks were destroyed, among 80 wrecked since the war started last Thursday morning.

Tass, the official Russian news agency, meanwhile issued a denial of Norwegian reports of Tuesday that Finnish airmen had destroyed 60 Russian planes at Murmansk with incendiary bombs. This, Tass said, was a "complete fabrication."

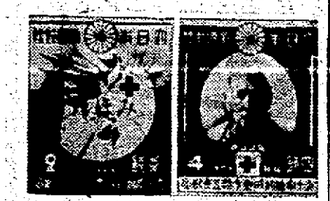
The WORLD of STAMPS

THE WORLD OF STAMPS

Japan has issued a set of four values to mark the 75th anniversary of Japan's joining the International Red Cross.

The 2-sen and 10-sen stamps show the Japanese empire on a globe of the world. The 4-sen and 20-sen portray the late Count Tsunetami Sano, founder of the nation's Red Cross society. The color of the 2-sen is brown; the 4s., green; the 10s., red; and the 20s., blue. All stamps carry the familiar Red Cross sign.

For three days, starting November 15, the larger Japanese post offices used a special cancellation showing a huge cross superimposed on a globe and bearing the Japanese characters for "In commemoration of the 75th anniversary of conclusion of the Red Cross treaty."



Famous Americans

In the sleepy, pleasant Catskills of New York a philatelic row has developed between Irvington and Tarrytown.

It started when the Post Office Department announced that first-day sales for the 1-cent commemorative of the Famous American series honoring Washington Irving would be held in Tarrytown.

The mayor of nearby Irvington howled foul, wrote to his Senator Mead to do something about it. The mayor's claim was that "Sunnyside," the old Dutch brick home where the author lived, is a part of Irvington and that many of Irving's descendants still live in the village.

In the Post Office Department's original announcement it was stated the stamp would be issued at Tarrytown because Irving "lived and wrote his books at his estate. . . near Tarrytown." Officials now say that "all factors bearing on the selection of Tarrytown were considered" and that the decision to place the stamp on sale there was approved by the President.

Unassorted Stamp Items

Afghanistan has issued a new pictorial set but the designs are, for the most part, adaptations of older pictorial and portrait issues. . . Russia has released advanced illustrations for two sets of three values each. The first will honor M. J. Lermontov, a poet, and the other will commemorate N. G. Chernyshevski, a scientist. . . . Luxumbourg has over-printed the 60-centimes green of 1928, portraying Grand Duchess Charlotte, with a large "30". . . . Sweden plans to issue a set next year to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the birth of Johan Tobias Sergel, sculptor.

PLAY IN 'ANOTHER THIN MAN'

Blending laughs with thrills and mystery with mirth in their well-remembered and delightful fashion, the "Thin Man" pair return to the screen tomorrow in "Another Thin Man" at the Rio theater, with Myrna Loy and William Powell and Nick and Nora Charles, the title roles they created in the first picture of the series.

The picture is a worthy successor to the two preceding episodes of the "Thin Man" saga which set a high mark in entertainment value and also a new style in mystery pictures.

In addition, it presents a baby Thin Man whose nonchalant ways would wring laughs from brass monkeys or wooden Indians.

Co-featured on the same program is "Flight at Midnight," with Phil Regan, Jean Parker, and Col. Roscoe Turner in the leading roles.

Tax of $4,436 Set in Mrs. Mary Haug Estate

Final judgment allowing disposition of the $99,407.65 estate of Mrs. Mary Haug, Appleton, was made this week by County Judge Fred V. Heinemann. The inheritance tax was set at $4,436.89. A daughter, Rose Haug, will receive $82,549.83 while each of six grandchildren will receive $2,709.64. The grandchildren are Mary Rose Haug, Elizabeth Ann Haug, Margaret Louis Haug, John W. Haug, Genevieve M. Haug and Joseph F. Haug.

Expect Canada, U. S. Will Agree

Lakes-St. Lawrence Waterway and Power Project Isn't Far Off

Washington — (AP) — Informed sources predicted last night that an sources predicted Tuesday night that an accord would be concluded soon between the United States and Canada for the creation of a Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway and power project.

Negotiations between the two countries, in progress since May, 1938, have narrowed down to purely technical questions, it was said.

The outbreak of the war, increasing Canada's need for electric power, has been a material factor in influencing Canada's decision, virtually reached, to go along with the American government in constructing the development, which would cost an estimated $200,000,000.

In general, the two governments are said to be fairly well in accord on a treaty which would follow, without serious deviations, provisions of a proposed draft sent to Canada by the state department.

The major portion of the cost would be borne by the United States. This is because Canada already has expended funds on Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway projects, such as the Welland canal.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

WE'VE OFTEN HEARD CRACKS made about the use of Appleton city parks to enhance the value of the property of nearby taxpayers, and that some were used as forest preserves or something, and that as a playground they were useless. Recently the attitude changed a bit and tennis courts were installed in some and softball diamonds were built and it looked as if the parks were to be used. But yesterday all those criticisms came bounding back again as we walked through the city park on E. North street, N. Drew street, etc.

Last summer we often noticed a group of kids playing softball on the north side of the park, especially after some of the ancient trees were removed. This fall the same kids occasionally had a rough and tumble football game and occasionally some of the fraternity boys from the Phi Delt house across the street came over and tossed a football around instead of risking their necks in the street.

But yesterday we came upon five excavations for new trees, one there, one there, one there, one there and one there. And all five were in the area the kids had found big enough to play softball and rough and tumble!

So the city park again becomes a forest preserve because the trees being planted aren't little ones, and once more the ground in the city park will be so damp you can't sit down on it except in extremely dry periods, and the violets will grow in its shady wet spots and someone will post a "Wild life refuge" sign.

And we hope the damp places breed mosquitoes and they make it quite miserable for whomever suggested those trees—on the only spot where a kid could play.

Officers of the Green Bay Packer corporation, who have been having their headaches over requests for tickets and complimentary tickets to the championship game, have hit upon a new method of explaining. They have had printed parts of the league constitution pertaining to the title game and let the reader draw his own conclusion.

The constitution says that the free list is suspended, with the exception of the working press which for this game is limited to 75 persons (and you can bet they'll all be from metropolitan newspapers); the president of the league is given a block of ten seats; and each club owner shall receive not more than four ducats.

We understand the Packer corporation purchased a few seats to give to its backers who couldn't be passed up.

Eddie Anderson Is Selected as Coach of the Year

New York—(AP)—Dr. Eddie Anderson, head mentor of the University of Iowa's football team, today was named 1939's "coach of the year" in a nation-wide poll conducted by the New York World-Telegram.

The one-time Notre Dame end received 48 of the 80 votes to become the fifth to be named to the high honor.

Dr. Anderson's first year at the helm of an Iowa team that finished eighth in the Big Ten in 1938 and second to Ohio State this year, was "universally acclaimed as an heroic job" the newspaper said today.

Dr. Anderson will be honored here Saturday night at a dinner and presentation of a scroll that places his name alongside his predecessors: Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern; Dick Harlow, Harvard; E. E. "Hooks" Mylin, LaFayette, and Bill Kern, Carnegie Tech.

Anderson came east with his prize pupil, Nile Kinnick, who last night received the Heisman trophy, awarded to the year's outstanding college football player.

Don Hutson Sets Three New Records in Pro Grid League

NEW YORK —(AP)— Individual records fell literally by the dozen during the 1939 National Football league season, final statistics revealed.

With Davey O'Brien and Don Hutson, each with three new marks to his credit, setting the pace, eight players participated in the breaking of 13 records.

Ward Cuff of the New York Giants, with seven field goals, was the only player to retain his 1938 championship.

Rookies Parker Hall of Cleveland and Bill Osmanski of the Chicago Bears won championships in forward passing and ground gaining respectively, and Andy Farkas of Washington, and Hutson, were among the scoring and pass receiving leaders.

O'Brien's 1324 yards on aerials shaded the 1127 mark of Sammy Baugh in 11 games in 1937, and also the 12-game total of 1239 yards of Arnie Herber of Green Bay in 1936. His 21 completions against the Chicago Bears set a new game record.

Hall completed 106 passes, 25 more than Baugh completed in 1937, and his efficiency average of 50.9 per cent was third best in the league to give him the individual passing title. Filchock and O'Brien were tied for second place. Filchock completed 55 of 89 tosses for an efficiency percentage of .61.7, bettering Ed Danowski's .54.2 mark of last season.

Hutson caught 34 passes for 846 yards to set a new mark in that department and boost his five-season total to 159 receptions for 2890 yards, overtaking Johnny Blood's 14-season total of 135 receptions for 2755 yards.

Farkas registered 11 touchdowns to break Hutson's season total of nine made in 1936 and equalled in 1938, and he also booted two extra points to give him 68 for the season.

Illinois Cagers Win Two as Big 10 Squads 'Warm Up'

Chicago Triumphs Over Teachers; Notre Dame Tips Cincinnati

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Big Ten's winning record against non-conference basketball foes this season still was intact today as Ohio State, conference champion, and Purdue, perennial contender, sought to join the group that now includes Illinois, Chicago, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa.

Ohio State will test its plentiful and promising sophomore material tonight against Otterbein. Purdue, however, will rely on veterans against the usually formidable Western (Ill.) State Teachers. In each instance the conference members are the hosts.

Illinois got the jump on the rest of the Big Ten teams in the matter of victories last night by playing and winning a double header. Twenty cagers saw service in the opener as the Illini defeated Monmouth, 37 to 19. Nine participated in the 60 to 21 rout of Wabash.

Dick Lounsbury, veteran Chicago center, led the Maroons to a 42 to 26 opening triumph over the Chicago Teachers college.

At South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame trounced Cincinnati, 54 to 17 for its third victory in a row.

Iowa takes on its second opponent of the season—Millikin University of Decatur, Ill.—at Iowa City tomorrow night. Indiana and Michigan wait until Saturday for their debuts. Indiana Indiana will play Wabash and Michigan will face Michigan State.

Big Ten May Act On Chicago's Plan

Maroons Want Eligibility Rules for Their Athletes

Chicago—(AP)—A proposal to revise eligibility requirements for University of Chicago athletes appears likely to come before Western conference faculty representatives at their meeting here Friday and Saturday.

Dean George A. Works, co-author of the proposal, said he expected it would come to a vote at this meeting. It was presented to the Big Ten group last spring but no action was taken.

Under the plan, students who transfer to Chicago from other institutions would be eligible for intercollegiate competition without the one year of residence now required by the conference. Excepted would be freshmen, professional athletes, and players who have had three years of college competition.

Some observers believed the proposal would encounter opposition because it applies only to Chicago, thus establishing two eligibility codes in the conference.

Schedules for spring sports and dates and sites for conference track, swimming, tennis and golf meets will be chosen at the meetings.

Elm Trees Invade Oshkosh Tonight

Appleton Squad Will Oppose Teachers; Meet Superior Saturday

Elm Tree Baker cagers, with two wins in the Wisconsin-Michigan league to their credit, will play the Oshkosh Teachers in a non-league game this evening at Oshkosh. Both teams will be seeking their third straight victory of the year.

The game will be in the form of a warmup for the Bakers who open Wisconsin-Michigan play at home Saturday night when they battle Superior Oilers at the armory. The Bakers will take a squad of ten to Oshkosh to have enough substitutes to cope with the college's big squad.

Ki Daniels, former member of the Appleton team, will show with Oshkosh.

VIKE SOPHOMORE STAR

When Lawrence college cagers open the season Saturday night with Knox college of Galesburg, Ill., Don Fredrickson, above, a sophomore, will be at one forward. He'll have a lot of work cut out for himself because he probably will have to do most the scoring. He's a southpaw and his left handed shot is most deceptive. So far he has been the most consistent scorer on the team. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Broadway Bookies Are Picking Bays to Win

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)—Forget about Doc Sutherland hanging up his hat at Stanford. Insiders out there say the brass hats will pick Dud DeGroot, San Jose State; Buck Shaw, Santa Clara or Tex Oliver, Oregon. . . . The Green Bay Packers are 7 to 5 over the Giants in Broadway books.

Those rumors that Judge Landis is getting ready to quit are dribbling in again. . . . The minors raised Judge Branham's salary $5,000 which will buy an awful lot of loaves of bread. . . . The portly Doc Spears again has passed up pro offers to remain at Toledo U. and if you want to bet he doesn't wind up in one of the bowls in 1941, the boys out there will oblige you.

Personals: Freddie Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament manager, is flying south to start the ball rolling for the $10,000 Miami open. . . . Nile Kinnick, the football hero who flew in yesterday to receive the Heisman award, must come back to Philly next month to collect the Maxwell trophy. . . . Joe Farrell, press agent for the Chicago Black Hawks, used to be a captain in the Salvation Army.

We Hope Not

"M'Kechnie," headlines the Cincinnati Times-Star, "has no intent to tear down his champions."

Membership Drive Helps Jr. Ski Club

Appleton Junior Ski club now has a membership of 25 boys, it was announced at a meeting last night at the Y. M. C. A. Harold Acker presided in the absence of the president and vice president who were ill.

Two teams are competing in a membership drive. Leon Toonen is captain of the "High Jumpers" and Ole Tinglum of the "Cloud Busters."

The latter group has secured four new members and the former one.

Meetings again will be held weekly. Sunday about 20 members will go on a hike starting at 1 o'clock. They will walk to Putney for a weiner roast and lunch.

Molenda, Assistant Coach Of Giants, Led Packers To 1st Pro League Title

BY ARTHUR BYSTROM

MILWAUKEE —(AP)— Ten years ago a big, rugged fullback, who never ate meat—but was just as tough as the boys who took it rare—led a Green Bay Packer football team onto the New York Polo Grounds to battle the Giants.

The National league title of 1929 hinged on the game. The Packers and Giants both had won nine straight. The winner was almost assured a pennant—there was no playoff in those days.

Only 12 Green Bay men played in the game. The only substitute was Paul Minnick for Jim Bowdoin at guard. "Iron Mike" Michalske played the other guard, flanking big Jugger Earpe at center. At the tackles were Cal Hubbard, now an American league baseball umpire, and Bill Kern, coach at Carnegie Tech. Lavie Dilwig and Tom Nash, at ends, completed the line.

The backfield had Molenda, who scored a touchdown and kicked two extra points, Verne Lewellen, often called the greatest pro punter of them all, Hurdis McCrary and the colorful Johnny Blood.

The 1929 Green Bay team not only went through the season undefeated, something never before accomplished and not since duplicated, but it also piled up 212 points while holding opponents to 24—a defensive mark which still stands.

Molenda was the workhorse. He played 60 minutes in nearly every game.

Sunday Molenda will lead the Giants against his old club in the playoff here for the 1939 National league championship. He helped point the Giants last year to a playoff victory over the Packers in New York by a 23 to 17 score, but the Packers still insist an official erred on a crucial play and deprived them of victory.

They'll be ready Sunday to do something about it.

Ripon Will Meet Knox Friday Night

Wisconsin Rapids Sophomores Expected to Pace Crimson Five

Ripon — Two Wisconsin Rapids sophomores, lanky Jim Rember and speedy Ken Miller, will be teamed with veterans Swede Krcmar, Bill Larson and Captain Milan Bloecher as starters for Ripon college in the Midwest conference basketball opener here Friday night.

Rember, who is inclined to coast during practice sessions, revealed that he can turn on the heat under game conditions. He was Ripon's high scorer against Marquette last week with four from the floor and one from the free-throw line. Miller, handicapped by an injured hand the past week, is nevertheless demonstrating an accurate eye for the hoop which is encouraging to Coach Lanphear who wants every man in the scoring column.

Izzy Rodosevich, one of the four lettermen on the Knox squad, is expected to pace the visitors.

Midwest Conference To Meet in Chicago

The fall meeting of the Midwest conference will be held at the Sherman hotel in Chicago on Friday and Saturday at the same time as other conferences. Attending from Lawrence will be Dean of Administration John S. Millis; Coach Bernie Heselton and W. Henry Johnston, publicity director of the conference. Coach A. C. Denney must remain in Appleton with his basketball team for the game with Knox Saturday night.

Oshkosh Stars to Battle Akron, O., Saturday Night

Road Trip Hasn't Been Successful but Team Feels Its Improving

Special to Post-Crescent

OSHKOSH — The Oshkosh All Stars, with more losses than victories chalked against them as a result of their swing through the east, will return to this city with spirits undampened even though their next National Basketball league game will be with the strong Akron, O., Firestones, to whom Oshkosh lost the title at the close of the 1938-39 season.

Oshkosh and the Firestones, defending champions, respectively, of the Western and Eastern divisions of the league, will clash at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening, Dec. 9, on the Merrill school gymnasium floor in this city.

Having dropped three league games in a row, the All Stars are anxious to get into the win column and with a strengthened lineup and the advantage of playing on their own floor the Oshkosh team is expected to come through for the home fans. Arrangements are to be made to accommodate a large number of fans as it is expected the game will draw a number of followers of the pro cage game from throughout this part of the state.

Firestones Are Good

Oshkosh has a number of followers in the state, as well as in this immediate vicinity. The caliber of the Firestone team is also expected to be an attraction. Last season the quintet won 17 consecutive league games before losing one. It beat Oshkosh in three of four league contests, but the All Stars forced the championship series—which was the best three out of five—to go the entire route before the Akron team took the title.

The Firestones will have three All-Americans, all of whom are from George Keogan's famous Notre Dame team of two years ago. They are Paul Nowak and Johnny Moir, who are playing their second year with the Akron team, who have been joined by Tommy Wukovits, the third member of the basketball musketeers of the Irish who two years ago were feared from coast to coast in collegiate circles.

Other All-Americans who will team with the Notre Dame trio on the Firestone aggregation are Jack Ozburn from Monmouth; Jerry Bush from Brooklyn, St. John's; Bob Hassmiller of Fordham and Harry Sorenson from Nebraska.

Not with the All Stars on its trip east but who will be in the Oshkosh lineup here Saturday are Ed Mullen, All-American guard at Marquette; and Ray Adams, DePaul, who received All-American mention. Also with the Stars will be Connie Mack Berry, a new recruit, who was a standout at South Carolina, and who was added since the Stars started their eastern jaunt.

Middle West Gets Two Men On 'Little All-America'

BY HERB BARKER

NEW YORK — (AP) — The far west, boasting an unusual crop of strong small-college football teams, contributes three men to the 1939 "little all-America," compiled by the Associated Press.

Of the remaining eight first-team berths, the south, east and middle west contribute two each, and the Rocky Mountain and southwest sectors one apiece.

For the most part, these small-college all-stars were scarcely known beyond their own geographical territory but their records indicate they could hold their own in any football company.

Two of the far western representatives are backs—Leroy Zimmerman, powerful fullback for San Jose State, and Tony Canadeo, Gonzaga University halfback. The other is Jack Mulkey, high-scoring end for Fresno State.

Joining Zimmerman and Canadeo in the backfield are Lloyd Madden of Colorado Mines and Sam Hammerstrom of Union (N. Y.) college.

Sharing the end posts with Mulkey is Sherrill Busby, of Troy (Ala.) Teachers. Tackles are Jack Gregory of Chattanooga and Mike Kosiuk of Detroit Tech; the guards, Marion Rogers of Maryville, Mo. Teachers and Frank Loughney of LaSalle (Philadelphia). The center is Clyde Douglas (Bulldog) Turner, great pivot man of Hardin-Simmons.

Second team:

Ends: Neal Allen, Mercer, and Jim Reiser, Ohio Wesleyan; tackles, Paul De Bruhl, Newberry, and Marvin Katzenstein, Colorado Mines; guards, Dick Lindner, Trinity (Conn.), and Stanley Radjunas, Morehead, Ky. Teachers; center, Ralph Schlosser, Gonzaga; backs, Tom Harding, Butler, Leo Wisneski, Central State (Mich.) Teachers, Kenneth Heineman, Texas School of Mines, and Joe Enzler, University of Portland.

Honorable mention included:

Backs—Christiansen, Knox; Farina, Whitewater Teachers (Wis.)

Colonel Joannes Helps Governor Get Tickets — At the Regular Price

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

MADISON—Wisconsin's capital city, which hasn't seen much in the way of championship football this season, dropped talk of budgets and government today as high state officials scrambled with thousands of others to get tickets to the Packer playoff game at Milwaukee Sunday.

While leading political lights button-holed political reporters and kept long distance lines busy and found that their influence doesn't cover as much ground as they thought, Governor Julius Heil disclosed that his penchant for appointing colonels, a subject of many a witticism during the last nine months, stood him in good stead in the ticket emergency.

Heil Tuesday telephoned "my colonel in Green Bay," President Leland Joannes of the Packer corporation, and assured himself that the governor's party would be taken care of—but at the regular rates.

Governor Heil, one of the Packers' most fervent rooters, smiled as he recalled that he had "called up my colonel, and I said that I don't want any favors, but I want 30 tickets at the regular price."

The state executive disclosed that "I have a little money on the Wisconsin boys," but he said that he was a little worried because an Eastern sports writer had intimated that the New York Giants would come out ahead in the championship encounter.

Heil said that he would take his own family to see the game, but that he would give most of the 30 tickets to friends. He offered three of them to reporters who called at his office yesterday morning.

Missouri Coach Is a Brave Man

Don Faurot to Take Team To Orange Bowl Where Oklahoma Fell

Columbia, Mo. —(AP)— He's a man of courage, this Don Faurot who leads his Big Six championship Missouri eleven into Miami's Orange bowl Jan. 1. That's the same spot where Oklahoma, last year's titleholder, was a 17 to 0 sacrificial lamb in Tennessee's march to fame.

Georgia Tech will be "host" school in the 1940 North-South battle.

The Tiger chief, who is 37, was an 88-pound athlete his senior year in high school and a swollen giant of 134 pounds as a junior fullback at Missouri in 1923. But his punting and knifing through the line made the Tigers the terrors of the old Missouri Valley conference.

He showed courage by going to Kirksville (Mo.) Teachers college and taking over a decrepit gridiron outfit. He remained nine years, winning seven titles and going the last three campaigns without a defeat.

Again he showed courage by coming to Missouri in 1935 to head a squad that has been victorious only 6 times in 46 games, once going 17 contests without a triumph.

At his alma mater he was told the campuses of two neighboring girls' finishing schools always have more attraction than the gridiron. But his theory of large squads and wholesale substitutions has brought 26 triumphs, 15 losses and five ties in five years.

Missouri hires its coaches one a year-to-year basis. Only two years ago while captious alumni seethed over his only poor season, Faurot calmly supervised the erection of a new home.

And he built it at a school where 21 coaches preceded him in 44 years.

Landis Expected To be Tough With Baseball Moguls

Otherwise Drab Meeting Should Get a Lift From Judge

BY GAYLE TALBOT

CINCINNATI, OHIO—(AP)—There was a new high note of anticipation around the baseball circus today, a sure sign that "the judge" had landed, tossed his famous black fedora on a convenient lounge and taken charge.

No Barrymore ever timed an entrance with a better eye to the dramatic values. The baseball gathering had struck a sort of "dead center" after three days. The minor league magnates had departed for their respective homes, and with three days still to go there was a crying need for new talent.

"The judge," who is known very respectfully as Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, was confidently expected to perk the production back on its feet. Word has been coming down from Chicago that the boss man was in rare form.

Nobody knew exactly what Landis had on his mind, but there has an undercurrent of feeling that he intended to "crack down" on somebody. The big league magnates, with whom he was closeted today, have been worried and in a state of indecision about their "working agreements" with the minors.

The situation, broadly speaking, boils down to the fact that the white-thatched arbiter of baseball gradually has become a triple tougher and taken to himself slightly broader powers than the club owners ever anticipated he would. Now they are trying desperately to slow Landis down, but they are being very, very diplomatic about it. They appreciate his services to the game and do not wish to offend him.

Using His "Powers"

The difficulty seems to be that the judge, employing the "board" powers vested in him, has continued to insist upon making his own interpretation of the baseball rules This is giving the owners a fit, because they insist he is finding some meanings to rules that never were intended to be there at all.

The judge has told them: "I didn't make the rules. You did. But as long as they are in the book I will enforce them, and according to my own interpretation, too."

The owners say they certainly never intended to have a rule in the book, for instance, that would obstruct working agreements between big league teams and the minors.

The judge, meantime, sent word that the boys could go ahead and make their working agreements if they wished. But none of them has done it—and none will until after Landis' temper has been sampled. He has them buffaloed.

About the only fresh news on swapping deals was that the Detroit Tigers traded Shortstop Bill Rogell to the Chicago Cubs even up for Shortstop Dick Bartell. Both are veterans.

Bartell hit 241 for the National leaguers in 107 games last season and Rogell batetd .225 in 71 games in the junior circuit.

U. W. CAGE BRIEFS

Robert "Bob" Schwartz is a man with a lot of natural ability and has the faculty of coming through with points when they are needed most. However, he has been seriously handicapped for the first three weeks of practice because of a fractured finger, which is expected to be completely healed by the time the season gets going. The former Madison West star is not as consistent as he might be, but when he has an "on" night, he is one of the most feared scorers on the squad.

All-Stars Can't Shoot; Drop Another Contest

Chicago —(AP)— The Oshkosh All-Stars were unable to find the basket and lost a National Professional Basketball league game to the Chicago Bruins here last night, 28 to 19.

The Bruins, making their first league start, rolled up a 19 to 6 lead at the half which they never were in danger of relinquishing.

For one stretch of 16 minutes the Chicagoans held Oshkosh without a point from the floor.

Kautz paced the winners with four field goals and three gift shots, while Shipp made two baskets and three free shots for Oshkosh.

Kansas U. Player Almost Had to Pay to Get in Game

BY BILL WHITE

NEW YORK —(AP)— There is a caustically-critical comment that has burned many a college football player's ears — "they oughta make that guy pay to get into the game."

"They" almost did this year in one of football's funniest happenings.

Sharp-eyed critics, answering the Associated Press' call for football oddities, came up with many an amusing incident, but the fate that befell Milt Sullivant of Kansas U., who arrived late for the Nebraska game, tops them all.

He was whisked from the airport to the stadium by a cab driver who let him out at the wrong gate. He had to walk clear around the stadium, hopefully begging admittance at every entrance—and having actually to "crash the gate" when a sleepy-eyed attendant was looking the other way.

Sullivant's attempts to prove to the gatekeepers that he was a player apparently weren't as convincing as the explanation offered by Guard Milt Simington of Arkansas who was asked why he left his defensive post in the heat of battle, walked some 40 yards away and picked up a quarter he saw there. "Well, I wasn't needed right then," he said, "we were knocking down all S. M. U.'s passes anyway."

Missed the Pigskin

Les Stanczyk of Columbia, in the Navy game, got the ball, kicked lustily — and missed the pigskin completely. Navy got the ball deep in the light blue's territory. So Stanczyk's face was red but probably no more so than those of the combined Washburn team's faces on being victimized by the Washington U. team of St. Louis. It happened this way:

Dutch Lutz, quarterback, tried to run but was trapped behind the line. In desperation he saw a fellow player behind the Washburn goal and threw the ball. The man in the end zone was Guard Bob Allen, who promptly caught the ball, and it was scored as a touchdown.

Since Washburn failed to notice this rule infraction, Washington gained six richly undeserved points. Washington immediately substituted four players, one of them for Allen, so Washburn couldn't check up on Allen's eligibility.

And then imagine the feelings of Junior Hovious of Ole Miss who snaked way out to the sidelines on a "sleeper" play — and did it so well that even his own mates didn't miss him!

RIFLE CLUB TO MEET

ROBERT SCHMIDT walloped the maples for a 235 game and a 656 series for individual honors during Industrial league matches at Arcade alleys last evening. Top team totals were turned in by Coated Paper with a 1,054 game and Pond Sport Shop with a 2,847 series.

Atlas Printers upset the league leading Frederick Barbers in two games as Arnold Meyer counted a 551 series with two games of 191. Tops for the losers was Ollie Gossens with a 548 series and 195 game. The Atlas quint won the last game by a 3-pin margin.

Schlafers Win Three

Schlafer Supply company made it three straight over Wire Works as Harold Krueger banged a 572 series with games of 203 and 214. Tops for the losers was William Lesselyong with games of 212 and 225 for a 587 series.

Pond Sports won the odd game from Power Co. Washers as Schmidt pounded 209, 212 and his 235 for the high series of 656. Myrlon Selms added a 215 while Sid Cotton and Bob Kunitz each grooved games of 200 for the winners. Charles Kunz was high for the losers with a 523 series.

Woolen Mills took two games from Coated Paper as Ray Crane tripled 550 with a 202 game, O. Radtke counted 214. C. DeYoung thumped 208 and E. Herb rolled 203. Ted Fischer mainstayed the losers with a 207 game and 553 series, C. Trittin counting a 200.

Beat Tuttle Press

Power Company scored a 2-game win over Tuttle Press as Clem Antonetti toppled a 530 series and I. Boettcher crowded a 204 single. Sherman Kapp smacked a 223 game and 546 series and W. Groth hit 200 for the losers.

Two games went to Al's Bar in a match with Chair Company. Roy McCallum showed 201 and 561 for the winners while George Beck hammered a 223 game and 587 series and Mike King sizzled a 222 game for the losing quint.

Mellow Brew won two games from Montgomery Ward as Wally Gresens tripled 581 with a 218 game, O. Strutz whipped 234, D. Strutz steamed 233 and B. Loeslyoung counted 213. Jim Iverson totaled 539 and Joe Herman hit 204 for the losers.

UCLA Back Can be Best Ground Gainer

Seattle —(AP)— Saturday's football game between Southern Californit and the University of California at Los Angeles will decide something more than the west coast Rose Bowl defender.

It should decide whether Kenny Washington, U. C. L. A.'s great Negro halfback, will capture honors as the nation's leading ground gained—by land and by air—for 1939.

American Football Statistical Bureau records showed today that Washington now ranks third behind Tom Harmon of Michigan, and Kay Eakin of Arkansas, both of whom have finished their seasons.

If Washington has a good day against the powerful Trojans he has a chance to slip into the top slot.

Harmon's 1,356 yards from passes and rushing still ranked him first. Eakin's total offensive yardage is 1,342.

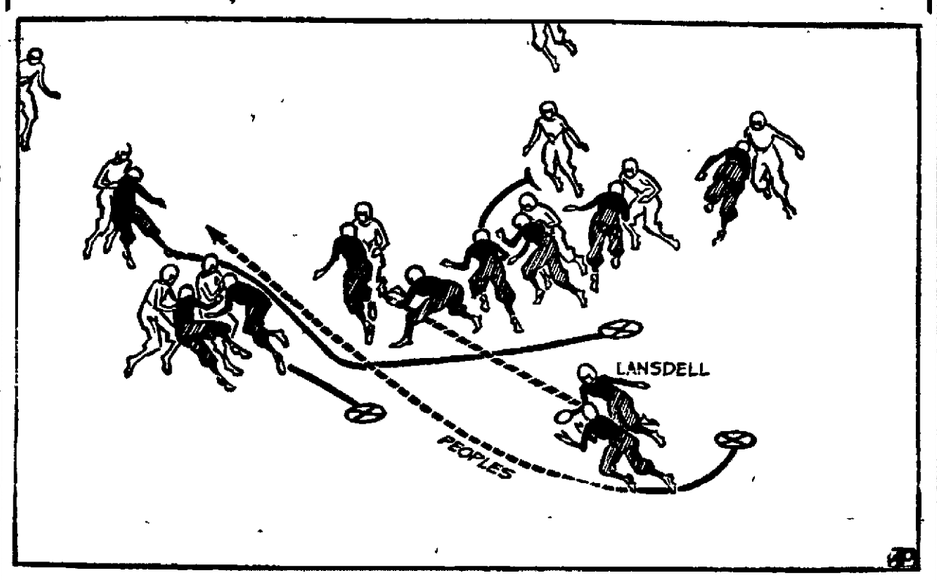
Dry Goods (3)	792	744	794—2330

North Side Dry Goods scored a 3-game victory over Lutz Coolerators during V. F. W. Auxiliary league matches at Eagles alleys this week. Rose Brown led the way with a 189 game and a 502 series while Annette Plank toppled a 175 game and 506 series for the losers.

Kamps Tavern won the odd game from Mueller Refrigerator Service as V. Hombleite hit 178 and 486. High for the losers was Celie Blong with a 212 game and 473 series.

TOUCHDOWN PARADE: U. S. C.



This is a Southern California fullback reverse that has made big gains this season with Bob Peoples lugging the pigskin. It scored from the seven-yard line against California and started the Trojans' first touchdown drive against Stanford when Peoples was sprung loose for a 45-yard run. The ball goes to quarterback Grenny Lansdell, who hands it to Peoples. He goes through the hole to the left of center. The play delays long enough to make a "sucker" of the defensive right tackle who usually sets himself up for a snappy side-swipe.

Oklahoma Gets Cotton Bowl Bid

But Tom Stidham Needs Faculty and Conference Approval

Norman, Oklahoma —(AP)— Coach Tom Stidham of Oklahoma's Sooners went to see a man about a football game today and if his luck holds out he may toss his club into the Dallas Cotton bowl against an eastern opponent New Year's day.

"Who? Us!" The surprised Sooners chorused when Dallas promoters invited them to be hosts at the Cotton Bowl party, evidently forgetting that Missouri and Nebraska whipped Oklahoma on successive Saturdays and finished ahead of the 1938 champs in the Big Six race.

As soon as a quorum had recovered from the shock, the players decided to accept if it was all right with everyone concerned.

Before they can engage in such post-season hostilities, they must obtain the permission of nearly everybody except their congressmen.

Big Tom, who lost 10 pounds in the excitement, quickly propelled the other 250 into action.

He must win approval of Dr. W. B. Bizzell, university president; the athletic counsel, the board of regents, and the Big Six.

Promoter Curtis Sanford, who announced in Dallas that Oklahoma would be the host team, said the other club would be chosen from Boston college, North Carolina, Clemson, Duquesne or Mississippi State.

Pro Loop Publicity Man Has Job, but It Isn't Publicity

Milwaukee —(AP)— The most surprised gentleman you ever could hope to see—he says so himself—was one William Abbott when he set foot in town and learned the National Professional Football league championship playoff here Sunday between the New York Giants and Green Bay Packers was an assured sellout.

Abbott, who is the league publicity man, admitted he arrived here with a large headache and "visions of hiring bands to parade up and down Milwaukee's Broadway to help put the game over."

He still has the headache—worrying how he can placate hordes of fans who are clamoring for tickets that just don't exist, even though the state fair park grandstand has been enlarged to accomodate 32,000.

Lee Joannes, Green Bay Packer president, warned prospective purchasers today that an estimated 1,500 "phoney" tickets were being circulated and that pasteboards should be bought only through certified agencies.

Denmark Ready for Little Nine Opener

Denmark — Denmark High school completed its non-conference basketball schedule at De Pere Tuesday evening, losing to the Red Birds, 15 to 13. In the eight games played, Denmark has been victorious seven times. Doubles victories were gained from Valders and Mishicot, while Sevastopol, Gibraltar and Wrightstown each were defeated once. In the games played, the Vikings scored a total of 208 points for an average of 26 points per game while holding their opponents to 123 points for an average of 15.4 points per game.

Denmarks begins its Little Nine conference play against Reedsville at Reedsville Friday. Coach H. Rasmussen will start the conference season with one veteran, James Christensen, who will play center. Forwards will be Melvin Larsen and Harvey Cizek and guards will be Charles Peterson and Robert Suster.

In previous games played in Little Nine competition against Reedsville, Denmark has been victorious eleven of the 16 times.

Kimberly at Hilbert For Little 9 Opener

Kimberly — Having played three non-conference games in three weeks, Kimberly high cagers will show at Hilbert Friday night to open Little Nine conference play.

Starting the season with an inexperienced squad, Coach Ray Hamann taught his boys new formations. When the timing and the quick pivot are mastered, the type of play is very successful. Coach Hamann had his squad practice this

Johnny Revolta Is A 'Scrambler' and He Likes the Title

Miami, Fla. —(AP)— Johnny Revolta, who has been called golf's greatest scrambler, admitted it today. Furthermore, he was brazen about it.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, a "scrambler" is a fellow who consistently misses the greens with his approach shots and still manages to click off pars and birdies.

"And what of it?" inquired Revolta. "Seventy per cent of golf is right up around the green, anyway. I figure to get that chip shot up there close enough for one putt."

There, undoubtedly, is the secret of Revolta's success, in a nutshell—and he has been successful, what with a P. G. A. championship, a western open title and sundry other tournament triumphs to his credit. Revolta is one of the best in the business when it comes to chipping and putting.

Johnny works on the principle that he may reasonably expect to sink a majority of his putts that are ten feet or less. He'll miss occasionally, but he'll compensate for it with a longer one now and then.

Revolta is warming up here for the $10,000 Miami open Dec. 14-17, a tournament he won in 1933, his first year in the big time.

Little Chute A.A. Team Organized

Cagers Win Opener With Kaukauna and Now Seek Other Games

Little Chute — The A. A. cagers now are organized for the coming season and scored their first victory recently at Kaukauna with a 34 to 12 win over the newly organized Merchants. The Merchants have a strong lineup composed of former high school stars and the locals' victory by a one-sided score makes a bright outlook.

Emil Van Dyke again will be at the helm for the cagers and wants games with outside teams. Games already have been scheduled with Sturgeon Bay, Two Rivers, Oshkosh, Manitowoc and Brillion. Games are wanted with Clintonville, New London, Kimberly A. A. Appleton, and teams in the surrounding territory.

The squad will show St. John players of the last two seasons. They are Mike Hammen and Duce Weyenberg from last season's team, Don Peeters, Tony Jansen, Moose Van Dyke, Ernie and Joe Verstegen, Lefty Wildenberg and Beany Bongers. Ory Bongers has decided to call it quits now, that Joe Gossens of the Kimberly Papermakers has hung up his suit. With Gossens out of the Papermaker lineup the locals figure they are on par with their rivals from across the river and a home and home series again will be sought. The Chuters dropped both contests last season by close scores and figure Joe Gossens was responsible for half of the winners' points.

Games will be played at St. John High gym.

Deneen and Reavley Rejoin M. U. Cagers

Milwaukee—(AP)—One of two incapacitated varsity cage prospects reported ready for action yesterday as Coach Bill Chandler sent his Marquette University basketball squad through an intensive drill for the Wisconsin game at Madison Saturday night.

Bobby Deneen, first string forward who has been troubled with a charley horse, was able to work out with the squad for a short time. Jimmy Reavley, promising sophomore guard, left the hospital where he has been under treatment for a back injury and watched the session from the sidelines.

Another cager was added to the injured list, however, when George Sutter, junior reserve forward, suffered an ankle sprain.

A reserve quintet, presenting Wisconsin plays, troubled the varsity on more than one occasion.

Superior Plays Kimberly Sunday

Papermakers to Make First Home Start in New League

Kimberly — Fans around the valley have another chance to see a fast basketball game at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the AA cagers will show in their first home game of the Wisconsin-Michigan league with Superior. The game will be played at the clubhouse. Last Sunday Kimberly won the opener at Rothchild, 31 to 28.

As an added feature Sunday, the management has announced that fans attending the game also will be able to hear results of the Packer-Giant football game at Milwaukee. The public address system in the club will be hooked up to the radio.

Indications are basketball games this year will be well attended. Attendance last season was greatly increased and the splendid loyalty of the fans was reflected in the play of the team. The Oilers have a powerful team. They are the only semi-pro club in the state that won over the Oshkosh All-Stars.

The Papermakers will be out in full force. High school students will have an opportunity to see their coach in action. He holds the position of guard. Others in the lineup are Buck LeMay, Chub Vander Velden, Swen Bowman, Norb Gossens, Elmer Vander Velden, Art Hofkins, Matt Dupont, Elmer Vanden Boogaard and Paul Van Dyke.

The Kimberly Merchants and Draheims, Neenah, will play the preliminary at 2 o'clock.

Neenah Park Body Will Seek $13,500 To Operate in 1940

Consider Erecting Ornamental Lighthouse at Kimberly Point

Neenah — The Neenah board of park commissioners has presented two budgets for 1940 to the city council, one amounting to $2,475 for outlay and the other to $11,098.08 for operating costs. The total budget is $13,573.08

In its budget requests, the board mentions that a number of citizens, at the suggestion of the board, are considering a presentation to the city of an ornamental lighthouse on the tip of Kimberly Point. Architect's sketches already having been drawn. If this project is secured, it is proposed to widen the base of the light house to accommodate toilet facilities for men and women. These facilities are in demand because of the large use of the park for picnicking.

The board also points out that although the council appropriated $10,966 for its 1939 operating costs, it spent only $9,181.06, leaving a balance of $1,784.94.

From the budget for outlay, the board plans to purchase a small truck at a cost of $600 for use of the park foreman to transport men, equipment and materials between park areas; a new mower and sulkies $475, playground equipment at Laudan field $250, landscaping the east end of E. Wisconsin avenue $750, and a boat haul for Kimberly Point $400.

Budget Summary

A summary of the budget for operating costs is as follows: Riverside park $2,855, Kimberly Point $210, Doty park $2,340, Washington park $2,433.88. Shattuck and Columbian parks $1,446.20, Congress place parkway $25, Water street property $35, Sturges property $20, Nicolet boulevard $50, High school field $450 and Laudan field $50; general, park foreman $750, emergency labor $200, toilet deodorant $65, gas, oil, license, insurance on new truck $178.

Outlining some of the work done by the board during 1939, it was pointed out that the saving in this year's account is partly accounted for by the board postponing some expenditures, but the principle source of saving is directly traceable to the greater efficiency, initiative and teamwork of the park force under the foremanship of Mr Patterson.

The report pointed out that the council authorized construction of additional tennis courts at Doty park at a cost of $4,000, but with the help of city facilities the job was done for $2,903.96. Grading and planting of Congress place cost $533.92 instead of the amount allowed, $400.

The report showed that the council disallowed the request for $3,187.50 for beautification of the east end of E. Wisconsin avenue, so the board had developed a simpler plan, beautifying the area between the lake shore and the pavement through the use of boulders, trailing vines and hardy shrubs.

Three Additional Areas

Three additional areas will come under park board care in 1940, the report showed, Spruce street triangle, S. Park and Doty avenue intersection and Congress place. The program of making up tree losses in Riverside park will be continued in 1940, and Mrs. Helen K. Stuart has expressed a desire to present to the board for 1940 planting a choice lot of nursery stock, trees that are unusual but which will grow in this climate.

Among the special projects conducted by the board this year include painting of field house at Columbian park and boat house at Shattuck park, 750 feet of sea wall at Riverside park, rebuilding dock at Riverside park, sea wall and grading at Kimberly Point and work at swimming pool.

The board requests a $100 addition to the annual salary of the fore-man and that his total hours of work during the winter be reduced to 48 a week.

Pointing out the need for the new equipment, such as a small truck, mower, playground equipment for Laudan field, the report stipulated that because of the increase in boating, particularly sail boating, there is a demand for a marine railway with truck and windlass at Kimberly Point park.

Keefe Charges Coercion in Arms Embargo Repeal Vote

Neenah — Threats of revocation of patronage and serious disrepute within the party were used to coerce congressmen into voting for repeal of the arms embargo, Congressman Frank Keefe, Oshkosh, charged in a talk at a noon meeting of the Neenah Kiwanis club Wednesday at the Valley Inn as he declared that congressmen didn't dare vote their honest convictions.

"I hope the President is right," the congressman said, and "I hope we don't get into war. There'll never be a vote of war from me." He said that the seeds of propaganda already are starting.

Congressman Keefe told the Kiwanians that in July the majority voted in favor of the arms embargo when the neutrality question wasn't on a partisan basis, but at the special session, they changed their vote, but there was no change in the foreign situation nor in the actual fundamentals.

Keefe declared that five minutes before he was going to deliver a speech opposing the repeal of the arms embargo, Congressman John O'Conner was summoned to the White House, where he was told in no uncertain terms that if he didn't vote in favor of repeal, his patronage might be taken away from him and he might get into serious disrepute within the party.

"O'Conner told me this with his own lips as did Congressman John Rankin, the TVA fighter, who has the courage of his convictions," Keefe said.

Rankin Voted No

"They told Rankin that if he voted against repeal, he may not get a share of the $50,000,000 which would be taken from the agriculture department, for drought relief. Rankin, however, took a chance and voted and spoke against repeal, and he was the only one below the Mason-Dixon line who did."

Proponents of repeal gave an open and frank admission that they cast their lot with England and France and will give them all the aid they want short of war. "Suppose the aid isn't successful and Germany defeats the allies. Then how far will they go? They lined their pockets with gold selling them poison gas, and if they don't go the whole way, they're hypocrites."

Declaring that "We are being forced into it," the congressman said that "I shall vote appropriations within reason to provide for national defense but not for any imperialistic scheme or another lending-spending spree under the guise of national defense."

The congressman also discussed the work of the Dies committee investigation of un-American activities.

Supervisors Vote Fund to Buy Fuel For Police Autos

$3,500 Appropriation Is Passed by Margin Of One Vote

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh—A $3,500 appropriation for the purchase of gasoline, oil and grease for the county highway squad cars in 1940 topped the list of odds and ends cleaned up by the Winnebago county board in its Wednesday afternoon session. The measure was adopted by a 22 to 21 vote.

Supervisor Earl Hughes, town of Neenah, objected to the resolution, declaring:

"This town is just another way of wiggling a salary increase out of us; it belongs in the same category as other requests for salary increases."

County Police Captain Irving Stilp told the board the appropriation could come out of the fine money collected from county traffic violations.

"Last year the county received $6,000 in fines; that will easily cover this appropriation and still leave several thousand dollars in the general fund."

"He estimated that it cost an officer $1,800 to start on his job and that after the patrolman had paid for an automobile, motorcycle, uniform and equipment he cleared approximately $110 per month.

Defends Police

Edward G. Sonnenberg, Menasha, told the board that the motor patrolmen hadn't received a raise in eight years. "They used to ride motorcycles all year and were forced to stay off the highway in inclement weather," he remarked. "Now they use automobiles too and that means more money for gasoline and a smaller salary."

Supervisor Howard N. Howe, Oshkosh, said he thought the board was getting nowhere. "I think we should buy all the equipment of our county patrolmen and then pay them a flat salary," he opined.

"What will these men do until this board decides to adopt such a system?" Supervisor James Howley, Menasha, demanded. "They need the money now; they can't wait until this board decides to act."

Following the adoption of the appropriation a letter was read and placed on file. It was signed by T. G. Spaulding, vice president of the First National bank at Menasha and it maintained that the county patrolmen were underpaid for the amount of service they rendered.

Other Appropriations

The board also approved the following appropriations: Court house maintenance, $21,567 (an appropriation $3,500 in excess of that of last year); Sunnyview sanatorium, $2,500; X-ray treatments for out patients at Sunnyview, $1,203; new typewriters for the circuit court reporter and probation officer, $100 each; repairing books of the law library, $100; Winnebago county safety council, $200, and the budget of the county nurse, $5,810.

"Why is the building committee asking an additional $3,500 for courthouse maintenance this year?" asked Earl Hughes.

"We underestimated the maintenance costs last year," Supervisor Arthur Rehbein, Oshkosh, answered. "There are no salary increases included in this resolution; construction work which should have been included in the building of the courthouse accounts for $1,500 of that increase," he added.

Following a talk by Miss Katherine Weinman, county nurse, the board voted to employ a full-time dental hygienist at a salary of $1,200 per year. The appropriation was included in the county nurse's budget and was approved by a 27 to 15 vote.

A WPA project now in progress at the courthouse and covering correction of real estate descriptions in the town of Utica, was ordered completed by the supervisors. The work will be under the supervision of an engineer and the county treasurer.

No Schedule Change

The board tabled a resolution changing the summer office schedule of the courthouse offices. Under the proposed change offices would remain open from 8:30 a. m. to 12 o'clock and from 1:30 p. m. to 5 o'clock week days.

"The present schedule is satisfactory as it is," Supervisor Earl Hughes maintained. "This would shorten the day by a half-hour."

Supervisor L. W. Clark, Oshkosh, said that if the schedule was cut any further the board "may as well close the courthouse altogether."

Hughes' motion to table the resolution carried by a 37 to 6 vote.

Upon motion of Supervisor Joseph Ulrich, Winneconne, the board adjourned until 3 o'clock this afternoon. This morning was spent in last-minute committee meetings and final consideration of the 1940 budget by the finance committee. The board was expected to act on the budget this afternoon and adjourn sine die either late today or early tomorrow.

Menasha Cagers Win in Catholic League Openers

Large Crowd Sees Boy Conference Games in St. Mary Gym

Menasha—The three Menasha entries in the Catholic Boy conference scored victories in the opening round of games Wednesday night at St. Mary's High school gymnasium before a large crowd. St. John's of Menasha edged St. Mary's of Appleton 9 to 8 in the opener, St. Mary's of Menasha defeated Holy Name of Kimberly 15 to 5 in the second tilt, and St. Patrick's Shamrocks trounced St. John's of Little Chute in the final game 23 to 14.

Two "Corrigan" stunts marked the games, one of which gave victory to the St. John of Menasha team. Late in the game Barry of the Appleton team got a rebound off his own backboard, became confused, dribbled the length of the floor to the St. John basket, took a shot, and missed. The St. John's team followed up and scored on the rebound, finally winning the game by the margin of one point.

A Little Chute player also became confused, grabbed a Shamrock rebound and fired it back at the Menasha basket but the shot rolled off the edge of the hoop. G. W. Unser and Sam Kraus were the officials.

Council Rejects 3 Damage Claims At Quiet Session

Mayor Breaks 5-All Deadlock to Quash Request for $14.95

Neenah — Disallowing of three minor claims with opposition from some of the members of the council was the only legislation of interest transacted at a dull, routine meeting of the city council last night at city hall.

Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs served a 5-all deadlock in the vote to disallow the claim of Arnold Sorensen for $14.95 for a tire which was damaged when the wheel of his car struck a catch basin on Fifth street Aug. 17. Voting against the motion disallowing the claim were Aldermen James Andersen, Walter Buschey, John Heigl, Knud Larsen and Richard O'Brien.

The claim of Floyd R. Prentice of $23.70 for a tire which was damaged Oct. 22 on W. Doty avenue near Martens street when it struck the curb was disallowed by a vote of 9 to 1, Alderman Robert Martens opposing the motion.

Mrs. Mary Galligan's claim of $95 for injuries received when she fell on N. Commercial street in front of the Gadger-Globe mill was disallowed by a vote of 7 to 3, Aldermen Buschey, Larsen and O'Brien dissenting. City Attorney John W. O'Leary explained that according to a supreme court ruling a city couldn't be held liable unless the depression in the sidewalk is more than 2½ inches. The depression at N. Commercial street isn't more than an inch.

Application for a license was granted to the Twin City Checker Cab company. Reports submitted by Justice of the Peace Gaylord C. Loehning showed that fines and fees for last month totaled $165 and $39.13 for Justice of the Peace Elmer H. Radtke. Alderman Edward Schultz, chairman of the finance committee, reported that last month the city incurred 152 accounts amounting to $16.923. The larger bills were semi-annual interest on sewerage plant bonds $2,418.75, gravel and readymix concrete $2,135.12, land deed for property on N. Church street $2,000, poor relief $1,480.99, street lighting $1,423.96, and manholes for sewer work $588.

$125 For Sandspreader

The council appropriated $125 to purchase a sandspreader for the street department. Alderman Larsen objected, alleging that the city didn't need one, that the men had done wonderful work and that machinery was taking work away from the men. Alderman Carl Loehning, chairman of the street committee, claimed that the spreader won't cause one man to lose his job and it will do the work faster. He said there is plenty of work for all the men on the payroll. Aldermen Heigl and O'Brien also opposed the purchase.

The council also voted to purchase 800 feet of snow fencing, and authorized the committee to secure prices on a blower for the city garage furnace.

The council voted to install a street light on Washington avenue between Elm and Pine streets. Alderman Larsen, chairman of the utility committee, reported that the committee had investigated and found it advisable to install a street light near the Adams street bridge, and that the light had been installed, having been given the power at the preceding meeting.

Will Buy Pipe

Authority was granted the public improvements committee to purchase two carloads of sewer pipe, and the council instructed the finance committee to obtain a price for the purchase of the Sturges property in the Third ward as a possible location for a playground.

An ordinance was adopted providing for the reduction of 3½ per cent of the salaries of policemen for the police pension fund. City Clerk H. S. Zemlock informed the council that the legislature recently adopted a law providing for a similar reduction from firemen's salaries for their pension fund.

The council agreed to meet informally at 1:30 Saturday afternoon at the abandoned city quarry near Fairview avenue.

FROSTED CAKES

Truck War Ended; Officials to Meet

Michigan and Wisconsin Authorities Will Confer in Chicago

Madison —(AP)— Commissioner George W. Rickeman of the state motor vehicle department today announced a truce had been arranged in the truck licensing dispute with Michigan authorities.

Rickeman said he had agreed to meet with Michigan officials in Chicago Dec. 14 to discuss reciprocal operating privileges for truck operators who cross the upper peninsula border.

Since last Monday Wisconsin officers have been engaged in what Rickeman described as a "retaliatory" campaign, stopping Michigan truck owners and compelling them to buy licenses in this state.

Rickeman contended that Michigan authorities had "harassed" truckers who entered the peninsula from Wisconsin for several months, forcing them to buy Michigan plates.

"We have called our field men back to their regular duties pending the outcome of the Chicago conference," Rickeman said. "We assume, of course, that Michigan will do the same."

The truce, he added, was proposed in a telegram received from Arlon Ley, assistant director of the Michigan motor vehicle department, acting for Secretary of State Harold Kelley.

Wisconsin officials recently reached a reciprocal agreement with Minnesota on truck licensing.

Daredevils Shudder at Risks Motorists Take on Highways

Chicago—(AP)—Two auto race drivers who juggle with their lives to thrill county fair folk shuddered today at the risks taken by the average motorist.

Jimmy Lynch and Gus Schrader were among 1,500 performers, operators and agents attending the meeting of the showmen's international association of fairs and expositions.

Lynch is the head man of a "death-dodging" troup of 62 persons, 23 of whom earn their living by driving cars at breakneck speed through burning buildings and over bouncing bumps. Schrader, who survived a broken neck in a motorcycle race, is the world's dirt track automobile racing champion.

"I've been in my game six years," Lynch said, "and never has one of my men had to be taken to a hospital.

"There were three killed, but in accidents on highways."

Schrader, 45-year-old Cedar Rapids, Iowa, veteran, yesterday was awarded the grand trophy—emblematic of world dirt track supremacy—for the seventh time.

A. R. Corey of Des Moines, Iowa, secretary of the International Motor Contest association, said Schrader had won 56 events during the year. Schrader has been racing for 20 years.

Schrader said motorists take more chances on highways than track drivers do on the race courses.

"We never drive as fast on the road as the ordinary motorist," Schrader said. "They hit it up to 80 for a while and then cut down slow and lose all the time they've gained. We keep a steady, moderate pace and cover more miles in the long run."

Clintonville Tax Rate Again Is Set At $30 Per $1,000

Assessed Valuation Slightly Increased; Expenses Estimated at $206,879

Clintonville—The tax rate for the city of Clintonville was set at 3 per cent or $30 per thousand at the December meeting of the city council Tuesday evening. This is the same rate as last year. The assessed valuation of property is $4,828 724, an increase of $13,637 over last year. Estimated expenditures for the coming year are $206,879.44 City Clerk S. J. Tilleson recommended a tax rate of 3¼ per cent in order to balance the budget, but the aldermen did not favor an increase in the rate. They felt that by the practise of more rigid economy, the expenses could be met by a lower rate.

The $206 879 44 for 1940 expenditures will include $54,324 44 for state and county taxes and $40,500 for the city public schools. The sum of $78,280 for general city purposes includes salaries of city officials, election expenses, auditing of city books, bonds, and poor relief. Other items are: $14,550 for highways, bridges and culverts, this sum being for street cleaning, repairs and snow removal; $12,000 for protection to persons and property, which covers expenses of the police and fire departments. The budget also includes the item of health, which covers salaries of the health officer, milk inspector, and cost of garbage collection and expenses to sewers and drains. Under the item of education and recreation, the sum of $3,875 will go for expenses at the public library, parks, athletic field, and the Memorial day program.

Other Income

In addition to the general property tax, the city will receive income from several other sources including: licenses and permits, $2,300, liquor licenses from state, $4,000; court fines, $500, utility tax, $10,500; auto licenses from state $8,500, income tax, $2,500; refund from county on poor relief, $2,394; and several other items.

$24 Tax Rate Set At Board Session At Little Chute

Levy for Public School Accounts for $1 Increase in Village

Little Chute—An increased tax rate of $1 on every $1,000 of taxable property, or $24, will be paid by the residents of this village in 1940. The rate was set at a meeting of the village board Tuesday evening. The assessed valuation of the village is $1,708,170. The $24 rate will be divided at a meeting to be held the latter part of this week.

The increase is due to the tax levy of the public grade school which is double the amount of last year. A new boiler was installed and many repairs were made at the school during the last year. The total valuation consists of $1,611,725 real estate and $96,445 personal property. The state and county tax is lower than that of last year.

The new village hall will be completed in about ten days. A dedication program is being planned the date for which will be decided at the next meeting. Applications for the position of janitor of the new village hall are being received by Village Clerk Louis Verhagen. The salary for said job will be $50 a month. Applications must be in by next Tuesday. The new hockey and ice rink on N. Grand avenue has been completed. General bills were allowed and the board adjourned until next Tuesday evening.

A meeting of the members of the St. Elizabeth society of St. John church was held Tuesday evening at the school hall. Eighty-five members were present. After the business meeting a talk was given by the Very Rev. John J. Sprangers and a report on the Diocesan convention held at Green Bay recently was given by the president, Mrs. Theodore St. Aubin who was a delegate to the convention. The society elected new officers recently. They are Mrs. Theodore St. Aubin, president; Mrs. Albert Van Roy, secretary; Mrs. John Vander Putten, treasurer; Mrs. Henry W. Bongers and Mrs. John A. Vanden Heuvel, consultors. Cards were played and a lunch was served. Prizes at schafskopf were awarded Mrs. Cornelius Van Dyke, Mrs. August Coenen and Mrs. Anton Hietpas and the winner at rummy was Mrs. John Van Bakle.

Guests at the George Friebel home Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Marvin White and son David and Mrs. John Hoersch, Mattoon; Mrs. Clarence Friebel and Russel Hoersch, Kaukauna; John Friebel, Freedom; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Friebel, Little Chute.

Members of St. John parish will sponsor an open card party at the school hall Tuesday evening. Bridge, schafskopf and rummy will be played, prizes will be awarded and a lunch will be served.

New Volumes are Added to New London Library Stock

New London — "I Lost My English Accent," C. V. R. Thompson's hilariously critical answer to Margaret Halsey's witty "With Malice Toward Some," is one of the outstanding new books placed in circulation at the New London Public library this week. Thompson has been a newspaper correspondent in America since 1933 and is equally as observing and sharp of tongue as Margaret Halsey was of the English.

Destined to be one of the important novels of the season is Stella Morgan's "Again the River," a powerful story of the people of America who periodically suffer the ravages of great floods.

A dramatic and breath-taking story of the collapse of Czechoslavakia is told in "We Shall Live Again," by Maurice Hindu who was commissioned in 1938 to write about the country and its people and was in Czechoslavakia during the days of the crisis. His book also is recognized as an historical document of great importance.

Explains Philosophies

"Which Way America?" by Lymany Bryson was written by the author to give an understanding of the conflicting philosophies of communism, fascism and democracy so that Americans can judge for themselves what lies behind all the prevalent propaganda.

Somerset Maugham, author of "Of Human Bondage" offers a new book he calls "Christmas Holiday." In it a young Englishman's whole philosophy of life is shattered when he discovers a world he didn't dream existed and a story within a story is told in the sin and atonement of a petty thief and murderer, his wife, and a fanatical revolutionary.

Lloyd Douglas's new novel, "Doctor Hudson's Secret Journal," is not a sequel to his popular "Magnificent Obsession" but an expansion of its philosophy.

A meeting was held in the city hall in Chilton Wednesday evening, Dec. 6, to which cheesemakers and others interested in the drive of the W. D. I. A. to raise a fund of $100,000 to advertise Wisconsin dairy products were invited.

Russell E. Frost, acting secretary of the association, announced that Iowa and Minnesota have raised their advertising quota and it is hoped that Wisconsin's drive to meet its quota will get under way within the next few weeks, he said. A. L. Mc Mahon, county agent, announced that within the next few months the 3,100 dairy plants in Wisconsin will be given an opportunity to enlist in the drive.

The appropriation ordinance provides for expenditures for city purposes to the amount of $67,276.21, and receipts are estimated at $39,450, leaving a balance of $27,876.21 to be provided by taxes.

The school budget as submitted by the board of education, provides for expenditures of $69,720 for school purposes and receipts are estimated at $37,720, leaving a balance of $32,000 to be provided by taxes. The following sums will be levied against the taxable property of the city: for state taxes, $727.58; county taxes, $35,572.41; city taxes $27,826.21; school taxes, $32,000, making a total of $96,126.20. Total assessed valuation of general property in the city as shown on the 1939 assessment and tax roll is $3,100,845.

The finance committee includes Chris Hanson, chairman; Stanley Wetherbee and W. L. Holmes.

City Clerk W. J. Nelson, who referred to the 1940 budget, estimated receipts of $5,000 more than the budget for 1939. This was accounted for by the fact that the water works department has sufficient funds to allow for payment to the general fund of this amount.

Anticipated expenditures for 1940 are reduced by $3,000 due to the fact that the local share of old age assistance payments is now carried by the county and our bond retirement is $2,000 less than in 1939 and several other items are also reduced. Bond retirement in 1941 will again increase, and in order to provide for emergencies, $3,000 has been provided which should help stabilize the tax rate for 1941, Mr. Nelson stated.

The school budget provides for a decrease of $1,000 in the tax levy for school purposes under 1939 and estimates total receipts as about the same in 1939, and the city clerk believes that a close analysis will show that the actual receipts for 1940 will show an increase over those of 1939. The expenditures listed in the 1940 school budget are about the same as those in the 1939 school budget. The surplus carried over from 1939 is accounted for by the fact that the teachers' salaries were not raised as planned in the budget.

Firemen Answer Two Alarms During Night

Firemen answered two calls last night. The first call at 11:23 was made to the 100 block on N. Locust cust street. A woman saw what she believed was a fire in a neighbor's house and summoned the department. The second alarm was answered at midnight to the rear of a building in the 100 block on E. College avenue. A cigaret had set fire to a cushion in a car owned by Ed Tilley, 1897 E. Newberry street.

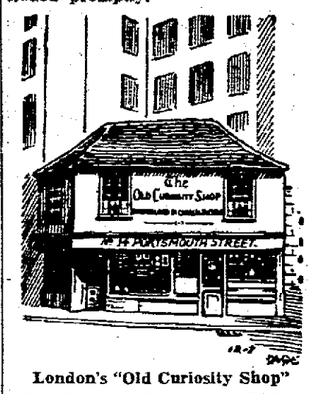
UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

LITTLE NELL'S DEATH

Among the famous books written by Charles Dickens is "The Old Curiosity Shop." Many thousands of copies have been sold, and it ranks high among his works.

What today seems like an odd title was used when it was first published. The story appeared, a chapter or two at a time, as "Master Humphrey's Clock." The parts were supposed to be printed weekly, but they were not in all cases issued promptly.



London's "Old Curiosity Shop"

In planning the story, Dickens had what he called a "notion" about an old man named Humphrey who owned "an old queer-cased clock." Humphrey was to find some old writings in a closet where the clock weights were kept, and these writings were to be given to the reader. Later the name was changed to "The Old Curiosity Shop."

Dickens left notes which show us how the story grew in his mind One by one the characters took form, chief among them being Little Nell, the dear child whose sweetness was brought out time and again.

Trying to finish chapters from week to week, the author—then 28 years old—was not always sure what the next chapter would contain until he sat down at his desk to write. After telling about the death of Little Nell, he wrote to a friend, "It is such a very painful thing to me that I cannot express my sorrow." This gives us an idea of how real the persons in his books sometimes seemed to him. Usually he wrote about real persons, but changed their names in his books.

In London today there is a place called "Old Curiosity Shop," where souvenirs of Dickens and his book characters are sold. Some persons fancy this to be the original shop described in the book.

Another great work of Dickens is "A Tale of Two Cities." It is based in part on history, and the events are supposed to have taken place during the French Revolution.

The hero of "A Tale of Two Cities" is a man named Sydney Carton. He is described in a way which shows him to be weak, and many persons might have thought him worthless. Indeed one could hardly think anything else—until near the end of the book.

Carton's great deed was to give his life to save another man. He did this for the sake of a woman he loved but who did not love him.

Leading Stocks Overcome Sales To Record Gains

New York —(P)— Leading stocks overcame early selling barriers in today's market and, in the final hour, resumed the recovery push of yesterday. Closing gains, centering principally in industrials, ranged from major fractions to more than a point.

Many traders who got in on Wednesday's bulge, best since Oct. 17, cashed profits after an opening advance from then to the start of the last hour. Most of the preceding day's favorites were unable to get anywhere in particular.

Business news was all on the side of the bulls, and, with wheat futures shooting up to around the $1-a-bushel mark and other commidities displaying forward inclinations, commission house customers took a more cheerful view of trends. Dividends and earnings helped brighten the picture. Tax selling provided a brake. The European war despatches again failed to unsettle sentiment.

Notwithstanding frequent slowdowns in the market's pace, transfers were in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 shares.

Propping steels was the statement of Chairman Weir of National that there was no indication inventories of the hard mteal were being built up to dangerous levels.

Bonds were a trifle uneven. Foreign securities markets did better. Wheat at Chicago was up ⅝ to 1⅝ cents a bushel. Corn was off ⅛ to 70½. Cotton, in late trades, was ahead 40 to 65 cents a bale.

Hint British Secret Weapon Against Planes

London —(P)— A suggestion that Britain was employing a new secret weapon against German warplanes was contained in the sketch today as warfare at sea continued to be the nation's major preoccupation.

The newspaper, in a front-page article, said the secret weapon was believed to have brought down a German plane which crashed at sea yesterday off the Norfolk coast.

"No official announcement can be expected for some time," it said, "but there are very good reasons for the claim being made. Last night the hint was deliberately dropped in high official quarters that the nazi raider had met its doom through a weapon of which Britain has never boasted."

Nature of such a weapon was not disclosed, and official sources declined comment. Most papers speculated that the plane crash resulted from a mechanical failure.

Coolidge's Military Aide Dies at Capital

Washington —(P)— Colonel Osmun Latrobe, colorful cavalry veteran who for a time was military aide to President Coolidge, died last night at Walter Reed hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Coolidge was to taken with the vigorous, red-haired officer at their first meeting in North Dakota in 1927 that he had him transferred to the White House.

Colonel Latrobe, who was 65, retired from active service in 1938. He was a member of a distinguished Maryland family.

Prices of Wheat Continue Climb In Chicago Trade

Profit-Taking Sets in and Quotations Decline From Best Levels

Chicago — (P) — Wheat futures shot up 2 to 3 cents a bushel today, December contracts soaring to 99½, highest for any contract since October, 1937.

The top prices, reached shortly after noon, attracted a wave of profit taking sales, however, and quotations slipped 1½ cents from the day's best levels.

Buying was based largely on much lower estimates of Argentine production coupled with poor prospects in the domestic hard winter wheat belt. Milling interests and exporters were in the market.

Receipts were: Wheat 10 cars, corn 134, oats 25.

Despite the late setback, wheat managed to close with net gains for the tenth consecutive session. Final prices were ⅜-1⅜ cents higher than yesterday, December 98½-1½, May 94⅞-½.

Corn was ⅜ lower to ¼ higher, December 54⅜, May 55⅞-⅞; oats unchanged to ¼ higher.

Accept Demotions and Reductions in Salaries

Madison —(P)— Forty employes of the state motor vehicle department have accepted demotions to preserve their seniority rights, along with pay reductions totalling $940 a month.

The demotions were part of an economy program which has resulted in dismissal of 95 other employes.

The civil service law entitled an employe to preserve seniority rights based on the number of years worked by accepting a lower rank and pay cut if his services in a higher classification were no longer needed.

Most of those affected were clerks demoted from senior to junior and from junior to assistant classifications. Individual pay reductions amounted in most cases to $25 a month.

U. S. Committee Plans Hearing on Forest Problems

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Forest problems of Wisconsin and the entire lake states' region will be considered at public hearings in the state house at Madison Dec. 18 and 19, Senator John H. Bankhead, Alabama Democrat and chairman of the joint congressional committee on forestry, has just announced

The committee intends to determine how the 52,500,000 acres of land capable of producing timber in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota can be regulated so as to increase their output. Within the last few years, 60 per cent of lumber requirements have come from other states, it is pointed out. Less than 1,000,000,000 board feet of lumber for home use was manufactured in 1938, compared to nearly 10,000,000,000 feet in 1899.

"This section of the country has experienced the rapid growth and decline of forest industry attendant upon cutting practices not geared to the productive capacity of the lands," Bankhead said, "and the committee looks forward to securing the well-considered testimony of its spokesmen."

Laboratory to Help

The Forest Products laboratory at Madison is expected to be of considerable help in considering new markets and uses for wood at the hearings.

The need for forest products in the prairie states, as well as production problems of the central hardwood region, also will be taken up at the hearings.

Reports of the sessions will be submitted to congress with, perhaps, a plan for public control to "adequately protect private as well as the broad public interests in all forest lands."

The joint forestry committee was appointed last year, upon recommendation of President Roosevelt, for the purpose of studying present and prospective conditions in each of the timber producing regions of the country.
